Statute of Limitations Applicable to Claims for Corporate License Tax Refunds: The statutory time limit within which to claim a refund of corporate license taxes, as provided in 15-31-509, begins running on the date established in subsection (2) of this section. Although this section allows a taxpayer to automatically extend for up to 6 months the period of time for filing, the extension is not included in determining when the limitations period begins to run. The extension simply gives the taxpayer additional time to prepare the return; it does not change the day prescribed for filing the return. Norfolk Holdings, Inc. v. 1981 Amendment: In (1)(a) substituted "including" for "but shall include"; inserted subsection (1)(a)(ii) including gain from liquidation of corporations not recognized under federal law; and inserted subsection (1)(b) excluding gain from liquidation of corporations recognized under federal law.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 415 (Ch. 483, L. 1981) provided: "House Bill 415 is intended to address a problem that arises under the Montana individual income tax laws and corporation license and income tax laws due to the relationship between the Montana adjusted gross income under the federal income tax laws. Under present law the liquidation of a corporation holding property in Montana can cause gain on the sale of the property to pass through to the stockholders of the corporation. If the stockholders are not subject to Montana tax on this gain passing through, the state loses the revenue on what is essentially a state transaction, namely the sale of Montana property. This result occurs because of operation of the federal tax laws relating to corporation liquidations. House Bill 415 addresses this situation by requiring the liquidating corporation to recognize that portion of the gain from a corporate liquidation under sections 331 or 337 [331 through 337] of the Internal Revenue Code that passes through to stockholders, either individual or corporate, who are not subject to Montana tax, either individual income tax or corporate license tax, on the gain passed through pursuant to federal law. Because the provisions of House Bill 415 require recognition of gain at the corporate level, it is also necessary to remove this gain from the income of the stockholders, in order to avoid the possibility of double taxation.

For the example we have a corporation L that owns property in Montana. The stockholders of L are an out-of-state corporation, S; an out-of-state individual, I; and a resident individual, R, each with an equal interest. Corporation L sells the property with a gain of $3,000,000 and liquidates pursuant to sections 331 through 337 of the Internal Revenue Code. Under present law, R, as a resident, would pay tax on $1,000,000, but S and I would not be subject to Montana tax on the $1,000,000 passing through to them pursuant to federal law. Corporation L would not be subject to Montana tax. Under House Bill 415, R would remain subject to tax on $1,000,000, but Corporation L would now become subject to tax on the $2,000,000 (that portion of the gain passing through to persons not subject to Montana income or license tax)."

Dividend Deduction Not Prohibited by Amendment — Incorporation of Federal Law: Where the appellants, six holding companies, each owning 80% or more of the voting stock of a commercial bank, appealed a decision of the District Court reversing a decision of the State Tax Appeal Board allowing the appellants to deduct the dividends received from their subsidiaries, the Supreme Court held that a 1973 amendment to the corporation license tax law did not alter the interrelationship found to exist in such cases as Lazy JD Cattle Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 40, 504 P2d 287 (1972), between the corporation license tax law and the Internal Revenue Code. The deductions claimed by the appellants are allowed by the Internal Revenue Code, which has been incorporated by reference into the corporation license tax law. Because those deductions are not specifically prohibited by that law, they must be allowed. Baker Bancorporation, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 202 M 94, 657 P2d 89, 39 St. Rep. 2350 (1982).

Net Operating Loss — Incorporation of Federal Law: Prior to the 1971 amendment to 15-31-114 that specifically provided for a net operating loss deduction, a net operating loss deduction was allowable since 15-31-113 incorporates section 172 of the Federal Internal Revenue Code for the purposes of determining net income. Lazy JD Cattle Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 40, 504 P2d 287 (1972).

Net Operating Loss — No Retroactive Repeal: The 1971 amendment to 15-31-114 did not retroactively repeal the net operating loss deduction allowed under the definition of net income in 15-31-113. Lazy JD Cattle Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 40, 504 P2d 287 (1972).

Premerger Net Operating Loss Deduction by Corporation — Prohibition Constitutional: Petitioner GBN appealed from a District Court order upholding a decision by the Department of Revenue, which, pursuant to this section (prior to 1989 amendment), disallowed a deduction from taxable income by the surviving corporation of the net operating losses sustained by the merged corporations prior to the date of the merger. The Supreme Court held that the provision was a reasonable tax classification that did not unconstitutionally discriminate against the surviving corporation in a merger of corporations. The provision applied equally to all entities falling within the same classification and prevented all merged corporations from deducting premerger net operating losses. GBN, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 249 M 261, 815 P2d 595, 48 St. Rep. 715 (1991).

Multistate Taxpayers Engaged in Unitary Business: The Supreme Court held that when corporate taxpayers are engaged in a unitary business, sales by the corporation of temporary cash investments are not to be reported by them for Montana's corporation license tax or income tax purposes as included in gross sales; except for the net gain from such sales, the total amounts of these sales should be excluded from the formula determining the unitary business's income for corporation license tax reporting. Am. Tel. & Tel. Co. v. St. Tax Appeal Bd., 241 M 440, 787 P2d 754, 47 St. Rep. 403 (1990).

Retroactive Calculation of Tax — Unconstitutional: Plaintiffs contended that a change in net operating loss law was unconstitutionally retroactive. Plaintiff, Havre Federal Savings and Loan Association, had incurred a net operating loss in each of the 5 years from 1974 through 1978. The challenged portion of the statute was enacted in 1979. Under the previous law, the plaintiff carried forward its net operating losses and applied them to its 1979 return, which resulted in no net income for that year. The Department of Revenue, acting under the authority of the challenged subsection, recalculated plaintiff's net income for the years 1974 through 1978, which resulted in no net operating losses to carry forward. The Supreme Court held that the change in law was retroactive in effect and therefore unconstitutional. The State cannot change a law in 1979 and compel a recalculation of tax returns filed for 1974 through 1978 based on the new law effective for the first time in 1979. First Fed. S&L Ass'n v. Dept. of Revenue, 200 M 358, 654 P2d 496, 39 St. Rep. 1802 (1982).

Bond Reserve Account Disallowed Under Bank Shares Tax: Under former law, when bank had suffered no actual loss in its bond account, or actively traded or sold its bonds, it was improper for the bank to create a reserve for possible bond losses and segregate this amount from its undivided profits for bank shares tax purposes, as a bank may not claim a deduction for a bond loss reserve account on the principle that a liability does not accrue as long as it remains contingent. Mont. Nat'l Bank of Roundup v. Dept. of Revenue, 167 M 429, 539 P2d 722 (1975).

Bad Debt as Loss — Deduction — Reserve: A bad debt sustained and charged off within a year is a loss under this section. Although federal law authorizes a deduction from gross income for a reserve for bad debts, when the Code attempted to specifically deal with a particular deduction and restricted bad debt deductions to only those sustained and charged off within a year, there could be no deduction by a bank of a bad debt reserve. First Fed. S & L Ass'n v. St. Tax Appeal Bd., 167 M 33, 535 P2d 183 (1975).

Net Operating Loss — Incorporation of Federal Law: Prior to the 1971 amendment to 15-31-114 that specifically provided for a net operating loss deduction, a net operating loss deduction was allowable since 15-31-113 incorporates section 172 of the Federal Internal Revenue Code for the purposes of determining net income. Lazy JD Cattle Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 40, 504 P2d 287 (1972).

Net Operating Loss — No Retroactive Repeal: The 1971 amendment to 15-31-114 did not retroactively repeal the net operating loss deduction allowed under the definition of net income in 15-31-113. Lazy JD Cattle Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 40, 504 P2d 287 (1972).

Dividends of Building and Loan Associations: Dividends paid by building and loan associations are deductible from gross income in determining corporation license taxes. Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Fulton, 141 M 113, 375 P2d 312 (1962).

Cooperative Corporations — Patronage Dividends:

Cooperative corporations doing business in Montana and subject to corporation license tax may exclude or deduct from gross income any amounts paid as patronage dividends. Fulton v. Farmers Union Grain Terminal Ass'n, 140 M 523, 374 P2d 231 (1962).

Dividends paid on capital stock outstanding are not a proper deduction in determining the net income of a cooperative association organized under Title 35, ch. 15, for taxation purposes, such dividends being neither an expense nor a payment of interest on indebtedness, but patronage dividends which it must pay under 35-15-411 in apportioning its earnings, are in effect refunds or rebates to customers whether stockholders or not, and are to be treated as a necessary expense in computing net income upon which to pay a license tax. Gallatin Farmers Co. v. Shannon, 109 M 155, 93 P2d 953 (1939).

Deduction of Refund to Government: When a government contractor's liability to make a refund to the government was certain under the laws relating to renegotiation, the estimated amount of the contractor's liability thereunder was an allowable deduction as an expense incurred in computing the state corporation license tax of the contractor on the accrual basis although the exact amount was not known or presently due during the taxable year but such amount was determined later and the adjustment made. Birch & Sons Constr. Co. v. Porter, 117 M 232, 157 P2d 777 (1945).

Accounting Methods: Keeping accounts and making returns on the accrual basis, as distinguished from cash basis, import that it is the right to receive and not the actual receipt that determines inclusion of the amount in gross income. Birch & Sons Constr. Co. v. Porter, 117 M 232, 157 P 777 (1945).

Doing Business in State: Under former law, a Minnesota corporation engaged in the coal mining business in Montana was entitled to certain deductions under section 2297, R.C.M. 1921, although it maintained its general office in Minneapolis, where the meetings of the stockholders and directors were held and from where the business was directed, to which office money was sent for deposit and where it received interest and dividends from invested funds and disbursed same to its stockholders. The State Treasurer was in error in claiming that the corporation, by reason of the above facts, was partly engaged in business in Montana and partly in Minnesota, and therefore subject to a higher fee. Cottonwood Coal Co. v. Junod, 73 M 392, 236 P 1080 (1925).

Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 673, L. 1983, provided: "WHEREAS, the Montana Corporation License Tax Act (Title 15, chapter 31, part 1) was intended, after the enactment of Chapter 634, Laws of 1979, to require all corporations to report and pay a tax upon all income derived from obligations of the United States or its agencies or instrumentalities as permitted by Title 31, section 742, United States Code; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Supreme Court on September 23, 1982 (petition for rehearing denied December 6, 1982), decided in the case cited below that such income must be excluded from the measure of the subject tax; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature disagrees with the Montana Supreme Court's decision in the case of First Federal Savings and Loan Association, a Federally Chartered Association, et al., Plaintiffs and Appellants v. Department of Revenue, et al., Defendants and Respondents, Cause No. 81-528, and has filed, through its Revenue Oversight Committee [now Revenue and Transportation Interim Committee], an Amicus Curiae brief in support of the position of the Department of Revenue; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Revenue is presently seeking to have the United States Supreme Court review the matter, and at this time other decisions are also being reviewed by the United States Supreme Court that might have a bearing on the issue of the taxability of such income; and

WHEREAS, in the interim uncertainty exists as to the taxability of such income and claims for refund of tax and returns of income will be made by corporations based upon the exclusion of such income; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature desires to maintain approximately the current level of revenue to state and local government; and

WHEREAS, immediate legislative action is necessary.

THEREFORE, it is the intent of the Legislature to proportionately reduce the allowable deductions to all corporations for all taxable periods for which interest income is excluded or claim for refund of tax is made upon such exclusion under claim of right under federal law."

Retroactive Effect: Section 6, Ch. 673, L. 1983, provided, in pertinent part: "Sections 1 and 3 of this act [codified to 15-31-115 and 15-31-116 (15-31-116 now repealed)] apply retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to taxable periods beginning on and after December 31, 1978 (the effective date of Chapter 634, Laws of 1979), for which a corporation has excluded interest income based upon federal law or for which a corporation has included interest income and subsequently claims a refund of taxes paid based upon federal law."

Case Notes

Interest Income From Federal Obligations — Tax on Privilege and Income: Plaintiffs appealed from a summary judgment granted to defendant. Defendant had included the interest income from investments in several federal obligations in net income for purposes of computing plaintiffs' license tax. The District Court relied on 31 U.S.C. § 742, which contains an exception allowing states to levy a franchise tax on the income from federal obligations. The defendant contended that the Montana corporation license tax is a franchise tax on the privilege of doing business in Montana, with the tax based upon or measured by the net income of the taxpayer. The Supreme Court held that the tax is on the privilege and the net income. Defendant was attempting to tax indirectly income that it could not tax directly. The interest income from exempt federal obligations was not includable in net income for the purpose of calculating the Montana corporation license tax. First Fed. S&L Ass'n v. Dept. of Revenue, 200 M 358, 654 P2d 496, 39 St. Rep. 1802 (1982).

Case Notes

Premerger Net Operating Loss Deduction by Corporation — Prohibition Constitutional: Petitioner GBN appealed from a District Court order upholding a decision by the Department of Revenue, which, pursuant to 15-31-114 (prior to 1989 amendment), disallowed a deduction from taxable income by the surviving corporation of the net operating losses sustained by the merged corporations prior to the date of the merger. The Supreme Court held that the provision was a reasonable tax classification that did not unconstitutionally discriminate against the surviving corporation in a merger of corporations. The provision applied equally to all entities falling within the same classification and prevented all merged corporations from deducting premerger net operating losses. GBN, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 249 M 261, 815 P2d 595, 48 St. Rep. 715 (1991).

Retroactive Calculation of Tax — Unconstitutional: Plaintiffs contended that a change in net operating loss law was unconstitutionally retroactive. Plaintiff, Havre Federal Savings and Loan Association, had incurred a net operating loss in each of the 5 years from 1974 through 1978. The challenged portion of the statute was enacted in 1979. Under the previous law, the plaintiff carried forward its net operating losses and applied them to its 1979 return, which resulted in no net income for that year. The Department of Revenue, acting under the authority of the challenged subsection, recalculated plaintiff's net income for the years 1974 through 1978, which resulted in no net operating losses to carry forward. The Supreme Court held that the change in law was retroactive in effect and therefore unconstitutional. The State cannot change a law in 1979 and compel a recalculation of tax returns filed for 1974 through 1978 based on the new law effective for the first time in 1979. First Fed. S&L Ass'n v. Dept. of Revenue, 200 M 358, 654 P2d 496, 39 St. Rep. 1802 (1982).

Net Operating Loss — Incorporation of Federal Law: Prior to the 1971 amendment to 15-31-114 that specifically provided for a net operating loss deduction, a net operating loss deduction was allowable since 15-31-113 incorporates section 172 of the Federal Internal Revenue Code for the purposes of determining net income. Lazy JD Cattle Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 40, 504 P2d 287 (1972).

Net Operating Loss — No Retroactive Repeal: The 1971 amendment to 15-31-114 did not retroactively repeal the net operating loss deduction allowed under the definition of net income in 15-31-113. Lazy JD Cattle Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 40, 504 P2d 287 (1972).

ARM 42.23.313 Filing requirements upon dissolution, withdrawal, or cessation of business.

Case Notes

Period Covered by Tax: Under former law, when foreign corporation engaged in business in the state from April 1934, continuously until December 1937, when it ceased doing business, having paid the corporation license tax fee in 1935, 1936, and 1937, refusing to pay in 1938 on the ground that its 1937 payment was for 1937, the state erroneously contended the 1937 payment was for 1936. Under this section (before amendment), the tax is an excise or license and not an income tax, the tax paid in 1937 being for the year 1937 measured by the company's business done in 1936, and not having done any business in 1938 it owed nothing to the state. St. v. J. C. Maguire Constr. Co., 113 M 324, 125 P2d 433 (1942).

Applicability: Section 8, Ch. 226, L. 2001, provided: "[This act] applies to tax years beginning after December 31, 2001, and to contributions to qualified endowments made after December 31, 2001."

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 537, L. 1997, provided: "WHEREAS, charitable endowments are permanent savings accounts, the income from which is perpetually committed to charitable purposes; and

WHEREAS, Montana-based charitable endowments can grow over time to become significant resources capable of funding many unanticipated and unmet needs of, and creating new opportunities for, Montana's citizens and their communities; and

WHEREAS, Montana's relatively weak tradition of endowed philanthropy can be demonstrated by comparing our state with the other 49 states, in that Montana ranks 44th in population and 41st in per capita income, but ranks 48th in foundation assets and 49th in foundation giving; and

WHEREAS, a planned gift is a type of charitable contribution that has the following three characteristics: first, it is composed typically of assets saved over the contributor's lifetime; second, it is conferred in connection with a carefully considered estate plan; and third, it transfers assets of the contributor to a charity prior to the contributor's death; and

WHEREAS, although planned gifts would appear to offer genuine financial potential for creating and expanding charitable endowments in Montana, in reality, planned gifts are so infrequently contributed in Montana that endowments in our state are not growing as fast as they are in other states; and

WHEREAS, planned gifts might be used more in funding charitable endowments in Montana if contributors could offset a significant portion of their gifts against their Montana income tax liabilities; and

WHEREAS, over the long term, income distributed from endowments can help achieve community goals and objectives when current funding from state and local government budgets may be limited; and

WHEREAS, local charitable endowments currently exist in almost every Montana community, and the existence of these widespread endowments offers everyone in Montana an opportunity to contribute endowed funding for their local communities; and

WHEREAS, community-based endowments in Montana have long-term potential to benefit all Montana communities by developing creative solutions to help individual communities meet growing needs and by helping these communities find transitions to self-sufficiency; and

WHEREAS, earnings from charitable endowments in Montana are distributed by volunteer boards of diverse community leaders to meet emerging community needs in such areas as education, arts and culture, social services, economic development, and health and the environment; and

WHEREAS, government cannot meet, nor should it be expected to meet, all of the needs of the state's communities because of its limited financial resources and because each community is in a better position to determine its own existing and future needs and opportunities; and

WHEREAS, tax credits provide financial incentives that encourage contributions for the establishment or expansion of charitable endowments in Montana; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature limits the tax credit created by [this act] [15-30-166, 15-30-167, 15-31-161, and 15-31-162] to qualified permanent endowments held by tax-exempt organizations or by banks or trust companies on behalf of tax-exempt organizations; and

WHEREAS, for the purpose of renewing the tax credit created by [this act] [15-30-166, 15-30-167, 15-31-161, and 15-31-162], it is the intent of the 55th Legislature that the state's cost of administering the tax credit may not exceed 5% of the total annual credits claimed."

Effective Date — Retroactive Applicability: Section 8, Ch. 537, L. 1997 provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval [approved May 5, 1997] and applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to tax years beginning after December 31, 1996."

Department Decision to Include Overflight Mileage in Apportionment Formula — Noncompliance With MAPA: The unilateral administrative decision of a Department of Revenue auditor to include an airline's nonstop flyover mileage in the numerator of the statutory apportionment formula qualified as a rule under 2-4-102 and was subject to the notice and hearing requirements of 2-4-302 in order to be valid under the Montana Administrative Procedure Act. Inapplicable if Gross Business Within the State Not Determined: Under former law, the predecessor to this part did not apply to an action to recover taxes paid by a domestic corporation where controversy was whether interest on obligations of nonresidents, collected outside the state and forwarded to the principal office in Montana should be considered as income within the state, since, until the interest payments had been determined to be income within or without the state, the gross business within and without the state could not be established, and until these two factors were known, the method of segregation formerly provided by the statute could not be applied. Case Notes

Unitary Business Assessment Upheld: After the Supreme Court's decision upholding the State Tax Appeal Board's ruling that assessment as a unitary business was proper, in Ward Paper Box Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 196 M 87, 638 P2d 1053, 38 St. Rep. 4147 (1981), Ward was purchased by Russell Stover Candies, Inc. Russell Stover appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, which vacated judgment and remanded to Montana for further consideration in light of two recent cases in which the U.S. Supreme Court held subsidiaries to be separate businesses, and since no relationship existed between the subsidiary and the transaction of business in the taxing state, due process was violated. The Montana court distinguished the cases, saying the Montana ranches were active operations of Ward and were formally part of the Ward corporation. The most important factor, however, was that the ranches had very little independence from the overall Ward operation. They had no capacity to operate independently. All bookkeeping and all major decisions were controlled by the home office. The state was correct in taxing Ward, based on appropriation of Ward's total income. Russell Stover Candies, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 204 M 122, 665 P2d 198, 40 St. Rep. 712 (1983).

Federal Due Process Not Violated: The state's taxation of income derived in interstate commerce meets federal due process requirements since the corporation availed itself of the privilege of doing business within the state and was a unitary business within and without the state; citing Mobil Oil Corp. v. Comm'r of Taxes, 445 US 425, 63 L Ed 2d 510, 100 S Ct 1223 (1980). Ward Paper Box Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 196 M 87, 638 P2d 1053, 38 St. Rep. 2147 (1981).

Similar Administrative Rule in Effect Before 1974: Although subsection (2) of 15-31-301 was created by a 1974 amendment, it applies to the period of dispute (1971-1975) because a similar administrative rule was in effect prior to the amendment and the rule was not inconsistent with the section as it existed prior to amendment. Ward Paper Box Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 196 M 87, 638 P2d 1053, 38 St. Rep. 2147 (1981).

Unitary Business — Cattle Ranches and Paper Products Operation: A corporation consisted of seven divisions; five divisions outside the state produced and marketed paper products; two divisions within the state operated cattle ranches. The corporation was considered a unitary business within and without the state for purposes of apportionment of business income. The in-state operations were dependent upon the out-of-state operations for administrative services, management decisions, and financial assistance when ranch funds were insufficient; they contributed to out-of-state operations by providing short-term investment income and tax writeoffs. Ward Paper Box Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 196 M 87, 638 P2d 1053, 38 St. Rep. 2147 (1981).

Authority to Adopt Regulations: The Department of Revenue had the authority to adopt rules concerning the apportionment of corporate net income derived from sources both within and without the state based on a "business vs. nonbusiness" test. Dept. of Revenue v. Am. Smelting & Ref. Co., 173 M 316, 567 P2d 901 (1977).

Case Notes

Use of State-to-State Method in Calculating Sales Factor Applicable to Delivery of Intrastate Packages: The State Tax Appeal Board properly applied the state-to-state revenue analysis method, although misnamed the adjusted revenue method, in calculating the sales factor applicable in determining revenue earned from intrastate packages both picked up and delivered in Montana. Dept. of Revenue v. United Parcel Serv., Inc., 252 M 476, 830 P2d 1259, 49 St. Rep. 20 (1992).

Nonstop Flyover Miles — No Authority for Inclusion in Numerator of Apportionment Formula: The language of 15-31-312 and ARM 42.26.264 expresses no intent to consider activity other than that in Montana; therefore, the Department of Revenue had no statutory authority to include in the numerator of the apportionment formula those miles flown by an airline as nonstop flights that did not take off or land in Montana or have contact with the state. NW. Airlines, Inc. v. St. Tax Appeal Bd., 221 M 441, 720 P2d 676, 43 St. Rep. 959 (1986).

Unitary Business Assessment Upheld: After the Supreme Court's decision upholding the State Tax Appeal Board's ruling that assessment as a unitary business was proper, in Ward Paper Box Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 196 M 87, 638 P2d 1053, 38 St. Rep. 4147 (1981), Ward was purchased by Russell Stover Candies, Inc. Russell Stover appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, which vacated judgment and remanded to Montana for further consideration in light of two recent cases in which the U.S. Supreme Court held subsidiaries to be separate businesses, and since no relationship existed between the subsidiary and the transaction of business in the taxing state, due process was violated. The Montana court distinguished the cases, saying the Montana ranches were active operations of Ward and were formally part of the Ward corporation. The most important factor, however, was that the ranches had very little independence from the overall Ward operation. They had no capacity to operate independently. All bookkeeping and all major decisions were controlled by the home office. The state was correct in taxing Ward, based on appropriation of Ward's total income. Russell Stover Candies, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 204 M 122, 665 P2d 198, 40 St. Rep. 712 (1983).

Mileage Method as Inequitable Representation of State Business Activity: This section requires an equitable representation of a taxpayer's business activity in the state. However, in this case, the mileage method promulgated in an administrative rule implementing this section was not an equitable method of calculating defendant's income-producing activity for the sales factor portion of the formula. Defendant's petition for an alternative method of apportionment under this section was appropriate. Dept. of Revenue v. United Parcel Serv., Inc., 252 M 476, 830 P2d 1259, 49 St. Rep. 20 (1992).

Multistate Taxpayers Engaged in Unitary Business: The Supreme Court held that when corporate taxpayers are engaged in a unitary business, sales by the corporation of temporary cash investments are not to be reported by them for Montana's corporation license tax or income tax purposes as included in gross sales; except for the net gain from such sales, the total amounts of these sales should be excluded from the formula determining the unitary business's income for corporation license tax reporting. If any tax due under this chapter is not paid when due, by reason of extension granted or otherwise, interest shall be added thereto at the rate of 12% per annum from the due date until paid"; inserted (2) requiring quarterly estimated payments by taxpayers subject to corporate license or income tax who have annual state tax liabilities of or in excess of $5,000; inserted (3) providing that applicability of section to taxable years of less than 12 months is pursuant to Department rules; inserted (4) allowing corporation election to pay estimated tax before due date; and made minor change in phraseology. Amendment effective July 17, 1989.

Applicability: Section 15, Ch. 9, Sp. L. June 1989, provided that this section applies to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1989.

1981 Amendment: Increased the interest on delinquent corporate license tax from 9% to 12%.

Applicability: Section 2, Ch. 182, L. 1981, provided: "This act applies to corporate taxes under Title 15, chapter 31, that become due on or after May 15, 1981, or that become due prior to May 15, 1981, and remain unpaid on or after May 15, 1981. 2005 Amendment: Chapter 594 in (2) in first sentence at beginning inserted reference to penalty and after "assessment" substituted "is calculated" for "shall bear interest", inserted second sentence related to adding penalty and interest to deficiency, and in third sentence substituted "subsection (1)" for "this subsection"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2005.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 594, L. 2005, provided: "WHEREAS, the Fifty-Sixth Legislature enacted legislation establishing uniform provisions for the assessment of penalties for late filings of tax returns and other statements and for assessing penalty and interest for delinquent taxes and fees under Titles 15 and 16 of the Montana Code Annotated and certain other taxes and fees; and

WHEREAS, the uniform assessment provisions related to penalties and interest do not apply to every tax or fee imposed under Title 15 and administered by the Department of Revenue; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Revenue's Integrated Revenue Information System is designed to ensure that the state's tax laws are applied fairly and consistently; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the State of Montana and taxpayers to expand the application of the uniform method of assessing penalties and interest."

Applicability: Section 43, Ch. 594, L. 2005, provided: "(1) Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3), [this act] applies on and after July 1, 2005.

(2) [Section 3] [15-1-216, version effective January 1, 2007] applies to penalties assessed against taxes or fees due for tax reporting periods beginning after December 31, 2006.

(3) [Section 3] [15-1-216, version effective January 1, 2007] applies to interest computed under 15-1-216 assessed on taxes or fees owing after December 31, 2006, regardless of the tax reporting period for which the taxes or fees are owed."

1991 Amendment: In (1), in first sentence, inserted reference to 15-1-211, inserted second sentence relating to review under 15-1-211, and deleted remainder of subsection that read: "Within 30 days after the mailing of the notice, the taxpayer may file with the department a written protest against the proposed additional tax, setting forth the grounds upon which the protest is based, and may request in its protest an oral hearing or an opportunity to present additional evidence relating to its tax liability. If no protest is filed, the amount of the additional tax proposed to be assessed becomes final upon the expiration of the 30-day period. If such protest is filed, the department shall reconsider the proposed assessment and, if the taxpayer has so requested, shall grant the taxpayer an oral hearing. After consideration of the protest and the evidence presented in the event of an oral hearing, the department's action upon the protest is final when it mails notice of its action to the taxpayer"; and in (2) deleted first sentence that read: "When a deficiency is determined and the tax becomes final, the department shall mail notice and demand to the taxpayer for the payment thereof, and the tax shall be due and payable at the expiration of 10 days from the date of such notice and demand".

Applicability: Section 31, Ch. 811, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] applies to requests for refunds received by and the notices of additional tax issued by the department of revenue pursuant to [section 1] [15-1-211] after December 31, 1991."

Case Notes

Evidentiary Hearing Not Contemplated: Section 15-31-503 does not contemplate an evidentiary hearing but merely an opportunity for the taxpayer to request a review of the administrative procedures used to calculate the assessment and to present evidence in support of his tax calculations. Thus, the Department of Revenue is not entitled to further discovery after entering a deficiency assessment and before the protest hearing, and the MAPA does not apply. W.R. Grace & Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 173 M 339, 567 P2d 913 (1977).

Failure to Report Change in Federal Taxable Income — When Federal Changes Become Final: The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) determined through an audit that plaintiff owed additional federal taxes for 1995 and 1996. Plaintiff appealed the assessment, but the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the decision in 2003. The state Department of Revenue received two IRS reports in 2004 reflecting the changes in plaintiff's 1995 and 1996 taxable income and in 2004 issued plaintiff an assessment of additional state taxes due. Plaintiff appealed the assessment, arguing that the assessment had been issued beyond the statute of limitations in 15-31-509, but the State Tax Appeal Board (STAB) concluded that because plaintiff failed to file an amended Montana return at the time that it filed an amended federal return, the Department was allowed to assess tax liability under 15-31-544 and that the assessment was not barred by the statute of limitations. The District Court affirmed the STAB decision, and plaintiff appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. Under the 1995 version of 15-31-506 in effect at the time, plaintiff was required to report the change in its 1995 and 1996 federal taxable income to the state within 90 days of receiving notice of the change. Plaintiff did not file the required report, but argued on appeal that the statute of limitations expired prior to the state's issuance of an assessment for those years. The District Court erred in concluding that the assessment was not barred by the statute of limitations in 15-31-544 because that provision applies only when a taxpayer fails to file a return or files a fraudulent return. However, under 15-31-509, the limitations prescribed for giving notice of a proposed assessment of an additional tax does not apply when a taxpayer fails to file a report of changes in federal taxable income as required by 15-31-506 until 5 years after the federal changes become final. In this case, the federal changes became final when the Ninth Circuit Court issued its opinion in 2003, so the Department's 2004 assessment was issued well within the 5-year limitation period and was not barred by the statute of limitations. Statute of Limitations Applicable to Claims for Corporate License Tax Refunds: The 5-year statutory time limit within which to claim a refund of corporate license taxes (as provided in this section prior to 1997 amendment) begins running on the date established in 15-31-111(2). Although 15-31-111 allows a taxpayer to automatically extend for up to 6 months the period of time for filing, the extension is not included in determining when the limitations period begins to run. The extension simply gives the taxpayer additional time to prepare the return; it does not change the day prescribed for filing the return. Norfolk Holdings, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 249 M 40, 813 P2d 460, 48 St. Rep. 569 (1991).

Corporate License Tax — Limitations on Assessment Where No Return — No Revival of Impliedly Repealed Section by Internal Reference: The 2-year Statute of Limitations in 27-2-211 applied to the assessment of corporate license tax for corporations that failed to file a return for the reason that the Supreme Court in St. v. King Colony Ranch, 137 M 145, 350 P2d 841 (1960), had held that sec. 1, Ch. 209, L. 1945 (amending 15-31-526), had superseded sec. 9, Ch. 166, L. 1933 (enacting 15-31-542), as to the time limitation and the Legislature, in sec. 2, Ch. 186, L. 1963 (enacting 15-31-509), though referencing 15-31-542 on an exception, had not used language to revive it; therefore 15-31-542 remained superseded or repealed. (But see 15-31-544.) Caterpillar Tractor Co., Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 194 M 537, 633 P2d 618, 38 St. Rep. 1245 (1981).

Limitation of Powers of Department — Extension Agreement: An agreement to extend the 5-year (now 3-year under 1997 amendment) period to give notice of a tax deficiency does not permit the Department of Revenue to give notice after expiration of the extension period. This section acts as a limitation on the powers of the Department and is not solely a Statute of Limitations that may be tolled simply by filing a notice of tax deficiency during the applicable period or an extension thereof. Anaconda Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 178 M 254, 583 P2d 421 (1978).

Limitation on Action of Board: Under 15-31-526, prior to the 1963 amendment, the Board of Equalization (now Department of Revenue) was limited to going back no more than 5 (now 3 years under 1997 amendment) years to recover corporation license taxes alleged to be due. 1993 Amendment: Chapter 92 in (1)(a), near beginning after "underpayment is", substituted "the amount of the required installment set forth in 15-31-502 that exceeds the amount" for "in excess of the amount of the installment that would be required to be paid if the estimated tax were equal to 80% of the tax shown on the return for the taxable year or, if no return was filed, 80% of the tax for the year over the amount"; in (1)(b), after "tax were", deleted "the lesser of the following"; deleted former (1)(b)(i) and (1)(b)(ii) precluding payment of the interest penalty if the estimated tax required to be paid was the lesser of the tax shown on the return of the corporation for the preceding taxable year if a return showing a liability for tax was filed for the preceding taxable year and the preceding year was a taxable year of 12 months or an amount equal to the tax computed at the rates applicable to the taxable year, but otherwise on the basis of the facts shown on the return of the corporation for, and the law applicable to, the preceding taxable year; and made minor changes in style.

Interest Calculable From Date Outstanding Tax Balance Due: Plaintiff's tax liability for 1999 totaled $906,844, due on May 15, 2000. As of May 15, 2000, plaintiff had paid $1,361,802 in taxes for 1999. The Department of Revenue issued a refund of $824,112 on June 7, 2001, for the overpayment. On December 16, 2002, plaintiff filed an amended 1999 tax return reporting an additional tax liability of $368,654 and enclosed a payment of $435,012 with the amended return, which covered the additional tax liability plus $66,358 in interest. The Department contended that interest should have been assessed from the original return due date of May 15, 2000, and claimed that plaintiff owed an additional $51,610 in interest. Plaintiff argued that no tax was due pursuant to this section until June 7, 2001, and that no debt was owed, even in light of the additional tax liability that was discovered later, because plaintiff had overpaid taxes by such a significant amount. The Supreme Court agreed. Once the Department issued the refund, a deficit was created, although the deficit was not discovered until the amended return was filed. After the refund, plaintiff's total taxes paid for 1999 was $538,190, so as of June 7, 2001, plaintiff had an outstanding balance of $368,654. Thus, the date that the outstanding tax balance became due for purposes of this section was June 7, 2001, and interest on the outstanding balance should have been calculated from that date forward. Prohibition on Access to Corporate Tax Records Affirmed Absent Constitutional Challenge: A state senator requested certain corporate tax information from the Legislative Auditor, and the auditor compiled the information for tax year 2002 after receiving information from the Department of Revenue. The senator disclosed the information to the public. The senator subsequently requested that the Department provide similar information for other tax years, but the Department declined, citing the prohibition against disclosure of corporate tax information in this section. The senator petitioned the District Court to order disclosure of the information, but the court denied the petition. On appeal, the senator asserted that the records were subject to disclosure pursuant to the public's constitutional right to know and, without challenging the statute, dismissed the statutory prohibition on grounds that the statute must yield to constitutional law. The Supreme Court agreed with this cardinal premise, but noted that a statute is presumed constitutional unless unconstitutionality is demonstrated beyond a reasonable doubt. Absent a direct constitutional challenge to this section, the court declined to disturb the statutory prohibition against disclosure of corporate tax records. Elliott v. Corporate License Tax — Limitations on Assessment Where No Return — No Revival of Impliedly Repealed Section by Internal Reference: The 2-year Statute of Limitations in 27-2-211 applied to the assessment of corporate license tax for corporations that failed to file a return for the reason that the Supreme Court in St. v. King Colony Ranch, 137 M 145, 350 P2d 841 (1960), had held that sec. 1, Ch. 209, L. 1945 (amending 15-31-526), had superseded sec. 9, Ch. 166, L. 1933 (enacting 15-31-542), as to the time limitation and the Legislature, in sec. 2, Ch. 186, L. 1963 (enacting 15-31-509), though referencing 15-31-542 on an exception, had not used language to revive it; therefore 15-31-542 remained superseded or repealed. WHEREAS, the Department of Revenue's Integrated Revenue Information System is designed to ensure that the state's tax laws are applied fairly and consistently; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the State of Montana and taxpayers to expand the application of the uniform method of assessing penalties and interest."

Applicability: Section 43, Ch. 594, L. 2005, provided: "(1) Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3), [this act] applies on and after July 1, 2005.

(2) [Section 3] [15-1-216, version effective January 1, 2007] applies to penalties assessed against taxes or fees due for tax reporting periods beginning after December 31, 2006.

Interim Study Bill: House Bill 17 (Ch. 589, L. 1981) was the result of an interim study conducted by the Revenue Oversight Committee (now Revenue and Transportation Interim Committee), reported in "Revenue Oversight Committee: Miscellaneous Studies", published by the Montana Legislative Council, November 1980.

Case Notes

Time of Taxpayer Delay Added to Period for Which No Interest Due on Refund Overpayment: This section establishes a 6-month period from the date that a return is due or filed, whichever is later, during which no interest is allowed on a refund. Plaintiff filed a return on October 13, 2000. According to the 6-month "safe harbor" period, if the Department of Revenue issued a refund to plaintiff by April 13, 2001, then plaintiff would not have been entitled to any interest on the overpayment. However, the refund was not issued until June 7, 2001, so plaintiff claimed to be entitled to interest. The Department contended that because plaintiff delayed the processing of the return by 84 days after the Department requested additional information, the 6-month period should be extended by that amount of time, which would place the June 7, 2001, payment within the safe harbor period and preclude the payment of interest on the refund. The Supreme Court agreed. When a taxpayer fails to respond to the Department's request for information within 30 days, interest will not accrue during the delay, and the running of the 6-month safe harbor is tolled during the delay. Thus, plaintiff was not entitled to interest on its overpayment. U.S. West, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 2008 MT 125, 343 M 1, 183 P3d 16 (2008).

15-31-532. Application for refund — appeal from denial.

Compiler's Comments

1991 Amendment: At end of first sentence, after "notify the taxpayer", substituted "as provided in 15-1-211" for "accordingly", deleted former second and third sentences that read: "At the expiration of 30 days from the mailing of the notice, the department's action shall become final unless within the 30-day period the taxpayer appeals in writing from the action of said department to the state tax appeal board. If such appeal is made, the board shall grant the taxpayer an oral hearing. After consideration of the appeal and evidence presented, the board shall forthwith mail notice to the taxpayer of its determination. The board's determination is final when it mails notice of its action to the taxpayer", and inserted last sentence relating to review under 15-1-211.

Applicability: Section 31, Ch. 811, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] applies to requests for refunds received by and the notices of additional tax issued by the department of revenue pursuant to [section 1] [15-1-211] after December 31, 1991."

Case Notes

Failure to Report Change in Federal Taxable Income — When Federal Changes Become Final: The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) determined through an audit that plaintiff owed additional federal taxes for 1995 and 1996. Plaintiff appealed the assessment, but the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the decision in 2003. The state Department of Revenue received two IRS reports in 2004 reflecting the changes in plaintiff's 1995 and 1996 taxable income and in 2004 issued plaintiff an assessment of additional state taxes due. Plaintiff appealed the assessment, arguing that the assessment had been issued beyond the statute of limitations in 15-31-509, but the State Tax Appeal Board (STAB) concluded that because plaintiff failed to file an amended Montana return at the time that it filed an amended federal return, the Department was allowed to assess tax liability under 15-31-544 and that the assessment was not barred by the statute of limitations. The District Court affirmed the STAB decision, and plaintiff appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. Under the 1995 version of 15-31-506 in effect at the time, plaintiff was required to report the change in its 1995 and 1996 federal taxable income to the state within 90 days of receiving notice of the change. Plaintiff did not file the required report, but argued on appeal that the statute of limitations expired prior to the state's issuance of an assessment for those years. The District Court erred in concluding that the assessment was not barred by the statute of limitations in 15-31-544 because that provision applies only when a taxpayer fails to file a return or files a fraudulent return. However, under 15-31-509, the limitations prescribed for giving notice of a proposed assessment of an additional tax does not apply when a taxpayer fails to file a report of changes in federal taxable income as required by 15-31-506 until 5 years after the federal changes become final. In this case, the federal changes became final when the Ninth Circuit Court issued its opinion in 2003, so the Department's 2004 assessment was issued well within the 5-year limitation period and was not barred by the statute of limitations. Frontier Chevrolet v. Dept. of Revenue, 2008 MT 191, 344 M 18, 186 P3d 219 (2008).

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 467, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it is anticipated that rulemaking proceedings will be required for implementation.

Montana currently has nine communities that exceed the state and federal ambient air quality standards for particulate matter smaller than 10 microns in diameter (PM-10) and two communities that exceed carbon monoxide standards. Several other communities have PM-10 concentrations approaching the ambient standards.

It is the intention of the legislature that the tax credit available for the cost of purchasing and installing a low emission wood or biomass combustion device be restricted to only the most efficient devices available on the market. While replacing older wood stoves with newer low-emission wood stoves may reduce ambient levels of PM-10, carbon monoxide, and other pollutants, the legislature finds that the current tax incentives do not encourage the improvements in efficiency and reductions in pollutants that will be required in the future to improve air quality.

While it restricts the availability of these tax incentives, the legislature finds it appropriate to increase the amount of the incentive available for those devices that qualify. This action is intended to stimulate the availability of the more efficient devices and further promote their use. Changes are also being made, as appropriate, to preserve the application of other incentives to the installation and production of these devices."

"Nonresidential Structure" to Refer to Entire System: The exemption given to each "nonresidential structure" in 15-6-201 refers to each energy generating system, not to its individual parts. The reference to nonfossil forms of energy generation is defined in 15-32-102 to be a system for capturing or converting energy into usable sources. The legislative intent behind 15-6-201 indicates the intention of encouraging, through tax incentives, the development of alternative energy systems. Whether a single structure contains all the components that generate energy, thereby making it a system, must be made on a case-by-case basis. 40 A.G. Op. 6 (1983).

1981 Amendment: Inserted "or credit" after "no deduction" in the first sentence of (1).

Commissioner Correction: Because of rearrangement by codification, the language in subsection (2) was modified by the Code Commissioner, 1979.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 534 (Ch. 652, L. 1979) provided: "In adopting rules to determine the eligibility for tax credits of recognized nonfossil forms of energy generation that produce passive solar heat, the department shall rely on the standards adopted, if any, by the Internal Revenue Service pursuant to the National Energy Act and on those adopted by the states of California and New Mexico. The department of revenue shall adapt these standards to fit passive solar systems suited for Montana's climate.

A passive solar system includes only those portions and components of a building that are expressly designed and required for the collection, storage, and distribution of solar energy and that are not standard components of a conventional building. Thus, the conventional amount of south-facing windows or a standard mass wall could not be included as part of a passive solar system, but additional south-facing windows or additional thickenings to a standard mass wall used for solar heat storage could be included."

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 467, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it is anticipated that rulemaking proceedings will be required for implementation.

Montana currently has nine communities that exceed the state and federal ambient air quality standards for particulate matter smaller than 10 microns in diameter (PM-10) and two communities that exceed carbon monoxide standards. Several other communities have PM-10 concentrations approaching the ambient standards.

It is the intention of the legislature that the tax credit available for the cost of purchasing and installing a low emission wood or biomass combustion device be restricted to only the most efficient devices available on the market. While replacing older wood stoves with newer low-emission wood stoves may reduce ambient levels of PM-10, carbon monoxide, and other pollutants, the legislature finds that the current tax incentives do not encourage the improvements in efficiency and reductions in pollutants that will be required in the future to improve air quality.

While it restricts the availability of these tax incentives, the legislature finds it appropriate to increase the amount of the incentive available for those devices that qualify. This action is intended to stimulate the availability of the more efficient devices and further promote their use. Changes are also being made, as appropriate, to preserve the application of other incentives to the installation and production of these devices."

It is the intent of the legislature that the department review and incorporate into its rules, as appropriate, the testing criteria and procedures for wood stove certification contained in sections 340-21-100 through 340-21-190 of the Oregon Administrative Rules. None of the rules adopted by the department to implement this bill may regulate the use of wood stoves. 15-32-609. Recycled material qualifying for deduction — purpose — rulemaking.

Compiler's Comments

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 568, L. 1993, provided: "A statement of intent is included in this bill because [section 2] [15-32-609] requires rulemaking by the department of revenue. The department is to conduct rulemaking to define the recycled materials that qualify for a tax deduction under 15-32-610.

The goal of amending 15-32-601 and of adopting rules to implement the amendment is to reduce solid waste and pollution. The greater the quantity of material reclaimed, the longer landfills will last and the less pollution they will create. The best way to reduce landfill material is to reclaim postconsumer material for reuse. The rules of the department should provide for using the maximum postconsumer reclaimed material content possible when defining the reclaimed material eligible for additional tax deduction.

It is intended that the department keep abreast of the recycling industry and try to encourage maximum use of recycled materials through the use of the tax deduction. The department should define recycled material by the amount and type of reclaimable material, as defined in 15-32-601, that it contains. The amount of material may be measured by volume, weight, fiber content, or other applicable standard. Recycled material may also be defined by the type of reclaimed material it contains, such as postconsumer, de-inked, or other applicable type.

The amounts and types of reclaimed material should follow industry standards so that industry labeling, as certified by appropriate bodies, can be used by purchasers to ensure that the products they are purchasing meet departmental deductibility definitions."

1995 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 542, L. 1995, provided: "This bill extends by 6 years the termination date for the recycling tax credit provided for in 15-32-602 and the recycling tax deduction provided for in 15-32-610. It also expands the application of the credit to include investments in equipment used to treat soils contaminated by hazardous wastes. In order to implement the tax credit for capital investments in property purchased to collect or process reclaimed material, including soil that has been contaminated by hazardous wastes, provided for under 15-32-602, the department of revenue shall make a determination about the equipment and processes that qualify. It is the intent of the legislature that the department of health and environmental sciences [now department of environmental quality], upon request, assist the department of revenue in making that determination."

Extension of Termination Date: Section 4, Ch. 542, L. 1995, amended sec. 9, Ch. 712, L. 1991, to read: "[This act] terminates December 31, 2001." The effect of the amendment is to extend the termination date of this section from December 31, 1995, to December 31, 2001.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 712, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is necessary for this bill because [section 5] [section 6 after amendment, now this section] grants rulemaking authority to the department of revenue. This bill allows rulemaking to proceed prior to the effective date of the act to allow the department ample time prior to the time the bill goes into effect to hold hearings and elicit the views of taxpayers, the public, and groups interested in the reclamation and recycling of materials.

The legislature expects the department to adopt rules that will promote the reclamation of materials that would normally be discarded, by encouraging the collection, processing, and reuse of reclaimable and recycled materials by businesses.

The bill addresses four levels of business involvement in the reclamation and recycling of materials:

(1) Retail businesses are encouraged to purchase equipment to collect reclaimable material from consumers.

(2) Recyclers are encouraged to purchase equipment to collect reclaimable material from businesses and other sources and process the material.

(3) Manufacturers are encouraged to purchase equipment to manufacture products from reclaimed material.

(4) All businesses are offered an additional business-related tax deduction to use recycled products in the course of their business.

The scope of the business activity to qualify for a tax credit should be broad. Retail grocery stores and other businesses should be encouraged to collect reclaimable material by receiving a tax credit for equipment they purchase to collect the material, even if they do not directly receive a business-related profit from the equipment or collection operation. Recyclers are encouraged to purchase collection and processing equipment, and manufacturers are encouraged to purchase equipment to make products from reclaimed material.

The rules should be inflexible in allowing dual roles for equipment—the qualifying equipment should be used primarily for the purposes of this bill. The rules should be flexible in determining the specifics of what are to be defined as reclaimable materials and recycled materials. The in-state advantages to building industry based upon reclamation and recycling may have local and interstate benefits that far outweigh the cost of a tax credit and additional deduction."

CHAPTER 35
COAL SEVERANCE TAX

Chapter Case Notes

State Taxation of Coal in Indian Ceded Strip — Crow Coal Case: The state was not required to pay taxes that it collected, plus interest, to the Crow Tribe for taxes paid by a non-Indian mining company that were imposed on coal that was owned by the tribe but was not within the Crow Reservation. The tribe based its case upon assumpsit and constructive trust because the state taxes, which were illegally collected, unjustly enriched the state and burdened the tribe's economic interests by decreasing the sale of Crow coal. The U.S. Supreme Court held that because the taxes were paid by the mining company, which forfeited entitlement to a tax refund, and that because the tribe could not have imposed a tax during the time in question, disgorgement of Montana taxes was not warranted and damages could not be granted since the tribe sought only disgorgement to the exclusion of damages. Mont. v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 523 US 696 (1998).

Coal Severance Tax Not in Contravention of Federal Constitutional or Statutory Policy: The Montana coal severance tax in its present form is a lawful exercise of this state's taxing authority. The Montana Supreme Court upheld the tax stating that, whether as a question of this state's power to levy any tax or its power to levy a tax at the rate set forth, there has been no preemption by the federal government in the field of coal severance taxation, or any national policy derived from Congressional enactments pursuant to the constitution with which Montana's tax conflicts. Part Case Notes

1999 Coal Producer's License Tax Violative of Constitutional Coal Severance Tax Provisions: By simple majority vote, the 1999 Legislature passed House Bill No. 260, which created a license tax on the production of coal and allocated revenue from the tax to various state programs. Several legislators challenged the validity of the new tax, contending that by creating a license tax on the same taxable event for which the state coal severance tax is imposed and then providing a credit against the severance tax in an amount slightly greater than the amount of the license tax, the Legislature simply diverted what in substance and character are coal severance taxes to purposes other than the coal tax trust fund, in violation of Art. IX, sec. 5, Mont. Const. The Supreme Court agreed, noting that the only difference between the coal severance tax and the coal producer's license tax was the purpose for which each was allocated. A tax on the production of natural resources is characterized by the nature of the activity upon which the tax is imposed, and the effect of a legislative assessment is more important than its label in determining the character of the tax. Legislative imposition of a tax can become unlawful when done to accomplish an unlawful end, which was the case in this instance because the coal producer's license tax diverted production-based coal severance taxes for an unconstitutional purpose. Although the Legislature has the authority to determine the percentage of the coal severance tax, in this case, the Legislature simply gave a different name to the same tax and thereby diverted revenue to causes other than the coal tax trust fund. A coal severance tax by any other name is just as dedicated. By diverting and allocating coal severance tax revenue in a manner contrary to the requirement in Art. IX, sec. 5, and by doing so without the required three-fourths vote of each house of the Legislature, House Bill No. 260 violated the constitution; thus, the state was enjoined from enforcing House Bill No. 260. Mont. v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 523 US 696 (1998).

History of Crow Case:

In 1978, the Crow Tribe brought action against Montana, seeking declaratory and injunctive relief against the imposition of the state's 30% coal severance and gross proceeds taxes on tribally owned coal mined from the Crow Reservation and the "ceded strip" by non-Indian lessees. While the District Court dismissed the action (469 F. Supp. 154 (D.C. Mont. 1979)), the Ninth Circuit Court, on appeal by the tribe, reversed and remanded (650 F2d 1104 (9th Cir. 1981), as amended by 665 F2d 1390 (9th Cir. 1982) (Crow I)). On remand, the District Court upheld the state's application of taxes for coal mined in the "ceded strip", but it abstained from deciding whether taxes could be imposed on the reservation boundaries (657 F. Supp. 573 (D.C. Mont. 1985)). On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court reversed, ruling that federal law and policy preempted state taxation and that the taxes infringed on tribal sovereignty. The court also held that the question of whether coal mined on the reservation would be subject to taxation was a justiciable controversy (819 F2d 895 (9th Cir. 1987) (Crow II)). On appeal by the state, the Supreme Court affirmed the decision of the Ninth Circuit Court (108 S Ct 685 (1988)).

After Crow II, the District Court awarded the tribe over $23 million in severance taxes that the lessee Westmoreland had paid after 1982. The tribe then sought restitution of some $57 million in total taxes paid to the state and county between 1975 and 1982. The District Court denied the state's motion to dismiss the claim and certified an order for interlocutory appeal. After initially granting the leave to appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court dismissed the appeal, ruling that the states argument concerning privity had been resolved against the state in Crow II. Crow Tribe of Indians v. Mont., 969 F2d 848 (9th Cir. 1992) (Crow III).

After trial, the District Court denied relief, ruling that the tribe was not entitled to restitution. On appeal, a three-judge panel of the Ninth Circuit Court reversed, concluding that the District Court's denial of equitable relief was erroneously based on considerations explicitly rejected in the previous court decisions. The case was remanded to District Court for entry of an order directing the state and county to return the improperly collected taxes and for consideration by the court of the tribe's unresolved request for prejudgment interest. Crow Tribe of Indians v. Mont., 92 F3d 826 (9th Cir. 1996) (Crow IV), reversed and remanded in Mont. v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 523 US 696 (1998).

Case Notes

Coal Contract Sales Price Includes Certain Additives — Plain Language of Statute and Legislative History Confirm Taxation of Coal Additives Prior to Shipment: Following audits of the plaintiff coal mine operator for 2005-2007, the Department of Revenue assessed additional coal severance taxes and penalties. In addition to a valuation issue, the assessment included recovery of taxes on two items that were added to coal before it was shipped on a train. The additives included a freeze-proofing agent and dust suppressants. The plaintiff responded by filing a declaratory relief action in District Court, alleging that the additives should not be part of the sales price, and that legislative enactments were being applied retroactively. The District Court held that the additives were subject to coal taxes based on both the plain language of the definition "contract sales price" in 15-35-102 and the legislative history. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed, reasoning that the statute was broad enough to assess taxes based on the costs associated with the preparation of coal for shipment, and that later legislative amendments provided further explanation of this practice. Cloud Peak Energy Resources, LLC v. St., 2015 MT 10, 378 Mont. 54, 340 P.3d 1258.

Deduction for Tribal Tax Not Permitted: The plaintiff, who operated a mine on tribal land, paid coal severance and gross proceeds taxes to the tribe. The plaintiff also paid Montana's Resource Indemnity Trust and Ground Water Assessment Tax (RITT) to the Department of Revenue. In paying the RITT, the plaintiff attempted to deduct tribal taxes from the contract sales price used to calculate the RITT. The RITT calculation specifically did not include deductions for payments to a tribal entity, but it included a deduction for other local governments. The Supreme Court held that because the deduction for other local governments specifically did not include tribal governments, the RITT did not allow a deduction for tribal taxes. Westmoreland Resources Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 2014 MT 212, 376 Mont. 180, 330 P.3d 1188.

Apportionment of Tax From Coal Mine Spanning Two Counties Proper: Musselshell County filed an action against Yellowstone County for a declaratory judgment that the Department of Revenue improperly allocated a portion of the tax collected on coal from the Signal Peak mine, which spans both counties. Musselshell County argued that while coal is extracted from both counties, the coal is shipped only from Musselshell County and that the Department was required to adopt rules under the Montana Administrative Procedure Act to correctly apportion the proceeds. The Supreme Court held that the Legislature intended the coal gross proceeds to be apportioned between the counties in which the mine is located and that the Department was not required to adopt an administrative rule before apportioning the proceeds. Musselshell County v. Yellowstone County, 2012 MT 292, 367 Mont. 350, 291 P.3d 579.

Case Notes

1999 Coal Producer's License Tax Violative of Constitutional Coal Severance Tax Provisions: By simple majority vote, the 1999 Legislature passed House Bill No. 260, which created a license tax on the production of coal and allocated revenue from the tax to various state programs. Several legislators challenged the validity of the new tax, contending that by creating a license tax on the same taxable event for which the state coal severance tax is imposed and then providing a credit against the severance tax in an amount slightly greater than the amount of the license tax, the Legislature simply diverted what in substance and character are coal severance taxes to purposes other than the coal tax trust fund, in violation of Art. IX, sec. 5, Mont. Const. The Supreme Court agreed, noting that the only difference between the coal severance tax and the coal producer's license tax was the purpose for which each was allocated. A tax on the production of natural resources is characterized by the nature of the activity upon which the tax is imposed, and the effect of a legislative assessment is more important than its label in determining the character of the tax. Legislative imposition of a tax can become unlawful when done to accomplish an unlawful end, which was the case in this instance because the coal producer's license tax diverted production-based coal severance taxes for an unconstitutional purpose. Although the Legislature has the authority to determine the percentage of the coal severance tax, in this case, the Legislature simply gave a different name to the same tax and thereby diverted revenue to causes other than the coal tax trust fund. A coal severance tax by any other name is just as dedicated. By diverting and allocating coal severance tax revenue in a manner contrary to the requirement in Art. IX, sec. 5, and by doing so without the required three-fourths vote of each house of the Legislature, House Bill No. 260 violated the constitution; thus, the state was enjoined from enforcing House Bill No. 260. State Taxation of Coal in Indian Ceded Strip — Crow Coal Case: The state was not required to pay taxes that it collected, plus interest, to the Crow Tribe for taxes paid by a non-Indian mining company that were imposed on coal that was owned by the tribe but was not within the Crow Reservation. The tribe based its case upon assumpsit and constructive trust because the state taxes, which were illegally collected, unjustly enriched the state and burdened the tribe's economic interests by decreasing the sale of Crow coal. The U.S. Supreme Court held that because the taxes were paid by the mining company, which forfeited entitlement to a tax refund, and that because the tribe could not have imposed a tax during the time in question, disgorgement of Montana taxes was not warranted and damages could not be granted since the tribe sought only disgorgement to the exclusion of damages. Mont. v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 523 US 696 (1998).

History of Crow Case:

In 1978, the Crow Tribe brought action against Montana, seeking declaratory and injunctive relief against the imposition of the state's 30% coal severance and gross proceeds taxes on tribally owned coal mined from the Crow Reservation and the "ceded strip" by non-Indian lessees. While the District Court dismissed the action (469 F. Supp. 154 (D.C. Mont. 1979)), the Ninth Circuit Court, on appeal by the tribe, reversed and remanded (650 F2d 1104 (9th Cir. 1981), as amended by 665 F2d 1390 (9th Cir. 1982) (Crow I)). On remand, the District Court upheld the state's application of taxes for coal mined in the "ceded strip", but it abstained from deciding whether taxes could be imposed on the reservation boundaries (657 F. Supp. 573 (D.C. Mont. 1985)). On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court reversed, ruling that federal law and policy preempted state taxation and that the taxes infringed on tribal sovereignty. The court also held that the question of whether coal mined on the reservation would be subject to taxation was a justiciable controversy (819 F2d 895 (9th Cir. 1987) (Crow II)). On appeal by the state, the Supreme Court affirmed the decision of the Ninth Circuit Court (108 S Ct 685 (1988)).

After Crow II, the District Court awarded the tribe over $23 million in severance taxes that the lessee Westmoreland had paid after 1982. The tribe then sought restitution of some $57 million in total taxes paid to the state and county between 1975 and 1982. The District Court denied the state's motion to dismiss the claim and certified an order for interlocutory appeal. After initially granting the leave to appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court dismissed the appeal, ruling that the states argument concerning privity had been resolved against the state in Crow II. Crow Tribe of Indians v. Mont., 969 F2d 848 (9th Cir. 1992) (Crow III).

After trial, the District Court denied relief, ruling that the tribe was not entitled to restitution. On appeal, a three-judge panel of the Ninth Circuit Court reversed, concluding that the District Court's denial of equitable relief was erroneously based on considerations explicitly rejected in the previous court decisions. The case was remanded to District Court for entry of an order directing the state and county to return the improperly collected taxes and for consideration by the court of the tribe's unresolved request for prejudgment interest. Crow Tribe of Indians v. Mont., 92 F3d 826 (9th Cir. 1996) (Crow IV), reversed and remanded in Mont. v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 523 US 696 (1998).

Applicability of Tax to Adjustment Portion of Coal Sales Price — Commerce Clause: The contract sales price for coal was adjusted when the actual BTU content of the coal was different from the BTU content warranted by seller. The warranted BTU content determined the base price of the coal. The adjustment formula took railroad shipping charges into account and was part of the contract sales price. The coal severance and gross proceeds taxes were based on the contract sales price, and the resource indemnity tax was based on the value of the coal at the time of extraction. It was proper for the state to apply the coal severance, gross proceeds, and resource indemnity trust taxes to amounts seller received on upward price adjustments caused by higher BTU content, after deducting from the contract sales price, for purposes of the resource indemnity trust tax, the costs of hauling the coal from the mine to the railroad and preparing the coal for shipment. Seller's claim that it was taxed on the revenue received pursuant to the transportation costs component of the adjustment formula was properly denied in the lower court. Transportation costs were paid by the buyer, not the seller, the transportation cost component of the formula was based on the average transportation rate per ton and did not vary. The adjustment formula did nothing to alter the actual transportation costs. The claim that the commerce clause of the United States Constitution was violated was properly denied in the lower court because seller did not receive, and thus was not taxed on, any transportation revenue. Westmoreland Resources v. Dept. of Revenue, 263 M 303, 868 P2d 592, 51 St. Rep. 67 (1994).

Coal Severance Tax Not in Contravention of Federal Constitutional or Statutory Policy: The Montana coal severance tax in its present form is a lawful exercise of this state's taxing authority. The Montana Supreme Court upheld the tax stating that, whether as a question of this state's power to levy any tax or its power to levy a tax at the rate set forth, there has been no preemption by the federal government in the field of coal severance taxation, or any national policy derived from Congressional enactments pursuant to the constitution with which Montana's tax conflicts. Case Notes

Unconstitutionality of Department of Revenue Rule Concerning Confidentiality of Coal Severance Tax Information: Plaintiffs sought information regarding coal severance tax payments that had been routinely supplied to the Department of Revenue by coal mine operators prior to adoption of ARM 42.2.701 (now repealed), which declared certain information, such as tax returns that taxpayers are required to submit to the Department and Department-prepared documents that identify taxpayers, to be confidential. Plaintiffs challenged the rule on grounds that it violated constitutional and statutory rights to public information. The Department asserted that the rule was adopted to protect taxpayers' constitutional right to privacy and to inform the public of the Department's procedures regarding the confidentiality of tax information. The District Court found that the rule was adopted after balancing the public's right to know with the coal producers' right to privacy and that the producers had a reasonable and ongoing expectation of privacy that outweighed the public's right to know. On appeal, the Supreme Court disagreed, finding ARM 42.2.701 (now repealed) unconstitutional on its face. The rule presumes a wholesale constitutionally protected right to privacy for all taxpayers that prevails over public disclosure without balancing the taxpayers' right to privacy with the public's right to know. Prior to adoption of the rule, coal producers did not have an actual or subjective expectation of privacy in revenue information submitted to the Department. After the rule was adopted, the producers could assert a subjective expectation of privacy. However, based on a facially unconstitutional rule, the expectation was not one society would be willing to recognize as reasonable, especially when the information had been routinely available for nearly 20 years before ARM 42.2.701 (now repealed) was adopted. Neither prong of the two-part privacy test in Great Falls Tribune Co., Inc. v. Day, 1998 MT 133, 289 M 155, 959 P2d 508 (1998), having been met, a constitutionally protected privacy interest in the information was ruled out. Assoc. Press, Inc. v. Imputed Value of Coal Not Value When Loaded on Train — Similarly Negotiated Contracts Provided Value of Coal — Valuation Methodology Varies Based on Economic Conditions: Following audits of the plaintiff coal mine operator for 2005-2007, the Department of Revenue assessed additional coal severance taxes and penalties in the amount of $3,369,713. The plaintiff responded by filing a declaratory relief action in District Court, alleging that the Department's methodology in calculating the imputed fair market value of coal for non-arm's-length sales was improper under 15-35-107. The District Court ruled in favor of the plaintiff and held that when price is determined by contract it is the negotiation timeframe that should set the market value, and not the date coal is loaded on the train. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed the holding that market value was properly based on similarly negotiated contracts, but it also determined that the District Court improperly limited the Department's discretion by directing the usage of comparable sales to a negotiation timeframe that was a few months before and a few months after the contracts were executed. The Supreme Court cautioned that each case may require a different analysis depending on the economic conditions necessary to properly measure market value. Cloud Peak Energy Resources, LLC v. St., 2015 MT 10, 378 Mont. 54, 340 P.3d 1258.

Imputed Value of Coal Not Approximate of Market Value Under Market Conditions at Time of Sale — Additional Coal Tax Assessment Reversed: Following three audits of Decker Coal Co. (Decker) for 1987-92, the Department of Revenue assessed additional taxes and interest for years 1987-90. Administrative appeals were denied. Subsequently, there was an additional assessment for 1991-92, and administrative appeals were again denied. Both appeals were consolidated before the State Tax Appeal Board (STAB), which granted the Department's motion for summary judgment. Upon judicial review, the District Court affirmed the STAB decision, and Decker appealed to the Supreme Court. Under the terms of Decker's 1974 long-term coal sales contract with Commonwealth Edison (ComEd), coal was to be supplied at a base price that would be adjusted over time by a predetermined escalator. During the audit period of 1987-92, the base price plus escalators was $24 to $28 a ton. However, during that time, Decker sold coal for $7.50 to $10.42 a ton to two other coal companies, who in turn sold the coal to ComEd under their contract right to outsource coal from an alternative source, in this case Decker. Decker timely paid $8.5 million in taxes on the full contract price and received no additional money or other consideration from the two companies. The Department contended that by selling coal to two other companies, Decker was attempting to contract away its tax obligation on coal mined under its original ComEd contract. Thus, the Department applied the imputed price of $24 to $28 a ton as market value. Decker asserted that during the period in question, it never had an opportunity to sell the coal at the imputed price. Under this section, the Department may impute a value to coal sales rather than relying on contract prices if: (1) it determines that the contract price does not represent an arm's-length agreement; and (2) the imputed value approximates market value. Both conditions must be satisfied before an imputed value may be assessed. The Department also argued that the statute allows application of factors used under federal tax regulations and that when those factors were applied, the representative market price was established by the original Decker-ComEd contract. The undisputed definition of "market value" in this case, as established by the District Court, was "the price that a willing buyer would pay a willing seller under the market and economic conditions at the time of sale". The only evidence of market value under this definition was presented by Decker's expert, which showed that coal sales in Decker's market area during the time in question ranged from $3.77 to $7.61 a ton; thus, the prices paid to Decker met or exceeded market value. The Department's imputed price erroneously ignored the temporal component of the definition, which required consideration of market factors at the time of sale, and the federal tax language did not suggest that the taxpayer's own actual sales be determinative of current market value regardless of date and price. Thus, the Supreme Court held that Decker's sale of coal to ComEd pursuant to the contract with predetermined escalators was not representative of the market and economic conditions at the time of sale and therefore did not meet the definition of market value. The STAB and Department conclusion that the 1974 contract represented market value was incorrect. Decker showed that the Department's imputed value did not approximate market value f.o.b. mine under market and economic conditions at the time of sale, so the District Court decision affirming STAB was dismissed. Because this issue was dispositive, the court did not address whether the sale price constituted an arm's-length agreement. Decker Coal Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 2000 MT 125, 299 M 477, 2 P3d 245, 57 St. Rep. 512 (2000).

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 390, L. 2013, provided: "WHEREAS, Article VIII, section 15, of the Montana Constitution requires that "Public retirement systems shall be funded on an actuarially sound basis" and that "Public retirement system assets, including income and actuarially required contributions, shall not be encumbered, diverted, reduced, or terminated and shall be held in trust to provide benefits to participants and their beneficiaries and to defray administrative expenses"; and

WHEREAS, the unprecedented collapse of the financial markets in 2008 through 2009 and the subsequent slow rate of economic recovery have resulted in little or no prospect that current statutory contribution rates together with future market returns will be sufficient to fund the Public Employees' Retirement System on an actuarially sound basis, and current contributions remain insufficient to pay the past and future accruals of retirement benefits for members currently in the system; and

WHEREAS, failure to return the system to a position of actuarially sound funding places the benefits to be paid to current system participants in jeopardy and results in collection of employee contributions for which future benefits may not be guaranteed; and

WHEREAS, the current and increasing level of unfunded liabilities has the potential to compromise the credit ratings of the state of Montana and of local government entities, including public school districts; and

to a position of actuarially sound funding, a reasonable increase in contributions for current participants is necessary to help return the system to a position of actuarially sound funding; and

WHEREAS, during the past two legislative sessions and interims, the Legislature, interim committees, the retirement system board and staff, and the Governor's office have analyzed and enacted alternatives for returning the system to a position of actuarially sound funding without raising contract impairment issues for current members, which have failed to reduce system costs enough to restore the system to actuarial soundness; and

WHEREAS, in light of significant strains on the Montana economy, on state and local government budgets, and on taxpayers, a modest supplemental contribution rate increase of 1% imposed on current members, with an appropriate mechanism to terminate the supplemental contribution rate as system funding improves and in conjunction with additional employer and state contributions, is, pursuant to the language of U.S. Trust Company of New York v. New Jersey, 431 U.S. 1 (1977), concerning contract impairment, reasonable and necessary, is for a valid public purpose, and is the least impairing alternative available to the Legislature as it seeks to fulfill its constitutional obligation to ensure that the retirement system is funded in an actuarially sound manner."

Section 4. Unobligated cash balance defined. As used in [section 3], "unobligated cash balance from the alternative energy and energy conservation research development and demonstration account" is the fund balance at the end of fiscal year 1989 less all accruals, loan receivables, and any other legal obligations of either the department of natural resources and conservation or the department of commerce that encumber funds in the account."

1987 Amendment: At beginning of section inserted "Severance taxes collected under this chapter must be allocated according to the provisions in effect on the date the tax is due under 15-35-104"; in (2) deleted former first sentence that read: "Starting July 1, 1986, and ending June 30, 1987, 6% of coal severance tax collections are allocated to the highway reconstruction trust fund account in the state special revenue fund"; at beginning of (3)(a) deleted "2½% until July 1, 1987, and thereafter"; at beginning of (3)(b) decreased 6% to 4%, changed "July 1, 1987" to "June 30, 1989, to the state special revenue fund to the credit of the local impact account", and after "thereafter" substituted "20% to the state special revenue fund to the credit of the local impact and education trust fund account and 17.5% to the credit of the local impact account. Unencumbered funds remaining in the local impact account at the end of each biennium are allocated to the education trust fund account" for "37½% to the state special revenue fund to the credit of the local impact and education trust fund account"; in (3)(c) increased 30% to 44.2% and changed "July 1, 1987" to "June 30, 1989"; at beginning of (3)(f) deleted "starting July 1, 1986, and ending June 30, 1989, 5% to the general fund, and"; and in (3)(j) substituted "2% to the state special revenue fund for the Montana Growth Through Agriculture Act" for "4% until July 1, 1987, to the highway reconstruction trust fund account in the state special revenue fund".

Severability: Section 13, Ch. 662, L. 1987, was a severability section.

1986 Amendments: Chapter 3 at beginning of (3)(f) inserted 5% appropriation to the general fund and time periods; at beginning of (3)(f)(ii) deleted "starting July 1, 1985, and ending June 30, 1989"; and at end of (3)(f)(ii) after "23-1-102" deleted "and, after June 30, 1989, ⅔ for the acquisition of sites and areas described in 23-1-102 and the development, operation, and maintenance of sites acquired with funds allocated under this subsection".

Chapter 19 in (3)(b) reduced amount allocated until July 1, 1987, from 26% to 6%; and in (3)(c) changed "10%" to "30% until July 1, 1987, and thereafter 10%".

Effective Dates: The 1986 amendment made by Ch. 3 was effective June 30, 1986.

The 1986 amendment made by Ch. 19 was effective July 10, 1986, and applies retroactively to coal mined after April 1, 1986.

1985 Amendments: Chapter 246 in (3)(f)(ii) substituted "starting July 1, 1985, and ending June 30, 1989, ⅔ for the acquisition, development, operation, and maintenance of any sites and areas described in 23-1-102 and, after June 30, 1989, ⅔ for the acquisition of sites and areas described in 23-1-102 and the development, operation, and maintenance of sites acquired with funds allocated under this subsection" for "⅔ for the acquisition of sites and areas described in 23-1-102 and the operation and maintenance of sites so acquired".

Chapter 715 in (3)(a) substituted "July 1, 1987" for "December 31, 1979"; in (3)(b) substituted "26%" for "26½% until July 1, 1979, and thereafter 37½%"; and inserted (3)(j) relating to highway reconstruction trust fund account. Amendment effective May 10, 1985, applicable to coal mined on or after April 1, 1985, and terminates July 1, 1987 (secs. 4 and 5, Ch. 715, L. 1985).

Coal Tax Subcommittee Bill: Chapter 246, L. 1985, was introduced by request of the Coal Tax Oversight Subcommittee. See the committee's report entitled: "Reappraising Montana's Coal Severance Tax", Montana Legislative Council, November 1984.

Code Commissioner Changes — Applicability of Allocations: In subsections (1) and (3) the Code Commissioner has deleted references to allocation formulas that are no longer effective. The Code Commissioner inserted in subsection (3)(b) "until July 1, 1987, and thereafter 37½%" and in (3)(j) "until July 1, 1987" because of the termination provision in sec. 5, Ch. 715, L. 1985.

1983 Amendments — Termination Date: Chapter 281, throughout section, substituted "state special revenue fund" for "earmarked revenue fund"; in (3)(g), before "credit", deleted "sinking fund to the" and substituted "bond fund" for "bond account"; at beginning of (3)(h), substituted "5% to a nonexpendable trust fund" for "5% to the earmarked revenue fund to the credit of a trust fund"; and in (3)(k), substituted "debt service fund type" for "sinking fund" and "debt service fund" for "sinking account".

Chapter 541 inserted (2) relating to 6% allocation to highway reconstruction for fiscal year 1987 and 12% for fiscal years 1988 to 1993; and in introduction to (3), changed "allocation to the trust fund under subsection (1)" to "allocations provided by subsections (1) and (2)".

Section 7, Ch. 541, L. 1983, provided: "Sections 1 through 5 [60-3-216 through 60-3-218 and 1983 amendments to 15-35-108 and 17-3-201] are effective July 1, 1983, and terminate July 1, 1993."

1981 Amendments: Chapter 479 reduced the amount of the coal severance tax allocated to alternative energy research from 5% to 4½% in (2)(b); and inserted subsection (2)(j) relating to earmarked revenue fund for conservation districts.

Chapter 505 reduced the amount of the coal severance tax allocated to the sinking fund to the credit of the renewable resource development bond account from 2½% to 1¼% in (2)(g); and inserted (2)(k) relating to sinking fund to credit of water development sinking account.

Attorney General's Opinions

"Collection" as Referring to Quarter of Assessment Rather Than Quarter of Payment: The coal tax is assessed on coal mined during the quarter but the payment is not due until 30 days following the end of the quarter. The term "collection" refers to the assessment rather than the actual payment of the tax. 38 A.G. Op. 72 (1980).

Applicability of Distribution Formula: The distribution formula embodied in Ch. 540, L. 1977, applies only to taxes assessed on coal mined after July 1, 1977. 37 A.G. Op. 73 (1977).

15-35-112. Deficiency assessment — review — penalty and interest.

Compiler's Comments

2005 Amendment: Chapter 594 in (2) at beginning substituted "Penalty and interest must be added to" for "Interest on" and after "assessment" deleted "must bear interest"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2005.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 594, L. 2005, provided: "WHEREAS, the Fifty-Sixth Legislature enacted legislation establishing uniform provisions for the assessment of penalties for late filings of tax returns and other statements and for assessing penalty and interest for delinquent taxes and fees under Titles 15 and 16 of the Montana Code Annotated and certain other taxes and fees; and

WHEREAS, the uniform assessment provisions related to penalties and interest do not apply to every tax or fee imposed under Title 15 and administered by the Department of Revenue; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Revenue's Integrated Revenue Information System is designed to ensure that the state's tax laws are applied fairly and consistently; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the State of Montana and taxpayers to expand the application of the uniform method of assessing penalties and interest."

Applicability: Section 43, Ch. 594, L. 2005, provided: "(1) Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3), [this act] applies on and after July 1, 2005.

(2) [Section 3] [15-1-216, version effective January 1, 2007] applies to penalties assessed against taxes or fees due for tax reporting periods beginning after December 31, 2006.

(3) [Section 3] [15-1-216, version effective January 1, 2007] applies to interest computed under 15-1-216 assessed on taxes or fees owing after December 31, 2006, regardless of the tax reporting period for which the taxes or fees are owed."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 427 in (2) at end substituted reference to 15-1-216 for "until paid at the rate of 1% a month or fraction thereof, computed from the original due date of the return"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 2000.

Applicability: Section 57, Ch. 427, L. 1999, provided that this section applies to all tax periods beginning after December 31, 1999.

1991 Amendment: In (1), in first sentence, inserted reference to 15-1-211, deleted remainder of subsection that read: "Within 30 days after mailing of the notice, the taxpayer may file with the department a written protest against the proposed additional tax, setting forth the grounds upon which the protest is based, and may request in his protest an oral hearing or an opportunity to present additional evidence relating to his tax liability. If no protest is filed, the amount of the additional tax proposed to be assessed becomes final upon the expiration of the 30-day period. If a protest is filed, the department must reconsider the proposed assessment and, if the taxpayer has so requested, must grant the taxpayer an oral hearing. After consideration of the protest and the evidence presented at any oral hearing, the department's action upon the protest is final when it mails notice of its action to the taxpayer", and inserted last sentence relating to review under 15-1-211; and in (2) deleted former first two sentences that read: "When a deficiency is determined and the tax becomes final, the department shall mail a notice and demand for payment to the taxpayer. The tax is due and payable at the expiration of 10 days from the date of such notice and demand".

Applicability: Section 31, Ch. 811, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] applies to requests for refunds received by and the notices of additional tax issued by the department of revenue pursuant to [section 1] [15-1-211] after December 31, 1991."

15-35-113. Credit for overpayment — interest on overpayment.

Compiler's Comments

1999 Amendment: Chapter 427 in (2) substituted "charged on unpaid taxes provided in 15-1-216" for "charged on deficiency assessments provided in 15-35-112"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 2000.

Applicability: Section 57, Ch. 427, L. 1999, provided that this section applies to all tax periods beginning after December 31, 1999.

15-35-122. Rulemaking authority.

OIL AND GAS PRODUCTION TAX

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Repayment of Former Foundation Program Money: Section 2, Ch. 299, L. 1993, provided: "(1) Beginning July 1, 1993, and by June 30, 1998, Saco School Districts No. 12A and B, Whitewater School Districts No. 20AA and D, and Malta School Districts No. 14 and A, Phillips County, shall repay any overdistribution of foundation program money [now repealed, see 20-9-315 through 20-9-320, 1991] for school fiscal year 1991 attributable to an overdistribution of local government severance tax revenue in the following amounts, plus interest as provided in subsection (2), based on an annual repayment schedule approved by the superintendent of public instruction:

Saco School District No. 12A	$135,682
Saco School District No. B	102,003
Whitewater School District No. 20AA	121,924
Whitewater School District No. D	73,196
Malta Elementary School District No. 14	12,923
Malta High School District No. A	8,086

(2) A repayment amount under subsection (1) must include interest at the average annual short-term investment pool rate of the preceding fiscal year."

Retroactive Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 299, L. 1993, provided that this section applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to August 11, 1989.

Powers of State Board of Equalization Transferred: Chapter 405, L. 1973, transferred the powers and duties of the State Board of Equalization to the Department of Revenue and the State Tax Appeal Board. In Dept. of Revenue v. Burlington N., Inc., 169 M 202, 545 P2d 1083 (1976), the Montana Supreme Court held that State Board of Equalization's administrative functions were transferred to the Department of Revenue, while the appellate functions were transferred to the State Tax Appeal Board.

Chapter Case Notes

Lease Not Tract of Land: Gary Drilling Company obtained a declaratory judgment that the production from certain of its wells had to be taxed as new production under a predecessor to this chapter. The Department of Revenue appealed, arguing that it could not be new production because there had been previous production on the tract of land where the company had drilled the wells. The Supreme Court held that the oil was new production because the company operated under a different lease than the one used by the parties that had obtained earlier production on the property. Gary Drilling Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 250 M 313, 820 P2d 428, 48 St. Rep. 975 (1991).

State Taxation of Indian Trust Properties Valid — No Repeal by Implication Found: Where the plaintiff Indian tribe sought declaratory and injunctive relief against the levy and collection of certain taxes (now repealed) by the state and several counties on the production of oil and gas owned by the United States in trust for the plaintiff by non-Indian lessees within the boundaries of the plaintiff's reservation, the court held that the provisions of 25 U.S.C. § 398 specifically authorized state taxation of oil and gas on tribal lands and that the provisions of the statute had not been impliedly repealed by 25 U.S.C. § 396. The sovereign right asserted by the plaintiff to be free from state taxation has been controlled by Congress, and the plaintiff has not shown that there is such a repugnancy between the two federal statutes as to satisfy their burden of proving a congressional intent to repeal the former by enactment of the latter or that there is an ambiguity in the law which should be construed in favor of the plaintiff. Blackfeet Tribe v. St., 507 F. Supp. 446, 38 St. Rep. 238 (D.C. Mont. 1981); reversed in part and remanded for further proceedings by en banc court of appeals, Blackfeet Tribe v. Mont., 729 F2d 1192 (9th Cir. 1984); certiorari granted state to resolve whether Montana may tax Indian royalty interest arising out of leases executed after the adoption of 1938 Act, and U.S. Supreme Court upheld the 9th Circuit decision that state could not tax such royalty interests. Mont. v. Blackfeet Tribe, 105 S Ct 2399 (1985).

Production Under Lease of Trust Patent Indian Land — Prior Tax Laws: The State Board of Equalization (now Department of Revenue) is authorized to levy the operator's net proceeds tax and the oil producers' license tax or gross production tax, but not the royalty owner's net proceeds tax, on oil and gas produced under a lease of trust patent Indian land. (Overruling Santa Rita Oil & Gas Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization (now Department of Revenue), 101 M 268, 54 P2d 117 (1936), with exception of the royalty owner's net proceeds tax, for the reason that the federal Supreme Court overruled its holdings upon which the state court's former opinion was based.) Santa Rita Oil & Gas Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 112 M 359, 116 P2d 1012 (1941).

Nature of Tax: Under former law, oil and gas in place is land, and a tax on the income of such oil and gas is a tax on land. A tax on the royalty, which only accrues as a result of the production of oil or gas, is a burden on the production of oil or gas and, therefore, a tax levied and assessed against the gas and oil produced. A tax on royalty is a part of the net proceeds tax arising out of the operation of mines, and the holder of royalty interest is liable for tax thereon in absence of contractual obligation to the contrary. N. Pac. Ry. v. Gas Dev. Co., 103 M 214, 62 P2d 204 (1936).

Estate in Land Created by Lease of Trust Patent Indian Land Held Taxable: Oil and gas leases on Indian lands held under trust patent, in which the oil and gas were reserved for the benefit of the tribe, created an estate in land distinct and separate from the interest held by the federal government, which estate was subject to operators' net proceeds tax and the gross production tax (now repealed). British-American Oil Prod. Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 101 M 293, 54 P2d 129 (1936), affirmed 299 US 159, 81 L Ed 95, 57 S Ct 132 (1936).

Nonresident Royalty Holder: Under former law, the fact that the owner of a royalty interest in an oil well made taxable under sections 2096.1 and 2096.2, R.C.M. 1935 (now repealed), was a nonresident of the state did not render him immune from payment of a tax thereon, the tax imposed upon the royalty as a part of the net proceeds being in lieu of the ad valorem tax on the oil in the ground as a part of the realty and not a personal property tax depending upon the residence of the owner. Forbes v. Mid-Northern Oil Co., 100 M 10, 45 P2d 673 (1935).

Land Leased From United States: An oil company operating under leases from the United States government and assigned to it, under the terms of which the lessees were given the exclusive right to explore for, extract, and dispose of oil and gas in lands covered by homestead entries for which patents had not issued, is not such an agency or instrumentality of the federal government as to render the license or occupation tax imposed by Ch. 266, L. 1921, invalid. Mid-Northern Oil Co. v. Walker, 65 M 414, 211 P 353 (1922), affirmed, 268 US 45, 69 L Ed 841, 45 S Ct 440 (1925).

Nature of Tax: The tax of 1% of the gross value of crude oil exacted from persons engaged in producing petroleum within the state, by Ch. 266, L. 1921, is not a property tax or imposed for regulatory purposes under the police power but is a revenue measure, and the exaction is a license or occupation tax. Mid-Northern Oil Co. v. Walker, 65 M 414, 211 P 353 (1922), affirmed, 268 US 45, 69 L Ed 841, 45 S Ct 440 (1925).

Part Administrative Rules

Title 42, chapter 25, subchapter 18, ARM Natural resources taxes — oil and gas.

Part Case Notes

Absent Equal Protection Violation, No Constitutional Violation for Legislature to Tax or Exempt From Taxation Property Without First Classifying Property: Certain counties and individual taxpayers argued that statutes enacted to tax coal, oil, and natural gas while at the same time exempting those properties from a statewide mill levy for education were invalid because the statutes did not classify those properties as required by 15-6-101 and, in addition, created a partial exemption from school funding instead of creating a total exemption. The Supreme Court held that the Legislature is not constitutionally limited to a classification system and that the Legislature is not constitutionally limited to providing tax exemptions for property exclusively within a classification system. Powder River County v. St., 2002 MT 259, 312 M 198, 60 P3d 357 (2002).

Conflicting Taxation Statutes Not Invalid: Certain counties and individual taxpayers argued that statutes enacted to tax coal, oil, and natural gas were invalid because the statutes did not classify those properties as required by 15-6-101. The Supreme Court held that the specific statutes providing for taxation of coal, oil, and natural gas were superior to and not invalidated by the more general classification statute. Powder River County v. St., 2002 MT 259, 312 M 198, 60 P3d 357 (2002).

15-36-303. Definitions.

Compiler's Comments

2015 Amendment: Chapter 29 in definition of stripper oil in (a) after "average price for a barrel of" deleted "oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal for" and in (b) substituted "for a barrel of west Texas intermediate crude oil" for "for west Texas intermediate crude oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2015.

2005 Amendment: Chapter 592 in definition of stripper oil in (a) in first sentence after "produces" inserted "more than 3 barrels but" and deleted former last sentence that read: "There is no stripper well exemption tax rate if the average price for a barrel of oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal for west Texas intermediate crude oil during a calendar quarter is more than $38 a barrel"; in definition of stripper well exemption in first sentence inserted stripper well bonus as defined term and inserted second sentence related to determination of production; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2005.

Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 592, L. 2005, provided: "[This act] applies to oil produced and sold after June 30, 2005."

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 403 in definition of expanded enhanced recovery project, new enhanced recovery project, and secondary recovery project after "December 31, 1993" deleted "and before January 1, 2002"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 28, 2001.

Chapter 421 in definition of stripper oil near end of second sentence after "stripper tax rate" deleted "including stripper well exemption tax rate" and inserted third sentence eliminating stripper well exemption tax rate when oil price exceeds $38 a barrel; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 28, 2001.

1999 Amendments — Composite Section — Coordination: Chapter 488 inserted definition of stripper well exemption; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 27, 1999.

Section 4, Ch. 488, L. 1999, a coordination instruction, voided part of the definition of stripper well exemption after "3 barrels a day or less" by deleting: "when the average price per barrel of oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal for west Texas intermediate crude oil during a calendar quarter is less than $30 a barrel. If the price of oil is equal to or greater than $30 a barrel in a calendar quarter, there is no stripper well exemption in that quarter. However, the stripper exemption would apply subject to the conditions of subsection (21). The average price per barrel is computed by dividing the sum of the daily price for west Texas intermediate crude oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal for the calendar quarter by the number of days on which the price was reported in the quarter."

Chapter 530 deleted definition of stripper exemption that read: ""Stripper exemption" means the first 3 barrels a day for petroleum and other mineral or crude oil produced by a stripper well if the average price per barrel of oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal for west Texas intermediate crude oil during a calendar quarter is less than $30 a barrel. If the price of oil is equal to or greater than $30 a barrel in a calendar quarter, there is no stripper exemption in that quarter. The average price per barrel is computed by dividing the sum of the daily price for west Texas intermediate crude oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal for the calendar quarter by the number of days on which the price was reported in the quarter"; substituted definition of stripper oil for former definition that read: ""Stripper oil" means the oil produced from any well that produces less than 10 barrels a day for the calendar year immediately preceding the current year. Production must be determined by dividing the amount of production from a lease or unitized area for the year immediately preceding the current calendar year by the number of producing wells in the lease or unitized area and by dividing the resulting quotient by 365"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 30, 1999.

(Temporary version) Chapter 554 in definition of post-1985 well in two places inserted "but before January 1, 1999"; inserted definition of post-1999 well; in definition of qualifying production in (a)(i) inserted "but before January 1, 1999" and inserted (a)(ii) regarding well production on or after January 1, 1999; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 30, 1999, and terminates December 31, 1999.

(Version effective January 1, 2000) In definition of post-1999 well at beginning substituted "Post-1999" for "Post-1985", substituted "on or after January 1, 1999" for "after June 30, 1985, other than horizontally completed or recompleted oil wells drilled after December 31, 1993", and substituted "post-1999" for "post-1985"; in definition of pre-1999 well at beginning substituted "Pre-1999" for "Pre-1985" and at end substituted "January 1, 1999" for "July 1, 1985"; in definition of production decline rate substituted "15-36-304(5)(e)" for "15-36-304(4)(d)"; in definition of qualifying production in first sentence substituted "12 months" for "24 months", substituted "a well" for "any post-1985 well", and substituted December date and language regarding horizontally completed well drilled after December date for "March 31, 1995"; and made minor changes in style.

Powers of State Board of Equalization Transferred: Chapter 405, L. 1973, transferred the powers and duties of the State Board of Equalization to the Department of Revenue and the State Tax Appeal Board. In Dept. of Revenue v. Burlington N., Inc., 169 M 202, 545 P2d 1083 (1976), the Montana Supreme Court held that State Board of Equalization's administrative functions were transferred to the Department of Revenue, while the appellate functions were transferred to the State Tax Appeal Board.

Part Compiler's Comments

Section Not Codified: Section 84-723, R.C.M. 1947, which transferred the duty of collecting the metalliferous mines license tax from the State Treasurer to the Department of Revenue, was not codified in the MCA. This clause has not been repealed and is still valid law. Citation may be made to sec. 1, Ch. 79, L. 1927, as amended by sec. 13, Ch. 516, L. 1973, and sec. 7, Ch. 286, L. 1977.

Section 84-2015, R.C.M. 1947, which is a severability clause that applies to most of the sections in this part, was not codified in the MCA. This clause has not been repealed and is still valid law. Citation may be made to sec. 16, Initiative No. 28, 1925.

Part Case Notes

Constitutionality — Sufficiency of Title:

Initiative measure No. 28 did not violate Art. V, sec. 23, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. V, sec. 11, 1972 Mont. Const.) because arsenic or arsenious oxide, taxable under initiative measure No. 28 was not mentioned in its title. State ex rel. Snidow v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 93 M 19, 17 P2d 68 (1932).

If an act deals with matters germane to the subject expressed in its title and the title is not of such character as to mislead the public or the members of the Legislature, the constitutional requirement with relation to the contents of the title, Art. V, sec. 23, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. V, sec. 11, 1972 Mont. Const.) is sufficiently complied with; where the general object is plainly expressed in the title it is not necessary that it should embody the exact methods of application or procedure, and courts should not embarrass legislation by technical interpretation based upon mere form or phraseology. State ex rel. Snidow v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 93 M 19, 17 P2d 68 (1932).

Effect of Repealed Sections: Initiative measure No. 28, providing for a gross proceeds of mines tax, specifically repealed sections 2344-2355, R.C.M. 1921, providing for a net proceeds of metalliferous mines tax, and it was error to contend that measure No. 28 was simply amendatory of the net proceeds act, that act by its repeal having been blotted out as completely as though it had never existed, a new and different act taking its place. State ex rel. Snidow v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 93 M 19, 17 P2d 68 (1932).

Case Notes

Nature of Tax: The tax provided by initiative measure No. 28 is not a property tax—on metals, minerals, or mine products—but an occupational license tax, i.e., upon the business of producing metals or precious stones, based upon annual production. Should there be no quotation covering any particular product, the department of revenue shall fix the value of such gross product or such portion thereof in such a manner as may seem equitable"; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective May 16, 1989.

Title 42, chapter 25, subchapter 1, ARM Metalliferous mines tax.

ARM 42.25.102 Average price quotations.

Case Notes

Deductions in Fixing Tax for Smelting Reduction "or Otherwise": In the former version of this section that prohibited "any deductions for costs of smelting, reduction or treatment, or otherwise", the words "or otherwise" relate to whatever expense is incurred in making the gross product. State ex rel. Snidow v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 93 M 19, 17 P2d 68 (1932).

Market Value in Montana, Not in New York, Taxable: Under the former version of this section, which declared that the amount of the license tax exacted by the state on operators of metalliferous mines shall be determined by ascertaining the market value of the gross product resulting from the smelting, reduction, or treatment of the ore, based upon the average quotations of the price of the metals or mineral products in New York City, their market value in Montana, not that prevailing in New York, is taxable. State ex rel. Snidow v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 93 M 19, 17 P2d 68 (1932).

New York Price as Basis: Under the former version of this section, it was contemplated that in fixing the market value of zinc, the New York price was to be considered as a basis, thus the State Board of Equalization (now Department of Revenue) in fixing market value upon the basis of the price of the metal in St. Louis did so in violation of the act. State ex rel. Snidow v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 93 M 19, 17 P2d 68 (1932).

If no protest is filed, the amount of the additional tax proposed to be assessed becomes final upon the expiration of the 30-day period. If a protest is filed, the department must reconsider the proposed assessment and, if the taxpayer has so requested, must grant the taxpayer an oral hearing. After consideration of the protest and the evidence presented at any oral hearing, the department's action upon the protest is final when it mails notice of its action to the taxpayer", and inserted last sentence relating to review under 15-1-211; and in (2) deleted former first two sentences that read: "When a deficiency is determined and the tax becomes final, the department shall mail a notice and demand for payment to the taxpayer. Title 42, chapter 25, subchapter 15, ARM Resource indemnity trust tax.

Chapter Case Notes

No Constitutional Limitation on Appropriation of Resource Indemnity Trust Funds Beyond Principal: Nothing in the Montana Constitution as a whole or in the plain language of Art. IX, sec. 2, Mont. Const., places a limitation on the appropriation of resource indemnity trust funds beyond the $100 million principal, which must remain inviolate. Butte-Silver Bow Local Gov't v. St., 235 M 398, 768 P2d 327, 46 St. Rep. 87 (1989).

Trust Funds Not Limited to Reclamation of Land Disturbed by Taking of Natural Resources: The appropriation or allocation of resource indemnity trust funds is not limited to the reclamation of lands disturbed by the taking of natural resources. Therefore, the use of funds for programs related to improving the total environment does not violate the fiduciary duty of the state toward the trust in allocating trust funds. Butte-Silver Bow Local Gov't v. St., 235 M 398, 768 P2d 327, 46 St. Rep. 87 (1989).

State Taxation of Indian Trust Properties Valid — No Repeal by Implication Found: Where the plaintiff Indian tribe sought declaratory and injunctive relief against the levy and collection of certain taxes by the state and several counties on the production of oil and gas owned by the United States in trust for the plaintiff by non-Indian lessees within the boundaries of the plaintiff's reservation, the court held that the provisions of 25 U.S.C. § 398 specifically authorized state taxation of oil and gas on tribal lands and that the provisions of the statute had not been impliedly repealed by 25 U.S.C. § 396. The sovereign right asserted by the plaintiff to be free from state taxation has been controlled by Congress, and the plaintiff has not shown that there is such a repugnancy between the two federal statutes as to satisfy their burden of proving a congressional intent to repeal the former by enactment of the latter, or that there is an ambiguity in the law which should be construed in favor of the plaintiff. Blackfeet Tribe v. St., 507 F. Supp. 446, 38 St. Rep. 238 (D.C. Mont. 1981); reversed in part and remanded for further proceedings by en banc court of appeals, Blackfeet Tribe v. Mont., 729 F2d 1192 (9th Cir. 1984); certiorari granted state to resolve whether Montana may tax Indian royalty interests arising out of leases executed after the adoption of 1938 Act, and U.S. Supreme Court upheld 9th Circuit decision that state could not tax such royalty interests. Mont. v. Blackfeet Tribe, 105 S Ct 2399 (1985).

1987 Amendment: Substituted "It is the policy of the state of Montana to indemnify its citizens for the loss of long-term value resulting from the depletion of its mineral resource base and for environmental damage caused by mineral development. This policy of indemnification is achieved by establishing a permanent resource indemnity trust from the proceeds of a tax levied on mineral extraction and by allocating spendable trust revenues:

(1) to protect and restore the environment from damages resulting from mineral development; and

(2) to support a variety of development programs that benefit the economy of the state and the lives of Montana citizens" for "It is the policy of this state to provide security against loss or damage to our environment from the extraction of nonrenewable natural resources. Recognizing that the total environment consists of our air, water, soil, flora, fauna, and also of those social, economic, and cultural conditions that influence our communities and the lives of our individual citizens, it is necessary that this state be indemnified for the extraction of those resources. Therefore, it is the purpose of this chapter to provide for the creation of a resource indemnity trust in order that the people and resources of Montana may long endure."

Case Notes

Deduction for Tribal Tax Not Permitted: The plaintiff, who operated a mine on tribal land, paid coal severance and gross proceeds taxes to the tribe. The plaintiff also paid Montana's Resource Indemnity Trust and Ground Water Assessment Tax (RITT) to the Department of Revenue. In paying the RITT, the plaintiff attempted to deduct tribal taxes from the contract sales price used to calculate the RITT. The RITT calculation specifically did not include deductions for payments to a tribal entity, but it included a deduction for other local governments. The Supreme Court held that because the deduction for other local governments specifically did not include tribal governments, the RITT did not allow a deduction for tribal taxes. Westmoreland Resources Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 2014 MT 212, 376 Mont. 180, 330 P.3d 1188.

Applicability of Tax to Adjustment Portion of Coal Sales Price — Commerce Clause: The contract sales price for coal was adjusted when the actual BTU content of the coal was different from the BTU content warranted by seller. The warranted BTU content determined the base price of the coal. The adjustment formula took railroad shipping charges into account and was part of the contract sales price. The coal severance and gross proceeds taxes were based on the contract sales price, and the resource indemnity tax was based on the value of the coal at the time of extraction. It was proper for the state to apply the coal severance, gross proceeds, and resource indemnity trust taxes to amounts seller received on upward price adjustments caused by higher BTU content, after deducting from the contract sales price, for purposes of the resource indemnity trust tax, the costs of hauling the coal from the mine to the railroad and preparing the coal for shipment. Seller's claim that it was taxed on the revenue received pursuant to the transportation costs component of the adjustment formula was properly denied in the lower court. Transportation costs were paid by the buyer, not the seller, the transportation cost component of the formula was based on the average transportation rate per ton and did not vary. The adjustment formula did nothing to alter the actual transportation costs. The claim that the commerce clause of the United States Constitution was violated was properly denied in the lower court because seller did not receive, and thus was not taxed on, any transportation revenue. Westmoreland Resources v. Dept. of Revenue, 263 M 303, 868 P2d 592, 51 St. Rep. 67 (1994).

Case Notes

Mines Net Proceeds Taxes and Resource Indemnity Trust Taxes Settlement Agreement — Payments Distributed According to Mill Levies in Year Settlement Paid: Under a settlement agreement in 1992, Cyprus paid to Madison County back mines net proceeds taxes and resource indemnity trust taxes for the years 1980-1987. The county brought a summary judgment action to allow it to distribute the payment to certain Madison County taxing districts rather than according to the mill levies in place on the date when the funds were received, including the state university levies and the county and state school equalization aid payments. The county argued that application of school funding equalization taxes to Cyprus's settlement for 1980-1987 taxes was improper retroactive taxation because not all of the equalization laws were in effect in those years. The District Court granted summary judgment to the county. The Supreme Court held that no retroactivity issue existed and that the settlement paid was property tax revenue that must be distributed according to the mills levied in the year that the settlement was paid. Case Notes

Deduction for Tribal Tax Not Permitted: The plaintiff, who operated a mine on tribal land, paid coal severance and gross proceeds taxes to the tribe. The plaintiff also paid Montana's Resource Indemnity Trust and Ground Water Assessment Tax (RITT) to the Department of Revenue. In paying the RITT, the plaintiff attempted to deduct tribal taxes from the contract sales price used to calculate the RITT. The RITT calculation specifically did not include deductions for payments to a tribal entity, but it included a deduction for other local governments. The Supreme Court held that because the deduction for other local governments specifically did not include tribal governments, the RITT did not allow a deduction for tribal taxes. (1) If House Bill No. 777, including the section of that bill amending 15-38-202, is passed and approved, and if House Bill No. 718, including the section of that bill amending 15-38-202, is passed and approved, the bracketed material in section 12 must read "46%".

Commissioner Correction: In third and fourth sentences of (1), references to "account" were apparently overlooked by Chapter 281. The apparent intent was that "account" become "fund" and the Code Commissioner has changed the references accordingly. The Code Commissioner also changed "resource indemnity trust account" to "resource indemnity trust fund" in (3) pursuant to sec. 48, Ch. 281, L. 1983.

Case Notes

Trust Funds Not Limited to Reclamation of Land Disturbed by Taking of Natural Resources: The appropriation or allocation of resource indemnity trust funds is not limited to the reclamation of lands disturbed by the taking of natural resources. Therefore, the use of funds for programs related to improving the total environment does not violate the fiduciary duty of the state toward the trust in allocating trust funds. Part 1
General Provisions

Part Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 783, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, the Department of Revenue does not have adequate resources to properly administer the existing standing inventory method of taxing forest lands; and

WHEREAS, the standing inventory method of taxing forest lands encourages landowners to harvest timber without regard to good forest management; and

WHEREAS, the valuation of forest lands in Montana is often based on outdated information; and

WHEREAS, the Forest Taxation Subcommittee of the Revenue Oversight Committee [now Revenue and Transportation Interim Committee] found that the forest productivity method of taxing forest lands encourages good forest management and is a more equitable method of taxing forest lands; and

WHEREAS, the forest productivity method of taxing forest lands is in the long run easier and less costly to administer than the standing inventory method; and

WHEREAS, the Forest Taxation Subcommittee of the Revenue Oversight Committee [now Revenue and Transportation Interim Committee] recommends that forest lands be taxed on the basis of productivity; and

WHEREAS, it is the intent of the Legislature to implement the recommendation of the Forest Taxation Subcommittee of the Revenue Oversight Committee [now Revenue and Transportation Interim Committee].

THEREFORE, it is the purpose of this bill to implement the recommendation to change the method of taxing forest lands in the state."

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 783, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because the department of revenue is granted authority to adopt rules for the administration and enforcement of the forest productivity method of taxing forest lands.

The legislature contemplates that rules adopted by the department should, at a minimum, address the following:

(1) guidelines for information that must be contained in the statement of intent submitted by the forest landowner as provided for in [section 2(5)(b)] [15-44-102(5)(b)];

(2) the form to be used by the forest landowner for the statement of intent;

(3) the procedures for determining appropriate forest valuation zones and for computing forest land valuation schedules;

(4) the notification of landowners who may be eligible for forest land classification under this bill;

(5) the process by which a landowner may appeal the valuation of the owner's forest land; and

(6) the definition of terms and establishment of procedures as appropriate for the efficient administration of the forest productivity method of taxation.

In determining forest productivity values and in computing forest land valuation schedules, the department shall use the assistance of the university of Montana [now university of Montana-Missoula]. The legislature also intends that, in implementing this bill, the department seek the advice of the department of state lands [functions now transferred to department of natural resources and conservation], landowners of private forest lands, the timber industry, and local governments."

Assessment on Privately Owned Timberland — Collection — Disposition: Section 13, Ch. 783, L. 1991, provided: "(1) An assessment of 10 cents per acre or portion of an acre is imposed on all privately owned timberland for tax years 1991 through 1993. The assessment is imposed on the owner of the land as of January 1 of each year.

(2) This assessment is done on November 30 of each year and must be paid with the property tax due as provided in 15-16-101.

(3) (a) By September 1 of each year, the department of revenue shall provide county treasurers with a list showing:

(i) all owners of private timberland in the county as of January 1 of that year; and

(ii) the number of acres of timberland owned by each as of January 1 of that year.

(b) The county treasurer shall send each listed owner a bill for the assessment imposed in subsection (1) with the property tax notice required in 15-16-101.

(4) The county treasurer shall collect the assessment imposed in subsection (1) and remit collections to the state treasurer by December 20 of each year.

(5) The state treasurer shall deposit all collections from the assessment imposed in subsection (1) in the general fund." Section 17(2), Ch. 783, L. 1991, provided that this section applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1990. Section 19, Ch. 783, L. 1991, provided that this section terminates January 1, 1994.

Part 2
Tax on Contractors

Part Case Notes

Contract Made Without License: The District Court erred in concluding that the contract entered into between the parties was illegal and therefore void. Appellant admits that it did not have a public contractor's license as required by former statute when it accepted the bid proposal. It admits that it may have violated the law and may be assessed a misdemeanor fine. Nowhere in the statutes is it declared that a contract made without a license is unenforceable or void. Taurman v. Cascade, 192 M 529, 629 P2d 226, 38 St. Rep. 906 (1981).

Prior Act Unconstitutional: Chapter 277, L. 1965, which provided for a license tax payable only by nonresident public contractors, was unconstitutional. State ex rel. Schultz-Lindsay Constr. Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 145 M 380, 403 P2d 635 (1965).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Public Utility Contractor Not to Install Certain Service Lines in Billings Unless Licensed by State as Plumber — City Required to Check License Qualifications:

In clarifying 44 A.G. Op. 12, the Attorney General noted that work done on a public water supply or public sewer system that does not include work falling within the statutory distances for plumbing or drainage systems does not require a state-issued plumber's license. Therefore, the city of Billings may not allow public utility contractors to install water service lines that extend from the public water main to a point within the walls of the private property or within 20 feet from any foundation wall of the premises, whichever distance is shorter as measured from the foundation wall, or wastewater service lines that extend from the public sewer main to a point within 2 feet from any foundation wall of the premises, unless the contractor also has a plumber's license issued by the state. 44 A.G. Op. 39 (1992).

The city of Billings may not allow public utility contractors to install water and wastewater service lines that extend from the public water or sewer main to a point within the walls of the private property or within 20 feet from any foundation wall of the private residence unless the contractor also has a plumber's license issued by the state. The city is required to determine whether a person applying for a plumbing permit pursuant to the Uniform Plumbing Code is licensed by the state as a plumber if the type of work described in the permit requires licensure as a requisite to performance. 44 A.G. Op. 12 (1991).

Turnkey Contract for Public Housing Subject to Public Contractor's Licensing Tax: A turnkey method of providing public housing, whereby a public housing authority contracts for a completed development to be produced by the developer on his own land and with payments to be upon the "turning over the keys" of the development to the public housing authority, is a public contract for construction work. All of the essential elements required by 15-50-101 are present. The contract is between a person and a public agency, the value of the contract (prior to the 1983 amendment increasing the contract amount to $5,000) exceeds $1,000, and the contract contemplates construction. The turnkey method of production of new public housing units is therefore a public contract subject to the public contractor's licensing tax. To hold otherwise would frustrate the expressed legislative goal of the tax and allow any contractor to avoid the tax on projects intended to be included by merely changing contract language. 38 A.G. Op. 118 (1980).

Case Notes

United States Government Estopped From Bringing Constitutional Challenge: When the United States government had required a public contractor to challenge the constitutionality of the 1% public contractor's license fee and directed the litigation to an unsuccessful conclusion in the Montana Supreme Court in Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 140, 505 P2d 102 (1973), the United States was collaterally estopped from thereafter challenging the constitutionality of the tax in federal courts. Mont. v. U.S., 440 US 147, 59 L Ed 2d 210, 99 S Ct 970 (1979).

Constitutionality: Imposing a 1% gross receipts tax was constitutional and did not violate Art. XII, sec. 11, 1889 Mont. Const., since the classification of public contractors separately from private contractors is reasonable and does not discriminate against the federal government or interfere with its functions or violate its immunity from taxation. Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 140, 505 P2d 102 (1973).

Case Notes

Cable Company Properly Reclassified as a Telecommunications Company — Conclusion Based on Evaluation of Use and Productivity: The Department of Revenue reclassified a cable company's property from class eight (cable television system) to class thirteen (telecommunications services company) by reasoning that the company's voice, cable, and Internet services made it a centrally assessed telecommunications services company under 15-6-156. The District Court reversed the classification change, but the Supreme Court upheld the Department's decision. The Supreme Court reasoned that the Legislature had exempted certain properties from class thirteen in the past but chose not to exempt companies that use a network to provide voice, cable, and Internet services. Moreover, an analysis of the use and productivity of the cable company's entire network resulted in the inescapable conclusion that it used a single transmission line to deliver three services, and therefore the Department had the authority to treat all of the property accordingly under class thirteen. CEMENT TAXES

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Section Not Codified: Section 84-723, R.C.M. 1947, which transferred the duty of collecting the cement producers' and cement dealers' license tax from the State Treasurer to the Department of Revenue, was not codified in the MCA. This clause has not been repealed and is still valid law. Citation may be made to sec. 1, Ch. 79, L. 1927, as amended by sec. 13, Ch. 516, L. 1973, and sec. 7, Ch. 286, L. 1977.

Powers of State Board of Equalization Transferred: Chapter 405, L. 1973, transferred the powers and duties of the State Board of Equalization to the Department of Revenue and the State Tax Appeal Board. In Dept. of Revenue v. Burlington N., Inc., 169 M 202, 545 P2d 1083 (1976), the Montana Supreme Court held that State Board of Equalization's administrative functions were transferred to the Department of Revenue, while the appellate functions were transferred to the State Tax Appeal Board.

Cement and Gypsum Producers

15-59-102. License tax on producers and importers of gypsum and cement.

Case Notes

Gypsum Wallboard: Under former law, in an action under a predecessor to this section, as amended in 1931 adding "other products", to enjoin collection of tax on manufactured gypsum wallboard, State was in error in contending that "other products" by implication included gypsum wallboard, since, under doctrine of ejusdem generis, the Legislature meant gypsum products made and handled like plaster. The administrative measurements as used in the act being only barrels and tons, and not square feet as wallboard is handled and sold, the uncertainties were resolved in favor of the taxpayer. U.S. Gypsum Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 116 M 275, 149 P2d 774 (1944).

If no protest is filed, the amount of the additional tax proposed to be assessed becomes final upon the expiration of the 30-day period. If a protest is filed, the department must reconsider the proposed assessment and, if the taxpayer has so requested, must grant the taxpayer an oral hearing. After consideration of the protest and the evidence presented at any oral hearing, the department's action upon the protest is final when it mails notice of its action to the taxpayer", and inserted last sentence relating to review under 15-1-211; and in (2) deleted former first two sentences that read: "When a deficiency is determined and the tax becomes final, the department shall mail a notice and demand for payment to the taxpayer. WHEREAS, the Legislature desires to alleviate the cost-shifting from Medicaid to other patients, while bearing in mind the financial circumstances facing the state; and

Chapter Attorney General's Opinions
Applicability of Open Meeting Law to Local Chamber of Commerce Receiving Bed Tax Funds: A local chamber of commerce, when acting as a nonprofit convention and visitor bureau, is an organization supported at least in part by public funds in the form of bed tax money. By accepting public funds and deciding how those funds are to be spent, the convention and visitor bureau takes on the responsibility of accounting to the public for those funds. Therefore, meetings of a local chamber of commerce or other organization recognized and acting as a nonprofit convention and visitor bureau must be open to the public in accordance with the open meeting law unless the demands of individual privacy of the chamber clearly exceed the merits of public disclosure. 44 A.G. Op. 40 (1992).

Lodging Facility Use Tax and Sales Tax Inconsistent and Incompatible — Not to Be Construed In Pari Materia: The Department of Revenue sought to have defendants, online travel companies, remit and collect lodging facility use taxes and sales taxes on their fees. The District Court concluded that the travel companies were not required to pay either tax. On appeal, the defendants argued that the two taxes have the same scope and therefore needed to be construed in pari materia. The Supreme Court concluded that the two separate acts creating the taxes were enacted 16 years apart and taxed separate transactions. The Supreme Court held that the taxes were inconsistent and incompatible and that they did not need to be construed in pari materia. Dept. of Revenue v. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed and agreed that the plain language of the lodging facility use tax provided no basis for taxing the fees charged by the defendants. Dept. of Revenue v. 1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 607, L. 1987, provided: "This bill needs a statement of intent because it allows the department of revenue and department of commerce to adopt rules negotiating the administration of this act.

The rules will be necessary to effectively and efficiently collect the tax and disburse the funds. This includes rules clarifying persons subject to the tax, reporting requirements, recordkeeping requirements, qualification for funds requirements, delineation/clarification of the statutorily created council powers, and other requirements. Since this is a new tax in Montana, it is anticipated that many issues will arise requiring rulemaking for resolution.

The intent of the legislature in exempting certain facilities that charge rates not exceeding 60% of the state rate for state officers and employees traveling in Montana is to avoid taxing rooms that are primarily used by pensioners and similarly disposed persons who may use a hotel as a residence, but who nonetheless rent a room by the day or week. Such facilities may also rent rooms to drop-in trade from time to time, but such trade is not the primary business of the facility. Rules adopted should be sensitive to drawing the distinction authorized by the legislature."

Chapter Case Notes

Liability of Online Travel Companies for Payment of Sales Tax — Accrues From Date Lawsuit Filed: The Department of Revenue sought to have the defendants, online travel companies, remit and collect lodging facility use taxes and sales taxes on their fees. The District Court concluded that the defendants were not required to pay either tax. After the Department appealed, the defendants argued that if they were required to pay either tax their liability should accrue from the date of the decision by the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court ultimately concluded that the defendants should pay a sales tax on their fees and held that the liability to do so ran from the date the Department filed suit. Dept. of Revenue v. Priceline.com, Inc. 2015 MT 241, 380 Mont. 352, 354 P.3d 631.

Lodging Facility Use Tax and Sales Tax Inconsistent and Incompatible — Not to Be Construed In Pari Materia: The Department of Revenue sought to have defendants, online travel companies, remit and collect lodging facility use taxes and sales taxes on their fees. The District Court concluded that the travel companies were not required to pay either tax. On appeal, the defendants argued that the two taxes have the same scope and therefore needed to be construed in pari materia. The Supreme Court concluded that the two separate acts creating the taxes were enacted 16 years apart and taxed separate transactions. The Supreme Court held that the taxes were inconsistent and incompatible and that they did not need to be construed in pari materia. Dept. of Revenue v. Priceline.com, Inc., 2015 MT 241, 380 Mont. 352, 354 P.3d 631.

Tax of Online Travel Company Fees Required Under Plain Meaning of Sales Tax: The Department of Revenue sought to have the defendants, online travel companies, remit and collect sales taxes on their fees. The District Court concluded that the defendants were not required to pay sales tax. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed, holding that the plain meaning of the sales tax provided a basis for taxing the fees. Dept. of Revenue v. Priceline.com, Inc., 2015 MT 241, 380 Mont. 352, 354 P.3d 631.

WHEREAS, the boundary between the urban area and the rural area for a consolidated city-county government should be revised to reflect changes in settlement patterns over time."

1997 Amendment: Chapter 239 throughout section, in seven places, inserted "and consolidated city-county governments"; in (2)(a) substituted "local" for "rural"; in (2)(a)(i) and (2)(c)(ii), in two places, substituted "national highway system" for "federal aid interstate system" and in two places, before "primary system", deleted "federal aid"; inserted (3) regarding allocation of funds to consolidated city-county governments; in (4), near end of first sentence after "that are part of the", deleted "federal aid"; in (6), at end, substituted "annually for counties and biennially for cities according to the latest official decennial census or the latest interim year population estimates from the Montana department of commerce as supplied by the United States bureau of the census" for "by the last preceding official federal census"; adjusted subsection references; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

1995 Amendments: Chapter 18 in (1), in two places after "15-1-501", deleted reference to subsection (6); and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 509 in (1) and (2), after "chapter", deleted "except those collected by a justice's court"; near beginning, after "taxes", deleted "interest and penalties" and after "placed in" inserted "a highway revenue account in"; in (2), near beginning before "collected", substituted "taxes" for "funds"; in (8), at end, deleted "only"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1993 Special Session Amendment: Chapter 10 in (1), before "must be allocated", inserted "is statutorily appropriated, as provided in 17-7-502, to the department of transportation and". Amendment effective December 20, 1993.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 22, Ch. 10, Sp. L. November 1993, provided that this section applies retroactively to July 1, 1993.

Amendment effective April 21, 1993.

Chapter 605 in (1), at beginning, substituted "$16,766,000" for "$14,000,000" and near beginning, after "justice's court", deleted "is statutorily appropriated, as provided in 17-7-502, to the department of transportation and"; and in (1)(c), at beginning, substituted "$10,389,000" for "$7,623,000". Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 35, Ch. 455, L. 1993, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all tax periods beginning after December 31, 1992, and to taxes collected by audit after December 31, 1992, or taxes collected after December 31, 1992, if the payment was made after the date on which the tax was payable."

1991 Amendments: Chapter 82 deleted former (3) that read: "(3) Upon receipt of the allocation provided herein, the governing bodies of the recipient counties, cities, and towns shall inform the department of highways of the purposes for which the funds will be expended so that the county commissioners, the governing body, and the department of highways may coordinate the expenditure of public funds for road improvements"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 18, 1991.

Effective Date: Section 6, Ch. 632, L. 1979, provided: "Sections 1 and 4 are effective for fiscal years 1980 and 1981 only." The reference to sec. 4 is apparently an error. The correct reference is apparently a reference to sec. 5, Ch. 632.

Purported 1979 Amendment: Although sec. 4, Ch. 632, L. 1979, purports to amend this code section, all amendments were removed from sec. 4 during the legislative process and no actual amendment was made. If normal procedure had been followed, sec. 4 would have been stricken in its entirety from the bill.

Coordination: Section 7, Ch. 473, L. 1975, provided: "If House Bill No. 198 and this bill are each enacted into law in 1975, it is the intent of the legislature that section 2 of this act controls the taxation of liquid petroleum gas under section 84-1832.1 [15-70-321, now repealed]." House Bill No. 198 was enacted and is 15-70-101.

Severability: Section 4, Ch. 6, Ex. L. 1967, read: "The provisions of this act shall be severable and if any of its sections, provisions, exceptions, sentences, clauses, phrases or parts be held unconstitutional or void, the remainder of this act shall continue in full force and effect."

Section 4, Ch. 355, L. 1969, read: "The provisions of this act shall be severable and if any of its sections, provisions, exceptions, sentences, clauses, phrases or parts be held unconstitutional or void, the remainder of this act shall continue in full force and effect."

Section 2, Ch. 384, L. 1971, read: "The provisions of this act shall be severable and if any of its sections, provisions, exceptions, sentences, clauses, phrases, or parts be held unconstitutional or void, the remainder of this act shall continue in full force and effect."

Case Notes

Local Government's Right to Do Work or Contract It Out: This section's provision that funds allocated to local governments shall be disbursed to the lowest bidder when the contract for construction or repair is above $4,000 (2003 amendment increased amount to $25,000) means either that all work above $4,000 (2003 amendment increased amount to $25,000) must be contracted out by bid or that the local government may do the work itself or contract it out by bid. The court construed the provision to mean the latter. Numerous other statutes relating to construction and repair of roads authorize the local government to do the work itself. It would not be reasonable to assume that only construction and repair funded by gas tax dollars must be contracted out. Attempts to require this by legislation in 1979 and 1985 failed, and the failure is significant. Finally, the entities administering that provision have for 12 years interpreted it to mean that a local government may do the work itself and must follow the provision only if the work is contracted out. Mont. Contractors' Ass'n, Inc. v. Dept. of Highways, 220 M 392, 715 P2d 1056, 43 St. Rep. 470 (1986).

Funds From Sources Other Than Gasoline Tax Used for Nonhighway Purposes: Prohibition against expenditure of gasoline tax revenues for nonhighway purposes has no application to street funds derived from other sources; thus proceeds of levy under another statute could be committed to finance proportionate share of construction costs of city shop complex to be used by various city departments. Greener v. Great Falls, 157 M 376, 485 P2d 932 (1971).

Effect of Appropriation: The appropriation by L. 1947, p. 761, from the gasoline drawback fund "as much as may be necessary to comply with the provisions of the law" was likewise an appropriation of the 1 cent per gallon transferred to the aviation fund under the provisions of 67-1-301. State ex rel. St. Aeronautics Comm'n v. Bd. of Examiners, 121 M 402, 194 P2d 633 (1948), overruled in part in Bd. of Regents v. Judge, 168 M 433, 543 P2d 1323 (1975).

Use of Funds for Erection of Highway Building: Under the implied powers of the Highway Commission (now Transportation Commission) considered necessary to render the granted powers efficacious and the performance of its duties effectual, the erection of the building is a proper function in the administration of the highway program, providing expenditures therefor do not exceed 8% of the Commission's available funds. Guillot v. Highway Comm'n, 102 M 149, 56 P2d 1072 (1936).

Use of Funds Collected Under Prior Act: The fact that a road was a part of the federal forest road did not deprive the Highway Commission (now Transportation Commission) of authority of expending any portion of the gasoline license tax funds derived under a prior act, in matching funds provided by the Federal Aid Act. State ex rel. Mineral County v. Highway Comm'n, 82 M 63, 265 P 1 (1928).

Attorney General's Opinions

Construction of Streets With Gas Tax Revenues — Subject to General Debt Limitation: If a city contracts for street construction work to be paid exclusively from gasoline tax revenue received from the state, the indebtedness is considered part of the city's general debt limitation under 7-7-4201 unless the conditions of some specific exception are otherwise met. 42 A.G. Op. 120 (1988).

Municipal Construction of Storm Sewers With Gas Tax Revenues Allowed — Sinking Fund for General Obligation Bonds Allowed: A city may use its gas tax allocation to construct streets and highways, and because a highway is defined as including "drainage structures", the city may use its share of gasoline tax allocation for construction of storm sewers and drains in and under city streets for removal of runoff water. The city may also place the money allocated in a sinking fund used to pay general obligation bonds sold to finance construction of those sewers, as the only statutory restriction on the use of the funds is that the funds must be used exclusively for city streets. Nor do the statutes governing municipal financing prohibit the use of such money in a sinking fund for general obligation bonds. 40 A.G. Op. 19 (1983).

The legislature intends that the rules adopted by the department address the circumstances under which it is no longer cost-effective to pursue the collection of a tax, penalty, or interest. These circumstances include but are not limited to the difficulty of finding the delinquent taxpayer, the difficulty of locating the assets of the taxpayer, or the financial condition of the taxpayer. In addition, the rules adopted by the department may include procedures to remove, for accounting purposes, a delinquency from the department's accounts receivable.

The legislature also intends that rules provide that if a tax delinquency is written off, it is not forgiven, but the department will incur no further expense in collecting the tax."

Case Notes

Chippewa-Cree Tribal Member Without Standing to Challenge Gas Tax — Incidence of Tax Upon Distributor: Carter, an enrolled member of the Chippewa-Cree Tribe, sold gasoline from a convenience store on the Rocky Boy's Reservation. Carter held a business license issued by the tribe and was not licensed by the state. She alleged that the gasoline tax was unconstitutionally applied to sales by tribal members inside the reservation because the tax is preempted by federal law. The District Court granted summary judgment, holding that Carter lacked standing. Citing Okla. Tax Comm'n v. Chickasaw Nation, 515 US 450, 132 L Ed 2d 400, 115 S Ct 2214 (1995), the Supreme Court affirmed, holding that the incidence of the tax fell upon the distributor and not upon the retailer and that the distributor is not a member of the tribe. For this reason, Carter was not directly and adversely affected by the tax and had no standing to bring the action. Carter v. Dept. of Transportation, 274 M 39, 905 P2d 1102, 52 St. Rep. 1111 (1995), followed in Fleenor v. Darby School District, 2006 MT 31, 331 M 124, 128 P3d 1048 (2006). Fleenor was overruled in Schoof v. Nesbit, 2014 MT 6, 373 Mont. 226, 316 P.3d 831, to the extent Fleenor requires a plaintiff in a right to know or right to participate case to allege an injury beyond failure to receive notice or to allege a personal stake in a particular governmental decision for purposes of establishing standing to pursue a claim.

Effect of Appropriation: The appropriation by Laws 1947, p. 761 from the gasoline drawback fund "as much as may be necessary to comply with the provisions of the law" was likewise an appropriation of the 1 cent per gallon transferred to the aviation fund under the provisions of 67-1-301. State ex rel. St. Aeronautics Comm'n v. Bd. of Examiners, 121 M 402, 194 P2d 633 (1948), overruled in part in Bd. of Regents v. Judge, 168 M 433, 543 P2d 1323 (1975).

ARM 18.9.311 Refund for gasoline lost or destroyed.

Case Notes

Fuel Used in Motorboat — Constitutionality: Under prior law which did not provide for tax refund for gasoline used in motorboats, one who consumed gasoline in motorboat in off-highway use was not entitled to refund on basis of Due Process and Equal Protection Clauses of constitution, since dealer rather than the consumer is the taxpayer, and since consumer, as a boat user, was not proper party to represent all nonhighway users. Harvey v. Blewett, 151 M 427, 443 P2d 902 (1968). (Annotator's Note: The 1979 amendment to former 15-70-221 removed motorboats from the uses for which a refund is authorized.)

Gasoline Lost or Destroyed:

Since there has been no amendment to this law expressing disapproval of an earlier Supreme Court decision that gasoline lost or destroyed should be included in the provision for a refund of the tax paid, the Legislature in effect approved the interpretation. State ex rel. Roeder v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 133 M 393, 324 P2d 1057 (1958).

When gasoline was lost during a flood that tipped over storage tank, the purchaser was entitled to a refund of the tax paid. State ex rel. Roeder v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 133 M 393, 324 P2d 1057 (1958).

When gasoline was lost in derailment of tank cars, the purchaser of the gasoline was entitled to a refund of the license tax paid. State ex rel. Great N. Ry. v. St. Bd of Equalization, 121 M 583, 194 P2d 627 (1948).

Sufficiency of Claim — Substantial Compliance:

When it has been decided that a claimant is entitled to a refund but the claim is such that it cannot be regularly itemized on prescribed forms, the Board (now Department of Transportation) could not set up the failure to comply with technical regulations as a reason for denying the claim. State ex rel. Roeder v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 133 M 393, 324 P2d 1057 (1958).

The State Board of Equalization (now Department of Transportation) could not deny a valid refund claim for the reason that the claim did not comply with the forms provided by the Board when the nature of the claim was such that it could not be regularly itemized on the prescribed form. Where the claimant has complied with the administrative regulations insofar as it was possible under the circumstances, he has substantially complied and is entitled to the refund. State ex rel. Great N. Ry. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 126 M 187, 246 P2d 220 (1952).

Assignment of Claim: There was nothing in a predecessor to this statute which prevented the claimant who was the actual purchaser of the gasoline from assigning his claim for refund to another where he himself has made the application for refund before assignment. State ex rel. Great N. Ry. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 121 M 583, 194 P2d 627 (1948).

Mandamus: In action for mandamus to require approval of claim for refund, the petition must allege that the invoice accompanied the claim. State ex rel. Great N. Ry. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 121 M 583, 194 P2d 627 (1948).

Application for Refund by County: When county brought mandamus to compel State Board of Equalization (now Department of Transportation) to grant county's application for refund of gasoline taxes paid, the entry of a money judgment for the county was error but the court should have ordered a peremptory Writ of Mandate to issue requiring the Board to rescind its action in rejecting claim and requiring that such claim be allowed in proper sum and transmitted to Board of Examiners and Auditor for approval and payment. Roosevelt County v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 118 M 31, 162 P2d 887 (1945).

Attorney General's Opinions

School District Not Allowed to Claim Special Fuel Tax Refund Paid by Bus Service Contractor: When a school district has paid a tax on special fuels, the district may seek a special fuel tax refund regardless of the district activity for which the fuels were used. However, a school district may not claim a special fuel tax refund paid on special fuels by a company that contracts with the school district to provide bus service for the district. 51 A.G. Op. 7 (2005).

Composite Section: The Code Commissioner has not codified subsection (6) enacted by Ch. 723, L. 1991, because that subsection contemplated that the Department of Revenue share the information provided under subsection (5) with the Department of Transportation. Both the Motor Fuel Division of the Department of Revenue and the Department of Highways are within the Department of Transportation created by Ch. 512, L. 1991. Subsection (6) would have required the Department of Transportation to provide certain information to itself. The Code Commissioner has corrected internal references to reflect the deletion of subsection (6).

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 723, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [section 2(10)] [15-70-522(10)] grants rulemaking authority to the department of revenue to allow the reservation of alcohol tax incentives for alcohol distributors who begin production after July 1, 1991, and to reduce or cancel those incentives if a new alcohol distributor does not comply with the written plan. The legislature intends that the department adopt rules that specify the information that must be contained in the written plan. The department shall also develop procedures to verify that the alcohol distributor has obtained financing for the acquisition of the plant, land, and equipment and has secured an adequate supply of agricultural products for the production of alcohol. The rules may include procedures for the review of a new alcohol distributor's business plan or prospectus, architectural plans, and process flows. The department shall also develop procedures for reducing or canceling the reservation of alcohol tax incentives if the department determines that the new alcohol distributor does not comply with the written plan."

2005 Amendment: Chapter 594 substituted language regarding penalty and interest for former (1) and (2) that read: "(1) Interest accrues on unpaid or delinquent taxes as provided in 15-1-216. The interest must be computed from the date on which the return and tax were originally due.

(2) If the payment of a tax deficiency is not made within 60 days after it is due and payable and if the deficiency is due to negligence on the part of the taxpayer but without fraud, the penalty imposed by 15-1-216(1)(c) must be added to the amount of the deficiency". Amendment effective July 1, 2005.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 594, L. 2005, provided: "WHEREAS, the Fifty-Sixth Legislature enacted legislation establishing uniform provisions for the assessment of penalties for late filings of tax returns and other statements and for assessing penalty and interest for delinquent taxes and fees under Titles 15 and 16 of the Montana Code Annotated and certain other taxes and fees; and

WHEREAS, the uniform assessment provisions related to penalties and interest do not apply to every tax or fee imposed under Title 15 and administered by the Department of Revenue; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Revenue's Integrated Revenue Information System is designed to ensure that the state's tax laws are applied fairly and consistently; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the State of Montana and taxpayers to expand the application of the uniform method of assessing penalties and interest."

Applicability: Section 43, Ch. 594, L. 2005, provided: "(1) Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3), [this act] applies on and after July 1, 2005.

1987 Amendment: In (2) substituted "alcoholic beverages" for "liquor".

Case Notes

Impairment of Contracts: The Montana Alcoholic Beverage Code, ch. 1 through 6 of this title, appears to be a valid exercise of the state police power and is not repugnant to the federal constitutional provisions prohibiting impairment of contracts or similar language in the Montana Constitution. Libbey II v. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co., 34 St. Rep. 1254 (D.C. Mont. 1977) (apparently not reported in Federal Supplement).

Preemption: Cities do not have the authority or jurisdiction to enact ordinances dealing with the control of sales of liquor because the state has reserved exclusive control of that function. State ex rel. Libby v. Haswell, 147 M 492, 414 P2d 652 (1966), overruled in Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998).

Police Regulation: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933) and 16-1-103 are police regulations enacted pursuant to the police powers of the state. The acts prohibited are mala prohibita as distinguished from acts mala in se. St. v. Erlandson, 126 M 316, 249 P2d 794 (1952).

Construction: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana and the Montana Beer Act (Ch. 105 and 106, L. 1933) are in pari materia and must be construed together; and with the amendments to those acts are one homogeneous and consistent body of law. Fletcher v. Paige, 124 M 114, 220 P2d 484 (1950).

Referendums: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933) does not relate to appropriations of public money and is therefore not exempt from referendum. Failure to state that enactment is necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health, etc., and does not alone effect referability; referability is a question for the courts, immediate necessity being an essential condition. State ex rel. Haynes v. District Court, 106 M 470, 78 P2d 937 (1938).

Act Exercise of Police Power: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933) is an exercise of a governmental function within the police power of the state. St. v. Andre, 101 M 366, 54 P2d 566 (1936).

Act Not for Raising Revenue: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933), the main purpose of which is to regulate the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor, but which incidentally results in profits to the state from the operation of state liquor stores, does not violate Art. V, sec. 32, 1889 Mont. Const. (no counterpart in 1972 Mont. Const.), which provides that bills for raising revenue must originate in the House of Representatives. St. v. Driscoll, 101 M 348, 54 P2d 571 (1936).

Constitutional Law: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933) does not violate the 1889 Montana Constitution (now Art. V, sec. 11, and Art. VIII, sec. 1, 1972 Mont. Const.) requirements that the subject of an act be clearly expressed in the act's title, and that state revenue come from a mandatory property tax and a permissive license tax, two methods of taxation which are not exclusive under the requirement. Other taxes may be levied. St. v. Driscoll, 101 M 348, 54 P2d 571 (1936).

Attorney General's Opinions

No Authority in Local Governing Body to Prohibit Minors in Licensed Premises: An incorporated town with general powers does not have the authority to enact an ordinance prohibiting underage persons from being on licensed premises where alcoholic beverages are sold and consumed because the entire control of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of alcoholic beverages is retained within the State of Montana. The local government may not enact an ordinance providing for greater penalties than those found in 45-5-624 for an underage person convicted of possession of alcoholic beverages. 41 A.G. Op. 84 (1986).

Local Governments Preempted From Controlling Beer Sales: In Montana, neither cities nor counties have authority to enact ordinances requiring wholesale and retail distributors of keg beer to keep and maintain records of the sales or distribution of all beer kegs within the city or county. 40 A.G. Op. 48 (1984).

City License — Effect on State License: A city may license a beer distributor under 16-4-503 but may not thereby limit or make ineffective a state license. 37 A.G. Op. 100 (1977).

Local Governments Preempted From Controlling Beer Sales: By enacting this section, the Legislature reserved to the State the entire control of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of beer. Regulation of Nude Dancing by Municipality: Under the broad regulatory powers of the twenty-first amendment, a municipality with self-government powers may enact an ordinance that regulates nude and seminude dancing. Billings v. Laedeke, 247 M 151, 805 P2d 1348, 48 St. Rep. 133 (1991).

Preemption: Cities do not have the authority or jurisdiction to enact ordinances dealing with the control of sales of liquor, since the state has taken exclusive control of that function. State ex rel. Libby v. Haswell, 147 M 492, 414 P2d 652 (1966), overruled in Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998).

Police Regulation: This section is a police regulation and enacted pursuant to the police powers of the state. Deeds prohibited are mala prohibita as distinguished from acts mala in se. St. v. Erlandson, 126 M 316, 249 P2d 794 (1952).

Purpose: The people of this state are to be protected in their "health, welfare and safety" by this section and by the rules and regulations promulgated. Perry v. Luding, 123 M 570, 217 P2d 207 (1950).

Commerce Clause of Federal Constitution Not Violated: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933), in effect regulating the importation of intoxicating liquor from other states, does not violate the Commerce Clause, in view of the section in the 21st amendment prohibiting the transportation or importation into any state of intoxicating liquor in violation of the laws of a state. St. v. Andre, 101 M 366, 54 P2d 566 (1936).

Attorney General's Opinions

No Authority in Local Governing Body to Prohibit Minors in Licensed Premises: An incorporated town with general powers does not have the authority to enact an ordinance prohibiting underage persons from being on licensed premises where alcoholic beverages are sold and consumed because the entire control of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of alcoholic beverages is retained within the State of Montana. Regulation of Live Dance Performance in Licensed Liquor Establishment — Abridgment of Free Expression: The validity of a city ordinance regulating live dance performances in establishments licensed to serve liquor must be measured against free expression standards imposed by Art. II, sec. 7, Mont. Const., and the first amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Therefore, a proposed city ordinance prohibiting any live performance involving dance or the removal of clothing in licensed liquor establishments is an unconstitutional abridgment of the constitutional standards because: (1) it fails to distinguish carefully between protected and unprotected conduct; and (2) the requisite governmental interest in regulating such conduct has not been sufficiently established. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

State Authority to Regulate Liquor — No Delegation to Municipalities: The authority granted to the state by the 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution to regulate the sale of liquor has not been delegated to municipalities with general powers. Therefore, a municipality with general powers may not punish a violation of its obscenity ordinance by suspending or revoking the liquor license of the offender. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

1987 Amendment: In two places substituted "alcoholic beverages" for "liquor".

Denial of License — Lack of Public Convenience and Necessity — Adjudicative Process Warranted: Appellants contended that the Department of Revenue's denial of the issuance of all-beverages licenses based on a lack of evidence of public convenience and necessity was improper. In affirming the denial, the Supreme Court noted that the choice made between proceeding by general rule or by individual ad hoc litigation is one that lies primarily in the informed discretion of the administrative agency. Therefore, the Department's use of the adjudicatory process to determine whether the licenses were warranted was not an invalid exercise of rulemaking authority. Because the determination of public convenience and necessity involves a fact-intensive inquiry, it is not necessary that the Department adopt rigid rules defining the term. Ramage v. Dept. of Revenue, 236 M 69, 768 P2d 864, 46 St. Rep. 187 (1989), followed in Kiser v. Dept. of Revenue, 1999 MT 228, 296 M 93, 987 P2d 363, 56 St. Rep. 897 (1999).

Legality of Contract of Purchase: In a declaratory judgment action by the State Treasurer to determine his duties with regard to a $150,000 draft drawn upon him by the Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) on funds deposited with him and raised by the Board through participation of 127 state retail dealers to cover a downpayment on 15,000 cases of liquor to meet a war emergency shortage, the state to take its markup and sell the liquor to the dealers, held that the purchase was made within the Board's power under this section, nothing herein qualifying or limiting its right or method of purchase. Case Notes

Rationing System: The Montana Liquor Control Board's (now Department of Revenue) agreement with retail liquor dealers, advancing $10 a case toward enabling the Board to make an advance payment was not invalidated by the Board's rationing system, since under this section, as it read at the time, the Board could establish, amend, and alter its system either directly or by lawful transactions with exception of discrimination among holders of any class of permits. Carey v. McFatridge, 115 M 278, 142 P2d 229 (1943).

Scope of Rules: The Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) is an administrative body; it has no lawmaking power, and while it is authorized to make rules, they must be limited in their purpose and effect as an aid in the administration of the law of its creation, and any such rules calculated to widen the scope of the law and extend the Board's discretionary powers to matters beyond the purview of the act are void and of no effect. McFatridge v. District Court, 113 M 81, 122 P2d 834 (1942).

Rules of Substitute Board: Delegation of power to the State Board of Equalization (now State Tax Appeal Board) acting ex officio as beer board administering Montana Beer Act (Ch. 106, L. 1933) to make rules for the proper carrying into effect of the Act, held not objectionable as a delegation of legislative power. State ex rel. Steward v. District Court, 103 M 487, 63 P2d 141 (1936).

Attorney General's Opinions

No Authority in Local Governing Body to Prohibit Minors in Licensed Premises: An incorporated town with general powers does not have the authority to enact an ordinance prohibiting underage persons from being on licensed premises where alcoholic beverages are sold and consumed because the entire control of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of alcoholic beverages is retained within the State of Montana. The local government may not enact an ordinance providing for greater penalties than those found in 45-5-624 for an underage person convicted of possession of alcoholic beverages. 41 A.G. Op. 84 (1986).

State Authority to Regulate Liquor — No Delegation to Municipalities: The authority granted to the state by the 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution to regulate the sale of liquor has not been delegated to municipalities with general powers. Therefore, a municipality with general powers may not punish a violation of its obscenity ordinance by suspending or revoking the liquor license of the offender. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

Vested Interest Not Gained by Mere Submission of Beer and Wine Application — Retroactive Application of General Rule on Denial of Building Permit: Town Pump, Inc. (Town Pump), was required to obtain subdivision approval in order to complete a property conveyance for the building of a convenience store, gas station, and casino wherein beer and wine would be sold. After Town Pump had submitted an application for a beer and wine license, the property was rezoned as a commercial highway, and the city subsequently adopted a development code requiring a conditional use permit for the property in order for beer and wine to be sold on premises. Town Pump's application was denied based on the provisions of the new development code. Applying the rationale in Femling v. Mont. St. Univ., 220 M 133, 713 P2d 996 (1986), and Wallace v. Dept. of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, 269 M 364, 889 P2d 817 (1995), the Supreme Court held that Town Pump did not gain a vested interest in the beer and wine application merely because the application was submitted before the adoption of the development plan. The general rule is that the denial of an application for a building permit may be based on a zoning regulation enacted or becoming effective after the application was made; therefore, a zoning regulation may be retroactively applied to deny an application for a building permit, even though the permit could have been lawfully issued at the time of application. The court concluded that the development code was neither arbitrary nor unreasonable in its effects, that it did not impair or burden any vested interest or passed transaction held by Town Pump, and that retroactive application of the development code did not deny Town Pump's constitutional right to due process. Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998).

Case Lot Liquor Discount Applicable to Retail Price Rather Than Posted Price — Taxes Based on Discounted Retail Price: The terms of this section, authorizing the Department of Revenue to apply a 5% discount to the price of liquor sold in unbroken case lots, require that the discount apply to the retail price, which does not include liquor excise or license taxes. However, taxes are based on the discounted retail price of the liquor, which results in the same amount of excise and license tax revenues as if the discount had been applied to the retail price with the taxes included. 1985 Amendment: Inserted "or beer importer" in 11 places with minor variations in phraseology.

Case Notes

Notice and Cause: Brewer's distributorship contract with wholesaler could not be reconciled with the provisions of 16-3-221 and 16-3-222 providing for termination only for just cause and on 60 days' notice where the contract provided for termination on 30 days' notice without cause. That provision of the contract was therefore invalid. Maykuth v. Adolph Coors Co., 690 F2d 689 (9th Cir. 1982).

Termination for Dishonesty: Distributorship contract's provision allowing for immediate termination by brewer for certain serious acts by wholesaler, including a felony and "dishonesty", clearly contemplated extremely serious dishonesty. It did not cover wholesaler's out-of-state sales, failure to explain increased sales to supermarket participating in out-of-state sales, and refusal to retrieve beer involved in out-of-state sales. At most, wholesaler breached other provisions of the contract. Maykuth v. Adolph Coors Co., 690 F2d 689 (9th Cir. 1982).

Impairment of Contracts: The Montana Alcoholic Beverage Code, ch. 1 through 6 of this title, appears to be a valid exercise of the state police power and is not repugnant to the federal constitutional provisions prohibiting impairment of contracts or similar language in the Montana Constitution. Libbey II v. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co., 34 St. Rep. 1254 (D.C. Mont. 1977) (apparently not reported in Federal Supplement).

16-3-222. Mandatory provisions of brewer-wholesaler or beer importer-wholesaler contracts, agreements, and franchises.

Compiler's Comments

Amendment effective April 6, 2009.

Severability: Section 4, Ch. 181, L. 2009, was a severability clause.

Saving Clause: Section 5, Ch. 181, L. 2009, was a saving clause.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 194 inserted (6) requiring contracts, agreements, or franchises to contain provision that agreements are interpreted and governed by Montana law; inserted (7) requiring that litigation resulting from a dispute occur in Montana unless unreasonable burden created; inserted (8) requiring that agreements must recognize constitutional right to jury trial; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1985 Amendment: Inserted several references to "beer importer" and to "wholesaler and beer importer" after "brewer" and "wholesaler and brewer".

Case Notes

Notice and Cause: Brewer's distributorship contract with wholesaler could not be reconciled with the provisions of 16-3-221 and 16-3-222 providing for termination only for just cause and on 60 days' notice where the contract provided for termination on 30 days' notice without cause. That provision of the contract was therefore invalid. Maykuth v. Adolph Coors Co., 690 F2d 689 (9th Cir. 1982).

Waiver of Notice: Wholesaler's failure to seek an injunction against brewer's termination of distributorship contract was not a waiver of his right under this section to 60 days' notice of termination. Notice offered after termination was no notice at all and without practical value or effect. Brewer breached the contract and was liable for damages. Maykuth v. Adolph Coors Co., 690 F2d 689 (9th Cir. 1982).

Similar Provision Not Codified: Subsection (1)(c) of section 4-4-401, R.C.M. 1947, was not codified in the MCA, as it stated that this code may not be construed to repeal or change any provision of this code requiring what, in effect, this section requires and is thus unnecessary. The subsection was enacted by sec. 1, Ch. 122, L. 1963 (sec. 4-341, R.C.M. 1947). Section 4-341 was amended and redesignated 4-4-401 by sec. 68, Ch. 387, L. 1975. Case Notes

Indirect Financial Interest of Liquor Distributor in Retail Liquor Businesses Prohibited: Williamson owned controlling interests in a wholesale beer and wine distribution company and also in an electronic gaming machine business that periodically made loans to alcohol retailers. Williamson was found to be in violation of the alcoholic beverage code because the distribution company had a prohibited indirect financial interest in a liquor retailer to which the gaming machine business had made a loan. Williamson contended on appeal that the provisions of 16-3-242 were construed too broadly and should apply only to an ownership interest and not to a financial interest. The Supreme Court disagreed. Williamson's common business interest and control over the two companies constituted just the type of circuitous indirect financial interest that is prohibited by 16-3-242 and 16-3-406 and gave the distribution company an impermissible indirect financial interest in the alcohol retailers. The District Court was affirmed. Shelby Distrib., LLC v. Dept. of Revenue, 2009 MT 80, 349 M 489, 206 P3d 899 (2009).

Sanction for Unlawful Control of Retail Liquor License and Wholesale Distributor License Not Violative of Due Process: Williamson owned controlling interests in a wholesale beer and wine distribution company and also in an electronic gaming machine business that periodically made loans to alcohol retailers, for which Williamson had approval from the Department of Justice. Following an investigation by the Department of Revenue, Williamson was found to be in violation of the alcoholic beverage code because the distribution company had a prohibited indirect financial interest in a liquor retailer to which the gaming machine business had made a loan. The Department of Revenue ordered the distribution company to pay a $1,500 fine, and ordered Williamson either to divest himself of common ownership of the two companies or to cease making loans to alcohol retailers. The distribution company appealed the decision to District Court on grounds that its due process rights had been violated and that the Department of Revenue had misinterpreted the law, but the court affirmed the Department order. On appeal, plaintiff contended that due process was violated when one department sanctioned the loan activity that had been previously approved by another department. The Supreme Court disagreed. Each department controlled separate functions and each required separate licenses. The Department of Justice approval of loans did not unfairly mislead Williamson into believing that the distribution company was free from the constraints of state liquor control laws. Further, the sanction in this case, the major part of which was simply an order that the prohibited conduct must cease, did not constitute treatment that was so fundamentally unfair that it violated plaintiff's due process rights. The District Court was affirmed. Shelby Distrib., LLC v. Dept. of Revenue, 2009 MT 80, 349 M 489, 206 P3d 899 (2009), distinguishing Seaman v. Dept. of Revenue, 2002 MT 34, 308 M 307, 42 P3d 790 (2002).

Regulation of Live Dance Performance in Licensed Liquor Establishment — Abridgment of Free Expression: The validity of a city ordinance regulating live dance performances in establishments licensed to serve liquor must be measured against free expression standards imposed by Art. II, sec. 7, Mont. Const., and the first amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Therefore, a proposed city ordinance prohibiting any live performance involving dance or the removal of clothing in licensed liquor establishments is an unconstitutional abridgment of the constitutional standards because: (1) it fails to distinguish carefully between protected and unprotected conduct; and (2) the requisite governmental interest in regulating such conduct has not been sufficiently established. 41 A.G. Effective Date: Section 9(1), Ch. 217, L. 1987, provided: "This act is effective April 1, 1987."

Severability: Section 7, Ch. 217, L. 1987, was a severability section.

Construction With Other Law: Under 27-1-710(2), no provision of Title 16 may be used to find civil liability for furnishing alcohol to a person who causes damage or an injury. Liability may only be grounded in a violation of 27-1-710.

Case Notes
Liability for Alcohol-Related Injuries — Statute Not Retroactively Applied: After consuming alcohol at a bar for 3 hours, a truck driver died from injuries received in an accident. His widow sued the bar, claiming that its action in allowing the driver to drink and then drive was the proximate cause of his death. The District Court granted the bar's motion for a judgment on the pleadings for a failure to state a claim for relief, ruling that Montana did not recognize common-law dram shop liability against the bar owner. Upon appeal, the Supreme Court held that the 1986 law (27-1-710) defining civil liability for injuries involving alcohol consumption cannot be applied retroactively. The court also ruled that the District Court erred in granting the motion for judgment on the pleadings as the widow's complaint alleging negligence by the bar properly stated a claim for relief. Jevning v. Skyline Bar, 223 M 422, 726 P2d 326, 43 St. Rep. 1845 (1986).

Guilt of Minor Misrepresenting His Age: While this part holds that a minor is "equally guilty" with a licensee selling to him, it does not mean that he is held as a matter of law to be an accomplice of the person charged with selling intoxicating liquor to an underage person. The minor's crime would be the misdemeanor of knowingly misrepresenting his qualifications for the purpose of obtaining liquor. St. v. Paskvan, 131 M 316, 309 P2d 1019 (1957).

Entrapment: Defense of entrapment would not be available to a bar owner in a prosecution for selling liquor to a minor where it was shown that the public officers had given a minor money and sent him into the bar to purchase the liquor in order to obtain evidence. St. v. Parr, 129 M 175, 283 P2d 1086 (1955), distinguished in Henderson v. U.S., 237 F2d 169 (5th Cir. 1956). (Dissenting opinion, 129 M 183, 283 P2d 1086 (1955).)

Ostensible Agency: A conviction of the owner of a tavern for a violation of this section was upheld where a barmaid at the tavern sold beer to minors, although the barmaid was not on the defendant's payroll. There was ample evidence tending to show, at the very least, an ostensible agency. St. v. Erlandson, 126 M 316, 249 P2d 794 (1952).

CASE NOTES UNDER FORMER LAW (SEE 27-1-710, MCA)

Bar Selling to Intoxicated Minor — Liability to Minor: A bar or tavern operator who serves an intoxicated minor may be liable in damages for injuries subsequently sustained by the minor. The imbiber's acts of drinking alcoholic beverages served by the bar or tavern operator and then becoming involved in an injury-producing accident may be reasonably foreseeable events which may no longer protect a defendant from liability for negligence. Under the state's system of comparative negligence, it is for the jury to determine the degree of negligence attributable to the plaintiff and defendant. Neither a plaintiff's nor a defendant's acts have to be the sole proximate cause of the injuries. To the extent that Swartzenberger v. Billings Labor Temple Ass'n, 179 M 145, 586 P2d 712, 35 St. Rep. 1625 (1978), and Folda v. Bozeman, 177 M 537, 582 P2d 767, 35 St. Rep. 1019 (1978), imply that the imbiber's act of drinking is the sole proximate cause of a resulting injury, they are overruled. Folda was also overruled, as to the standard that a property owner is absolved of liability because a dangerous condition upon the premises is open and obvious, in Richardson v. Corvallis Pub. School District No. 1, 286 M 309, 950 P2d 748, 54 St. Rep. 1422 (1997). Bissett v. DMI, Inc., 220 M 153, 717 P2d 545, 43 St. Rep. 252 (1986).

Violation of Alcoholic Beverage Control Statutes — Evidence of Negligence: Although not negligence per se, violation of the alcoholic beverage control statutes is judicially recognized as evidence of negligence with regard to a tavern operator's liability for off-premises injuries to a third party injured by a patron of the tavern. As for causation, consumption of the alcoholic beverages served, subsequent driving, and the likelihood of an injury-producing accident are foreseeable intervening acts that do not relieve the tavern operator of liability for negligence. Nehring v. LaCounte, 219 M 462, 712 P2d 1329, 43 St. Rep. 93 (1986), followed in Bissett v. DMI, Inc., 220 M 153, 717 P2d 545, 43 St. Rep. 252 (1986).

Violation of Alcoholic Beverage Control Statutes Not Negligence as Matter of Law: With regard to a tavern operator's liability for off-premises injuries to a third party injured by a patron of the tavern, the Supreme Court held that a violation of the alcoholic beverage control statutes was not negligence as a matter of law. It is not negligence per se because the two statutes in question were enacted to regulate the business of selling liquor and beer in order to protect the people of the state generally and the interests of the state rather than to protect against any particular kind of injury or provide a civil remedy. Nehring v. LaCounte, 219 M 462, 712 P2d 1329, 43 St. Rep. 93 (1986), followed in Bissett v. DMI, Inc., 220 M 153, 717 P2d 545, 43 St. Rep. 252 (1986).

Bar Selling to Intoxicated Adult — Liability to Injured Third Person: Air Force NCO Club personnel's giving of alcoholic beverage to intoxicated adult after the legal closing time for a retail liquor establishment in violation of this section and 16-3-305 was negligence per se and a proximate cause of injury to passenger in intoxicated person's auto, which went off the road and hit a tree. Intoxicated person was also negligent and his intoxication was also a proximate cause of the injury, and passenger assumed the risk of injuries when he rode with person he thought was intoxicated and an unsafe driver. Defendant U.S. was liable to passenger to the degree of defendant's negligence. Johnson v. U.S., 496 F. Supp. 597, 37 St. Rep. 1581 (D.C. Mont. 1980).

Nature of Purveyor of Alcohol: Whether alcoholic beverages were commercially served or socially served will be taken into consideration in considering liability of server to a third party injured in an auto accident involving servee. Runge v. Watts, 180 M 91, 589 P2d 145, 36 St. Rep. 85 (1979).

Section's Application to Social Purveyors of Alcohol: This section's provision that no licensee or his or her employee or employees, nor any other person, shall sell, deliver, or give away or cause or permit to be sold, delivered or given away any alcoholic beverage to . . . any person under the age of 18 (changed to 19 by 1979 amendment and changed to 21 by 1987 amendment) does not apply to a social purveyor of alcoholic beverages. Runge v. Watts, 180 M 91, 589 P2d 145, 36 St. Rep. 85 (1979).

Serving Minor at Private Party — Liability to Injured Third Person: Minor drank beer furnished by host of private party and had an auto accident while driving from host's home. Plaintiff passenger in minor's auto was injured. Minor's drinking, not host's serving of beer to him, was the proximate cause of the accident, and host was not liable to passenger under common-law negligence principles. Runge v. Watts, 180 M 91, 589 P2d 145, 36 St. Rep. 85 (1979), overruled, as to statement that the drinking, not the serving, was the proximate cause of the injury, by Nehring v. LaCounte, 219 M 462, 712 P2d 1329, 43 St. Rep. 93 (1986).

Bars Selling to Intoxicated Adult — Liability to Survivors: Adult drank excessively at two bars from late morning into the evening, fell down the stairs at one of them, and died of injuries sustained. His wife sued on behalf of herself and her two children. The bars may have been negligent per se, but the bartenders knew decedent was an experienced heavy drinker, and could not reasonably know he would fall and die as a result of the drinking. Decedent's contributory negligence intervened between any negligence of the bartenders and his death, and was the proximate cause of his death. His contributory negligence was a complete bar to recovery. Swartzenberger v. Billings Labor Temple Ass'n, 179 M 145, 586 P2d 712, 35 St. Rep. 1625 (1978). To the extent that Swartzenberger implies that the imbiber's act of drinking is the sole proximate cause of any resulting injury to the imbiber, the case is overruled by Bissett v. DMI, Inc., 220 M 153, 717 P2d 545, 43 St. Rep. 252 (1986).

Bar Selling to Intoxicated Minor — Liability to Estate: Minor was served liquor and beer by V.F.W. Club, in violation of former law, when she was obviously extremely intoxicated. She was unable to leave the club on her own, had to be helped out, and drowned in a stream near the club after apparently having entered the stream of her own accord. Evidence supported the conclusion that she became voluntarily intoxicated and disregarded her duty to use due care for her own safety, and this was the proximate cause of her death. The rule that contributory negligence precludes any recovery against a defendant was in effect at the time of the death, and the club was not liable to the estate of a decedent minor. Folda v. Bozeman, 177 M 537, 582 P2d 767, 35 St. Rep. 1019 (1978). To the extent that Folda implies that the imbiber's act of drinking is the sole proximate cause of any resulting injury to the imbiber, the case is overruled by Bissett v. DMI, Inc., 220 M 153, 717 P2d 545, 43 St. Rep. 252 (1986). Folda was also overruled, as to the standard that a property owner is absolved of liability because a dangerous condition upon the premises is open and obvious, in Richardson v. Corvallis Pub. School District No. 1, 286 M 309, 950 P2d 748, 54 St. Rep. 1422 (1997).

Bar Selling to Intoxicated Minor — Liability to Injured Third Party: Air Force NCO Club personnel served minor airman liquor in violation of this section. They knew he was drinking excessively, and knew that airmen at the club would be driving their dates home. Minor left the club while intoxicated and had an accident in which plaintiff passenger was injured. The serving of liquor to the minor was a proximate cause of the plaintiff's injuries. The plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence where she was 17, had been drinking, and relied on airman for a ride home. The United States was liable to plaintiff. Deeds v. U.S., 306 F. Supp. 348 (D.C. Mont. 1969).

Bar Selling to Patron — Liability to Injured Third Party: Bar patron was shoved by girl on stool next to his when he attempted to kiss her. He fell off the stool and knocked nearby plaintiff to the floor, injuring her. There was no proof that bar had served patron, that he was ill-behaved, or that bar violated statute prohibiting a person from giving liquor to any person apparently under the influence of liquor. Plaintiff could not recover from bar as she proved no duty created by the facts and violated by the bar; her injury was proximately caused by the patron, not the bar. Nevin v. Carlasco, 139 M 512, 365 P2d 637 (1961). However, see Harrington v. The Crystal Bar, Inc., 2013 MT 209, 371 Mont. 165, 306 P.3d 342 (reversing grant of summary judgment to a bar when pleadings indicated the bar operator had some knowledge of a potential conflict).

Case Notes

Negligence Per Se: Violation of this section, enacted for the health, welfare, and safety of the people of Montana, is negligence per se. Plaintiff was injured in accident involving vehicle driven by person defendant allegedly served in violation of this section. Johnson v. U.S., 496 F. Supp. 597, 37 St. Rep. 1581 (D.C. Mont. 1980).

Exclusive Jurisdiction: When there was alleged violation of city ordinance restricting hours of sale but same was not violation of former state law, police court (now City Court) in city had exclusive jurisdiction over matter. State ex rel. Goodwin v. District Court, 167 M 179, 536 P2d 766 (1975).

"Closed" Defined: The word "closed" means absolutely closed, to close off the front, sides, and rear of that part of a room which is used for the purpose of selling liquor. It makes no difference whether any liquor is sold or not; the offense consists in its being open. St. v. Perez, 126 M 15, 243 P2d 309 (1952).

Complaint — Sufficiency: A complaint that alleges "on or about" a certain day of a certain month is sufficient since the precise day is not of the essence of the offense; and it is sufficient if the evidence discloses the unlawful sale of liquor on a day other than the date disclosed in the complaint. State ex rel. Borberg v. District Court, 125 M 481, 240 P2d 854 (1952).

Attorney General's Opinions

Band Members as Bar Employees — Restriction From Premises After Closing Not Required: Members of a band hired to perform at a bar are considered employees within the meaning of this section and may remain on the premises after closing time. 44 A.G. Op. 2 (1991).

Closure of Poker Room After Hours Not Required — Alcoholic Beverages Prohibited: Absent local regulations to the contrary, a licensee may operate a poker game on premises licensed for sale of alcoholic beverages during hours of closure enumerated in 16-3-304; however, persons on the licensed premises, including the poker room, may not consume alcoholic beverages during the hours of closure even if the beverages were purchased prior to closing time. 42 A.G. Op. 10 (1987).

State Authority to Regulate Liquor — No Delegation to Municipalities: The authority granted to the state by the 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution to regulate the sale of liquor has not been delegated to municipalities with general powers. Therefore, a municipality with general powers may not punish a violation of its obscenity ordinance by suspending or revoking the liquor license of the offender. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

Negligence Per Se: Violation of this section, enacted for the health, welfare, and safety of the people of Montana, is negligence per se. Plaintiff was injured in accident involving vehicle driven by person defendant allegedly served in violation of this section. Johnson v. U.S., 496 F. Supp. 597, 37 St. Rep. 1581 (D.C. Mont. 1980).

Restaurant Business: When the dining room is entirely separate from the barroom with a connecting door, this section is violated by keeping the barroom open after hours and allowing people to remain therein. The restaurant business may be conducted without using the barroom. St. v. Perez, 126 M 15, 243 P2d 309 (1952).

Attorney General's Opinions

When Nonemployees Allowed on Bar Premises After Closing — Consumption of Alcohol Not Allowed: Under this section, nonemployees may remain on the premises of a bar after closing time as long as the owner of the licensed premises is engaged in a lawful business; however, nonemployees may not consume alcoholic beverages on the premises after closing time, even if the beverages were purchased prior to closing. 44 A.G. Op. 2 (1991).

Closure of Poker Room After Hours Not Required — Alcoholic Beverages Prohibited: Absent local regulations to the contrary, a licensee may operate a poker game on premises licensed for sale of alcoholic beverages during hours of closure enumerated in 16-3-304; however, persons on the licensed premises, including the poker room, may not consume alcoholic beverages during the hours of closure even if the beverages were purchased prior to closing time. 42 A.G. Op. 10 (1987).

Case Notes

Showing of Constitutionally Protected Property Interest Required — Federal and State Claims: Plaintiff brought property interest claims against a city and city council members on several state and federal grounds after a state liquor license was denied. The city had enacted ordinances disallowing the sale of alcohol in the city without a conditional use permit and then denied plaintiff's application for a permit. The District Court held that plaintiff's property interest claims were invalid, and plaintiff appealed. The Supreme Court noted that to establish a viable claim under 42 U.S.C. 1983, a plaintiff must first establish that it possesses a protected liberty or property interest and has a legitimate claim of entitlement to that interest. Under state due process and takings law, a plaintiff must also establish a property interest, and a property interest exists only when the Legislature has so narrowly circumscribed the issuing agency's discretion that approval of the interest is virtually assured. Receipt of a liquor license is a privilege and not a right. Plaintiff had yet to obtain a state liquor license at the time that the ordinances were passed and thus had no property interest in operating a bar, nor could plaintiff assert ultimate entitlement to a liquor license. Therefore, plaintiff's inability to demonstrate a protected property interest in operating property as a bar precluded the establishment of federal or state property claims against the city and City Council members, nor did the city deprive plaintiff of a protected property interest by enacting the ordinances or denying a conditional use permit. The District Court was affirmed. Germann v. Stephens, 2006 MT 130, 332 M 303, 137

P3d 545 (2006), following ISC Distrib., Inc. v. Trevor, 273 M 185, 903 P2d 170 (1995), and Kiely Constr. v. Red Lodge, 2002 MT 241, 312 M 52, 57 P3d 836 (2002).

Administrative Rule Void When Contrary to Longstanding Administrative Interpretation: The Department of Revenue's longstanding administrative interpretation of the meaning of "on the same street" as used in 16-3-306 has the force and effect of law due to the repeated reenactment of that section by the Legislature without change in the operative language that no license be issued to a business "on the same street" and within 600 feet of a church or school. Thus, the interpretation could not be changed, and an administrative rule making a change is invalid. Hovey v. Dept. of Revenue, 203 M 27, 659 P2d 280, 40 St. Rep. 272 (1983).

Entrances "On the Same Street": When the phrase "on the same street", as used in this section, is read in conjunction with the section's requirement that the distance between the premises of the business and a church or school be measured in a straight line from entrance to entrance, it is evident that the Legislature intended the provision to apply only when the entrance to the business and the entrance to the church or school are on the same street. Hovey v. Dept. of Revenue, 203 M 27, 659 P2d 280, 40 St. Rep. 272 (1983).

1995 Amendment: Chapter 530 near middle, after "from", substituted "an agency" for "a state" and after "established by the" substituted "department" for "store"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 25, 1995.

16-3-309. Sales prohibited by ordinance.

Compiler's Comments

1983 Amendment: Substituted entire text (see 1983 Session Law) for "(1) The cities and incorporated towns may enact ordinances defining certain areas in the cities and towns where alcoholic beverages may or may not be sold.

(2) No incorporated city or incorporated town may by ordinance restrict the number of licenses that the department may issue."

Case Notes

Preemption: Cities do not have the authority or jurisdiction to enact ordinances dealing with the control of sales of liquor; the state has exclusive authority in that matter. State ex rel. Libby v. Haswell, 147 M 492, 414 P2d 652 (1966), overruled in Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998).

Power of City Council to Limit Number of Beer Parlors: A city council could (prior to 1947 amendment of the Montana Beer Act taking this power away from cities) properly limit the number of places in the city where beer and liquor at retail might be sold and then refuse to issue a license to the assignee of a Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) license, and in doing so was not depriving him of property without due process of law. State ex rel. McIntire v. Libby, 107 M 216, 82 P2d 587 (1938), explained in Stephens v. Great Falls, 119 M 368, 175 P2d 408 (1938).

Attorney General's Opinions

No Authority in Local Governing Body to Prohibit Minors in Licensed Premises: An incorporated town with general powers does not have the authority to enact an ordinance prohibiting underage persons from being on licensed premises where alcoholic beverages are sold and consumed because the entire control of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of alcoholic beverages is retained within the State of Montana. The local government may not enact an ordinance providing for greater penalties than those found in 45-5-624 for an underage person convicted of possession of alcoholic beverages. 41 A.G. Op. 84 (1986).

State Authority to Regulate Liquor — No Delegation to Municipalities: The authority granted to the state by the 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution to regulate the sale of liquor has not been delegated to municipalities with general powers. Therefore, a municipality with general powers may not punish a violation of its obscenity ordinance by suspending or revoking the liquor license of the offender. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

Local Governments Preempted From Controlling Beer Sales: In Montana, neither cities nor counties have authority to enact ordinances requiring wholesale and retail distributors of keg beer to keep and maintain records of the sales or distribution of all beer kegs within the city or county. 40 A.G. Op. 48 (1984).

City License — Effect on State License: A city may license a beer distributor under 16-4-503 but may not thereby limit or make ineffective a state license. 37 A.G. Op. 100 (1977).

Case Notes

Commencement of Nonuse Period: Plaintiffs ignored reality by contending that the 90-day period of nonuse commenced upon conditional approval, and that the right to transfer vested on that date, subject to divestment only upon failure to meet health requirements and inspection. The fair and logical answer is that the license continues in the old place of business (as long as it is actively being used) until the ultimate transfer is approved by the licensing authority. State ex rel. Corette v. Dept. of Revenue, 176 M 276, 577 P2d 1214 (1978).

Limitation of Actions: Licensee, whose license was revoked for nonuse, was barred from relief by his failure to take action within 15 days after receipt of notice from the Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue). State ex rel. Gillespie v. Mont. Liquor Control Bd., 150 M 26, 430 P2d 112 (1967).

Short, Temporary Opening to Avoid Statute: Licenses lapse automatically if not used for 90 days, and the statutory nonuse period could not be avoided by opening bar to the public for a few hours of 1 day. State ex rel. Gillespie v. Mont. Liquor Control Bd., 150 M 26, 430 P2d 112 (1967).

2007 Amendment: Chapter 501 in (2) at end after "wine" deleted "by licensed table wine distributors"; and in (3) substituted "This part governs wineries, table wine distributors, and wine retailers" for former language that read: "This part governs relationships between suppliers and table wine distributors, and because the legislature recognizes the public interest and the interests of suppliers and table wine distributors in the fair, efficient, and competitive distribution of table wine, this part is intended to:

(a) protect the table wine distributor's independence in managing the distributor's business, including the establishment of selling prices; and

1987 Amendment: Before "wine by the state" and before "wine distributors" inserted "table" and near end, before "by licensed", deleted "containing not more than 14% alcohol by volume".

Alcohol Percentage Changed: Chapter 16, L. 1985, amended the definition of table wine in 16-1-106 by increasing the maximum alcohol percentage from 14% to 16%. Evidently this section was inadvertently not amended.

Commissioner Correction: The Code Commissioner, 1979, deleted the sentence: "When the words 'table wine' are used in this act in either the singular or plural they refer only to wine containing not more than 14% alcohol by volume." as redundant with the definition of "table wine" given in 16-1-106.

Construction: Section 13, Initiative 81, provided in part: "This code shall not be construed or interpreted so as to repeal, amend, modify, change, or alter any provisions of this code which require beer and table wine manufactured outside of Montana to be consigned to and shipped to a licensed beer wholesaler or licensed table wine distributor and by him unloaded into his warehouse or subwarehouse in Montana."

Case Notes

Indirect Financial Interest of Liquor Distributor in Retail Liquor Businesses Prohibited: Williamson owned controlling interests in a wholesale beer and wine distribution company and also in an electronic gaming machine business that periodically made loans to alcohol retailers. Williamson was found to be in violation of the alcoholic beverage code because the distribution company had a prohibited indirect financial interest in a liquor retailer to which the gaming machine business had made a loan. Williamson contended on appeal that the provisions of 16-3-242 were construed too broadly and should apply only to an ownership interest and not to a financial interest. The Supreme Court disagreed. Williamson's common business interest and control over the two companies constituted just the type of circuitous indirect financial interest that is prohibited by 16-3-242 and 16-3-406 and gave the distribution company an impermissible indirect financial interest in the alcohol retailers. The District Court was affirmed. Shelby Distrib., LLC v. Dept. of Revenue, 2009 MT 80, 349 M 489, 206 P3d 899 (2009).

Sanction for Unlawful Control of Retail Liquor License and Wholesale Distributor License Not Violative of Due Process: Williamson owned controlling interests in a wholesale beer and wine distribution company and also in an electronic gaming machine business that periodically made loans to alcohol retailers, for which Williamson had approval from the Department of Justice. Following an investigation by the Department of Revenue, Williamson was found to be in violation of the alcoholic beverage code because the distribution company had a prohibited indirect financial interest in a liquor retailer to which the gaming machine business had made a loan. The Department of Revenue ordered the distribution company to pay a $1,500 fine, and ordered Williamson either to divest himself of common ownership of the two companies or to cease making loans to alcohol retailers. The distribution company appealed the decision to District Court on grounds that its due process rights had been violated and that the Department of Revenue had misinterpreted the law, but the court affirmed the Department order. On appeal, plaintiff contended that due process was violated when one department sanctioned the loan activity that had been previously approved by another department. The Supreme Court disagreed. Each department controlled separate functions and each required separate licenses.

The Department of Justice approval of loans did not unfairly mislead Williamson into believing that the distribution company was free from the constraints of state liquor control laws. Further, the sanction in this case, the major part of which was simply an order that the prohibited conduct must cease, did not constitute treatment that was so fundamentally unfair that it violated plaintiff's due process rights. The District Court was affirmed. Shelby Distrib., LLC v. Dept. of Revenue, 2009 MT 80, 349 M 489, 206 P3d 899 (2009), distinguishing Seaman v. Dept. of Revenue, 2002 MT 34, 308 M 307, 42 P3d 790 (2002).

Case Notes

Issuance of License — Off-the-Record Site Visit Improper: After an administrative hearing, the Director of the Department of Revenue awarded a beer and wine license to one of two parties after unannounced site visits to the premises of each party. On appeal, the District Court overruled the Director's decision and reinstated the order of the hearing examiner, which proposed award of the license to the other party. The Supreme Court affirmed the District Court's order vacating the Director's order because it was founded on an unlawful procedure that violated the appellant's due process interests. Whether the conduct prejudiced both contenders' rights equally is irrelevant. Lack of prior notice, coupled with lack of any documentation, is fatal to an ordinarily permissible inspection. This type of conduct under a Montana Administrative Procedure Act proceeding violates certain other safeguards built in by statute: the right to respond and present evidence and argument on all relevant issues and the right to conduct a cross-examination sufficient for full and true disclosure of facts. However, the trial judge erred in ordering the adoption of the hearing examiner's proposal. This was not an alternative authorized by statute. The case was remanded to the Department for final determination. Frascell, Inc. v. St., 235 M 152, 766 P2d 850, 45 St. Rep. 2267 (1988).

Purported Equitable Ownership of Beer License: A person who claims equitable ownership of a retail beer license and wishes to have the license transferred to him may not enforce his claim when he has never been the record owner of the license, his name has never been endorsed on the license in any other capacity, and, as a result, he has never been subjected to the scrutiny of the Liquor Division of the Department of Revenue throughout the time he has claimed his equitable interest. Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924, 36 St. Rep. 479 (1979), distinguished in Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995).

Qualifications for License: Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) was not empowered by the terms of the Montana Beer Act (Ch. 106, L. 1933) to establish the policy that grocery stores are the only "fit and proper person, firm or corporation to sell beer". Skaggs Drug Centers v. Mont. Liquor Control Bd., 146 M 115, 404 P2d 511 (1965).

16-4-105. Limit on retail beer licenses — wine license amendments — limitation on use of license — exceptions.

Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

Applicability: Section 9, Ch. 528, L. 1997, provided: "[This act] applies to applications for the issuance or transfer of a license received on or after [the effective date of this act]." Effective July 1, 1997.

1995 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 228 deleted (3) that read: "(3) A retail license to sell beer or table wine, or both, in the original packages for off-premises consumption only may be issued to any person, firm, or corporation who is approved by the department as a fit and proper person, firm, or corporation to sell beer or table wine, or both, and whose premises proposed for licensing are operated as a bona fide grocery store or a drugstore licensed as a pharmacy. The number of such licenses that the department may issue is not limited by the provisions of subsection (1) of this section but shall be determined by the department in the exercise of its sound discretion, and the department may in the exercise of its sound discretion grant or deny any application for any such license or suspend or revoke any such license for cause"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 24, 1995.

Chapter 530 in (1)(e), after "unincorporated", substituted "area" for "town"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 25, 1995.

Section 8, Ch. 731, L. 1985, provided: "This act is effective on passage and approval [approved May 13, 1985] and applies only to tribal licensees who hold tribal licenses issued prior to January 1, 1985, and to enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs located on state and federal military reservations in Montana on May 13, 1985."

1983 Amendments: Chapter 50, in (1)(a)(ii), inserted "retail" before "beer license"; in (1)(a)(iii), inserted "four retail beer licenses for the first 2,000 inhabitants" after "corporate limits of such cities" and substituted "next" for "first" before "2,000 inhabitants or major fraction thereof".

Chapter 595, in (1)(b), after "shall be measured" substituted "in a straight line" for "over the shortest public road or highway".

1981 Amendments: Chapter 25 substituted "prescribed in 16-4-502" for "as shown by the most recent official United States census authorized by congress" in (1)(a).

Chapter 86 substituted "on or off the premises" for "on the premises" near the end of (2).

Chapter 519 changed the method of measuring the 5-mile limitation in the last sentence of (1)(b) from a straight line to the shortest public road or highway.

Revenue Oversight Committee (now Revenue and Transportation Interim Committee) Bill: House Bill 21 (Ch. 25, L. 1981) was introduced at the request of the Revenue Oversight Committee (now Revenue and Transportation Interim Committee). See committee report, "Montana's Liquor License Quota System", Legislative Council (1980).

Statute Clear on Face: Petitioner applied for a beer license in Miles City and was denied. The State Tax Appeal Board and the District Court affirmed the decision. At the time of petitioner's application, Miles City had eight beer licenses and a population of 9,602 people. Under this section, a city must reach a population of 10,000 before a ninth license can be issued. Petitioner was therefore properly denied a license. Colvin v. WHEREAS, the Montana Alcoholic Beverage Code limits the number of all-beverages licenses available in corporate city and county quota areas and the number of on-premises consumption retail beer licenses available in corporate city quota areas; and

WHEREAS, the enforcement of Montana's alcoholic beverages license quota creates a hardship on tribal alcoholic beverages licensees in quota areas where no state licenses are available; and

Case Notes

County Liquor License Improperly Issued for Bar Within Five Miles of City Limits: Owens received a county liquor license for her bar, which she attested was more than 5 miles from the city limits of Kalispell, based on a survey by a private licensed surveyor who used an engineer's ruler to measure on a map the distance from the city limit to the boundary of Owens' property nearest to the city limit. After receiving three contacts alleging problems with Owens' license, including a charge that the bar was not located beyond the 5-mile requirement, the Department of Justice had a land-based survey conducted, and the radial distance from the bar's nearest entrance measured 4.911 miles from the nearest boundary of Kalispell—470 feet short of 5 miles. The Department of Revenue (Department) then notified Owens that it was revoking the license based on incorrect information in the application and for noncompliance with the distance requirement. Owens contested the revocation, but a hearings examiner recommended that the revocation be affirmed, the Department Director agreed, and the District Court affirmed the revocation. On appeal, the Supreme Court also affirmed. Substantial evidence supported the Director's findings, and nothing in the record indicated that the Director misapprehended the effect of the findings. Statutory and administrative guidelines allowed for revocation of the license under these circumstances, and the District Court correctly affirmed the Director's decision to revoke the license. Owens v. Dept. of Revenue, 2007 MT 298, 340 M 48, 172 P3d 1227 (2007).

Lapsed Pre-1947 All-Beverages License Not Reinstated: The Billings VFW ceased operations in 1974 and allowed its pre-1947 liquor license to lapse based on the belief that the license was nontransferable. In 1979, the VFW reopened and was issued a new nontransferable all-beverages license. In 1991, the Supreme Court held that pre-1947 liquor licenses held by fraternal and veterans' organizations were not subject to quota restrictions passed in 1949 and therefore were freely transferable. (See Helena Aerie No. 16 v. Dept. of Revenue, 251 M 77, 822 P2d 1057 (1991).) After the 1991 court decision, the VFW received an offer to purchase its pre-1947 license for $165,000. The Department of Revenue refused to reissue the lapsed license or to declare that the current license held by the VFW was freely transferable. The VFW sought a declaratory judgment that its license be characterized as freely transferable on the basis that the Department was estopped from arguing that the license was nontransferable because the VFW had let the pre-1947 license expire based on the Department's misrepresentation that under the 1949 law, the license was nontransferable. The Supreme Court held that the doctrine of equitable estoppel did not apply because the misrepresentation had to be of fact and not a misrepresentation of law. Billings Post No. 1634 v. Dept. of Revenue, 284 M 84, 943 P2d 517, 54 St. Rep. 786 (1997).

Fraternal Organization's License to Remain Transferable and Assignable: The Eagles Club, holder of a liquor license since 1934, appealed a District Court ruling that the Department of Revenue had properly classified its license as nontransferable and nonassignable. The Supreme Court reversed, holding that there had been no evidence that the license held by the Eagles Club, renewed under the 1947 quota law, had lost its original characteristics of being transferable and assignable. Helena Aerie No. 16, F.O.E. v. Dept. of Revenue, 251 M 77, 822 P2d 1057, 48 St. Rep. 1050 (1991).

Denial of License — Lack of Public Convenience and Necessity — Adjudicative Process Warranted: Appellants contended that the Department of Revenue's denial of the issuance of all-beverages licenses based on a lack of evidence of public convenience and necessity was improper. In affirming the denial, the Supreme Court noted that the choice made between proceeding by general rule or by individual ad hoc litigation is one that lies primarily in the informed discretion of the administrative agency. Therefore, the Department's use of the adjudicatory process to determine whether the licenses were warranted was not an invalid exercise of rulemaking authority. Because the determination of public convenience and necessity involves a fact-intensive inquiry, it is not necessary that the Department adopt rigid rules defining the term. Ramage v. Dept. of Revenue, 236 M 69, 768 P2d 864, 46 St. Rep. 187 (1989), followed in Kiser v. Dept. of Revenue, 1999 MT 228, 296 M 93, 987 P2d 363, 56 St. Rep. 897 (1999).

Lease Expiring After Enactment of Quota System: Where hotel and bar were leased for a period of 5 years at time when there was no quota on liquor licenses, and contract provided for return of the property to lessor upon expiration of lease but made no mention of transfer of liquor license, lease could not be reformed in equity to include provision for transfer of liquor license where quota law had been enacted prior to expiration of lease. Sullivan v. Marsh, 124 M 415, 225 P2d 868 (1950), distinguished in Beard v. McCormick, 147 M 361, 411 P2d 964 (1966).

Power of Council to Limit Number of Places: A City Council could properly limit the number of places in the city where beer and liquor at retail might be sold and then refuse to issue a license to the assignee of a Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) license, and in doing so was not depriving him of property without due process of law. State ex rel. McIntire v. Libby, 107 M 216, 82 P2d 587 (1938), explained in Stephens v. Great Falls, 119 M 368, 175 P2d 408 (1938).

Case Notes

No Error in Denial of Liquor License Transfer to Excluded Inholding Within Exterior Boundary of Resort: The District Court affirmed the findings and conclusions of a Department of Revenue hearings examiner that a liquor license could not be transferred to a site that was within the exterior boundaries of Big Mountain Ski Resort but that was excluded from the resort area itself as an excluded inholding. The license applicant appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. The hearings examiner properly interpreted 16-4-202 to allow the corporate entity that owned the resort to selectively exclude properties within the designated resort boundary from being in the resort area itself. Pursuant to the statute, properties not owned by a resort developer can be brought into the resort area if brought under the developer's control by contract, lease, option, or permit. The site in question was in fact located within the resort boundaries but was never owned or controlled by the resort developer and was excepted from the resort area by virtue of the legal description on the plats. Therefore, denial of the liquor license transfer to an excepted inholding that was not part of the resort area was proper. Local Development Code Regulating Sale of Alcoholic Beverages Not Preempted by State: Montana's statutory framework for the regulation of alcohol clearly contemplates that cities will impose local zoning that regulates the sale of alcohol. The development code of the city of Red Lodge, a self-governing city, being consistent with and stricter than the state's regulations, was not preempted by state law. Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998), overruling State ex rel. Libby v. Haswell, 147 M 492, 414 P2d 652 (1966).

Criteria Applicable in Determination of Public Convenience and Necessity — Lack of Protest: Guidelines used by the Department of Revenue in determining whether issuance of an all-beverages license is warranted by public convenience include: (1) whether issuance of the license will materially promote the public's ability to engage in the licensed activity; and (2) evaluation of a variety of criteria including, inter alia: (a) the business abilities and character of the applicant; (b) the demand for services in the area to be served; (c) the impact on existing purveyors; and (d) any adverse impact on the area to be served. In order to make this determination, the Department must independently weigh the evidence submitted by the applicants. The lack of public protest does not extinguish this duty. Ramage v. Dept. of Revenue, 236 M 69, 768 P2d 864, 46 St. Rep. 187 (1989), followed in Kiser v. Dept. of Revenue, 1999 MT 228, 296 M 93, 987 P2d 363, 56 St. Rep. 897 (1999).

Amendment effective May 4, 1993.

Section 8, Ch. 731, L. 1985, provided: "This act is effective on passage and approval [approved May 13, 1985] and applies only to tribal licensees who hold tribal licenses issued prior to January 1, 1985, and to enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs located on state and federal military reservations in Montana on May 13, 1985."

1983 Amendments: Chapter 29 deleted former (9) that read: "All licenses shall expire at midnight of June 30 of each year."

Chapter 37, in (2)(c), reduced the fee from $40 to $35 and reduced the time for filing the application from 10 days to 3 days prior to the event; at end of (2)(d) inserted the requirement of approval by the local law enforcement agency.

Chapter 59, in (1)(c), deleted last two sentences, which read: "A license transferred between quota areas under this section may be held only by natural persons for 5 years following the transfer. For the purpose of this section, natural persons shall not include limited partnerships or other business entities of any kind in which each natural person is not a full participant in the ownership and operation of the business authorized by the license."

Chapter 636, in (1)(a)(ii), deleted "by more than 33%" after "that area's quota" and inserted (A) and (B) establishing two percentage limitations rather than one.

1981 Amendments — Composite: Chapter 25 added "prescribed in 16-4-502" at the end of (1)(a)(i) and (1)(a)(ii).

Chapter 59 inserted (1)(b) relating to when a license within an incorporated quota area may be transferred to a new ownership and a new unincorporated location in the same county and inserted "Except as provided in subsection (1)(b)" at the beginning of (1)(a).

Chapter 512 changed 25% to 33% in (1)(a)(ii); changed the provisions of (1)(c), relating to mortgage, pledge, or retransfer of a license, to apply only for the 5 years following the transfer; and added (1)(d) prohibiting retransfer of license to different quota area.

In preparing the composite of the Ch. 59 and Ch. 512 amendments, the code commissioner did not include the language "Except as provided in subsection (b) above," added to (1)(c) by Ch. 59 in order to avoid apparently redundant language indicating the subsection to which (1)(c) applies.

Revenue Oversight Committee (now Revenue and Transportation Interim Committee) Bill: House Bill 21 (Ch. 25, L. 1981) was introduced at the request of the Revenue Oversight Committee (now Revenue and Transportation Interim Committee). Security Interest Retained in Beer and Wine License — Assignment Contingent on Fulfillment of Premises Lease: Groshelle leased a bar to Bertschs. The lease provided that Groshelle would assign the beer and wine license to Bertschs and retain a security interest in the license and that Bertschs would reassign the license to Groshelle upon termination of the lease. The transfer of license was approved by the Department of Revenue. After deciding to sell the business to Reids, Bertschs applied for transfer of the license to Reids, subject to Groshelle's security interest and a reassignment to Groshelle upon termination of the lease. That transfer was also approved. After a lease period of several years, Reids and Groshelle could not come to terms regarding a new lease. Groshelle filed a complaint seeking a judgment declaring the reassignment provisions of the lease valid and enforceable. The District Court properly granted partial summary judgment to Groshelle after holding the reassignment enforceable, subject to Department approval. The Supreme Court affirmed on appeal, finding nothing in the language of the various leases of the bar premises, fixtures, and furniture that created a lease in the beer and wine license and nothing in the record indicating Groshelle's intent to relinquish the license. Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995), distinguishing Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924 (1979).

Purported Equitable Ownership of Beer License: A person who claims equitable ownership of a beer license and wishes to have the license transferred to him may not enforce his claim when he has never been the record owner of the license, his name has never been endorsed on the license in any other capacity, and, as a result, he has never been subjected to the scrutiny of the Liquor Division of the Department of Revenue throughout the time he has claimed his equitable interest. Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924, 36 St. Rep. 479 (1979), distinguished in Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995).

Transfer at End of Lease: When plaintiffs rented premises and allowed defendant to use their liquor license under a homemade lease, liquor license was not transferred to defendant at the expiration of the lease. Beard v. McCormick, 147 M 361, 411 P2d 964 (1966).

License Transferred With Lease: A court decree adjudged that the liquor licenses be transferred to the defendants. Because they were unable under Montana law to hold such licenses, an arrangement was made between the plaintiff and the defendants to transfer the licenses to the plaintiff along with a lease of the premises. Such lease and transfer were upheld as there was consideration. Sears v. Barker, 126 M 101, 244 P2d 516 (1952).

Transfer of Location:

Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) conformed to legislative directive in refusing to authorize removal of license from premises for which it was granted to another location. State ex rel. Boulds v. Paige, 124 M 353, 224 P2d 141 (1950).

Purchaser of a license from a licensee cannot compel Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) to consent to transfer of license when he intends to carry on business at a location different from that authorized in the original license. State ex rel. Jester v. Paige, 123 M 301, 213 P2d 441 (1949).

Assignment of License: An "involuntary" assignment and coerced surrender, enforced by court decree, after making for the parties a contract to which they did not and could not agree, are not authorized. Light v. Zeiter, 124 M 67, 219 P2d 295 (1950).

Evidence: Complaint in suit for reformation of contract on ground that words "stock and fixtures" in contract for sale of beer and liquor establishment, containing provision for surrender of property in case of default, were intended by the parties to include the beer and liquor licenses. Plaintiffs had no right in the original licenses which were transferred to purchasers where the several plaintiffs were alleged to have been joint owners, but the original liquor and beer licenses were in the name of only one of them. Light v. Zeiter, 124 M 67, 219 P2d 295 (1950).

Disqualified Person Interested in Premises: License issued in name of one person who failed to state in application that two others who were ineligible for license had an interest in the premises was invalid and subject to cancellation. Perry v. Luding, 123 M 570, 217 P2d 207 (1950).

Attachment of License: A retail liquor license is subject to attachment. Stallinger v. Goss, 121 M 437, 193 P2d 810 (1948).

Transfer After Sheriff's Sale: A retail liquor dealer's license could be purchased by a qualified person at a Sheriff's sale, and such purchaser could insist that the license so purchased be transferred to him. Stallinger v. Goss, 121 M 437, 193 P2d 810 (1948).

Administrative Rules

Title 42, chapter 12, subchapter 1, ARM License applications.

Case Notes

Administrative Rule Clarifying Whether Sufficient Need Exists for Hearing on Transfer Application Not Violative of Protesters' Rights: Protesters to the transfer of a beer and wine license contended that ARM 42.12.109, which requires that the protest letter state the reasons for protesting the transfer of a license, violated the protesters' rights under this section. The Supreme Court disagreed. A regulation that limits the scope of arguments and oral testimony at a hearing to protest the transfer of a license to the issues presented in the initial protest letter serves an administrative function reasonably tailored to the Department of Revenue's broad discretion to efficiently administer the liquor code and does not conflict with this section. The Rule clarifies whether a sufficient need exists for a hearing on a particular transfer application and does not violate protesters' rights. Forsythe v. Great Falls Holdings, LLC, 2008 MT 384, 347 M 67, 196 P3d 1233 (2008).

Department Properly Allowed to Participate in Judicial Review of Liquor License Transfer: Protesters to the transfer of a liquor license asserted that the District Court improperly allowed the Department of Revenue to participate in judicial review of the Department's decision regarding the license transfer on grounds that the Department was not a necessary party to the action. The Supreme Court noted that a person who is not a party to an action cannot be a party to the judgment of that action and that it is only against a party to an action that judgment can be taken. The District Court could not properly order the Department to take specific action concerning the license transfer unless the Department was a party to the action. Therefore, the District Court properly allowed the Department to participate in judicial review of the Department's decision. Forsythe v. Great Falls Holdings, LLC, 2008 MT 384, 347 M 67, 196 P3d 1233 (2008), distinguishing Young v. Great Falls, 194 M 513, 632 P2d 1111 (1981), and Hilands Golf Club v. Ashmore, 277 M 324, 922 P2d 469 (1996).

Transfer of Liquor License Properly Approved Given Compliance With License Transfer Laws and Lack of Evidence Requiring Denial of Transfer: A group of 83 citizens protested the transfer of a liquor license to a proposed truck stop casino on grounds that gambling can be addictive and lead to criminal behavior for some persons, that gambling should not be legal, and that gambling should be restricted to certain areas of town other than near the residential area where many of the protesters lived. Following the required hearing on transfer of the license, the Department of Revenue approved the transfer and the citizens appealed. The Supreme Court noted that the citizens' arguments were very broad policy-type concerns that would more appropriately be raised with the Legislature rather than in the context of a license transfer and found that the Department properly considered each component of public convenience and necessity and correctly concluded that there was no substantial evidence that required denial of the license. The applicant and the Department complied with all laws regarding license transfer, and the court declined to interfere with the approval of the transfer. Rehner, and held that Congress had delegated authority to the states, as well as to Indian tribes, to regulate the use and distribution of alcoholic beverages in Indian country; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Alcoholic Beverage Code limits the number of all-beverages licenses available in corporate city and county quota areas and the number of on-premises consumption retail beer licenses available in corporate city quota areas; and

WHEREAS, the enforcement of Montana's alcoholic beverages license quota creates a hardship on tribal alcoholic beverages licensees in quota areas where no state licenses are available; and

WHEREAS, the enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs located on state or federal military reservations in Montana have operated for many years as federal enclaves beyond the jurisdiction of state laws relating to licensing and regulation of alcoholic beverages; and

WHEREAS, effective December 1, 1984, Air National Guard Regulation 215-2 requires enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs to comply with state laws relating to licensing and regulation of alcoholic beverages; and

Showing of Constitutionally Protected Property Interest Required — Federal and State Claims: Plaintiff brought property interest claims against a city and city council members on several state and federal grounds after a state liquor license was denied. The city had enacted ordinances disallowing the sale of alcohol in the city without a conditional use permit and then denied plaintiff's application for a permit. The District Court held that plaintiff's property interest claims were invalid, and plaintiff appealed. The Supreme Court noted that to establish a viable claim under 42 U.S.C. 1983, a plaintiff must first establish that it possesses a protected liberty or property interest and has a legitimate claim of entitlement to that interest. Under state due process and takings law, a plaintiff must also establish a property interest, and a property interest exists only when the Legislature has so narrowly circumscribed the issuing agency's discretion that approval of the interest is virtually assured. Receipt of a liquor license is a privilege and not a right. Plaintiff had yet to obtain a state liquor license at the time that the ordinances were passed and thus had no property interest in operating a bar, nor could plaintiff assert ultimate entitlement to a liquor license. Therefore, plaintiff's inability to demonstrate a protected property interest in operating property as a bar precluded the establishment of federal or state property claims against the city and City Council members, nor did the city deprive plaintiff of a protected property interest by enacting the ordinances or denying a conditional use permit. The District Court was affirmed. Germann v. Stephens, 2006 MT 130, 332 M 303, 137 P3d 545 (2006), following ISC Distrib., Inc. v. Trevor, 273 M 185, 903 P2d 170 (1995), and Kiely Constr. v. Red Lodge, 2002 MT 241, 312 M 52, 57 P3d 836 (2002).

Successful Applicant for Liquor License Required to Be Citizen When License Issued — Deference to Agency Interpretation of Statute: Tokumoto, Merhi, and others applied for several new liquor licenses to be issued for Missoula. At the time of his application, Merhi was not a U.S. citizen. The Department of Revenue determined, in accordance with its longstanding interpretation of the statutes, that Merhi did not have to be a citizen at the time that the relative merits of Merhi's application for a license were determined, as long as he was a citizen at the time of issuance of a license. Citing Norfolk Holdings, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 249 M 40, 813 P2d 460 (1991), the Supreme Court affirmed the Department's decision, noting that the Supreme Court gives great deference to an interpretation of a statute by the agency charged with its administration. Tokumoto v. Dept. of Revenue, 264 M 56, 869 P2d 782, 51 St. Rep. 144 (1994).

"All Applicable Laws" — Meaning: In this section, which provides that a license permitting on-premises consumption of alcoholic beverages cannot be renewed unless the Department of Revenue finds that the licensee's past record and present status as a purveyor of alcoholic beverages and as a businessman and citizen demonstrate that he is likely to operate his establishment in compliance with all applicable laws of the state and local governments, "all applicable laws" is not limited to the alcoholic beverages laws and the zoning and nuisance laws. Broers v. Dept. of Revenue, 237 M 367, 773 P2d 320, 46 St. Rep. 873 (1989).

License Renewal Denied for Assaults and Other Misdemeanors Relating to Fighting, Guns, and Alcoholic Beverage Misuse: Evidence was sufficient to deny renewal of a license to sell alcoholic beverages for on-premises consumption. Misdemeanor convictions for DUI, reckless driving, barroom brawling, and discharging a firearm in the direction of a passing motorist may not alone have been sufficient to refuse to renew the license. However when viewed in connection with licensee's misdemeanor criminal mischief conviction for plowing snow from his lodge's parking lot onto a highway, resulting in a two-car collision, and four misdemeanor assault convictions arising when he chased two children from his lodge for wishing to use the bathroom without making a purchase, pointed a rifle at the family's vehicle as they left, and chased the family in his truck, becoming involved in an accident with the family vehicle, there was ample evidence to refuse to renew. Licensee's actions indicated that he had a disregard for the safety of others, a violent temperament, and a tendency toward alcohol abuse. Broers v. Dept. of Revenue, 237 M 367, 773 P2d 320, 46 St. Rep. 873 (1989).

Requirement That Individual Person Licensee Comply With Applicable Laws — No Unconstitutional Vagueness or Overbreadth: This section provides that a license permitting on-premises consumption of alcoholic beverages cannot be renewed unless the Department of Revenue finds that the licensee's past record and present status as a purveyor of alcoholic beverages and as a businessman and citizen demonstrate that he is likely to operate his establishment in compliance with all applicable laws of the state and local governments. The statute is capable of reasonable interpretation and construction. It is set forth in terms an ordinary person exercising ordinary common sense can understand and comply with. "All applicable laws" means those designed to protect the welfare, health, peace, morals, and safety of the citizens of the state as they relate to the manufacture, sale, and distribution of alcoholic beverages. The statute is not unconstitutionally vague or overbroad. Broers v. Dept. of Revenue, 237 M 367, 773 P2d 320, 46 St. Rep. 873 (1989).

Citizenship and Residency Required of Gambling License Applicant: Sections 23-5-322 and 23-5-422 require that an applicant for a gambling license meet both United States citizenship and Montana residency requirements. Therefore, an alien who resided in the state for 18 years did not meet both requirements and was not entitled to a license. 42 A.G. Op. 105 (1988).

Case Notes

County Liquor License Improperly Issued for Bar Within Five Miles of City Limits: Owens received a county liquor license for her bar, which she attested was more than 5 miles from the city limits of Kalispell, based on a survey by a private licensed surveyor who used an engineer's ruler to measure on a map the distance from the city limit to the boundary of Owens' property nearest to the city limit. After receiving three contacts alleging problems with Owens' license, including a charge that the bar was not located beyond the 5-mile requirement, the Department of Justice had a land-based survey conducted, and the radial distance from the bar's nearest entrance measured 4.911 miles from the nearest boundary of Kalispell—470 feet short of 5 miles. The Department of Revenue (Department) then notified Owens that it was revoking the license based on incorrect information in the application and for noncompliance with the distance requirement. Owens contested the revocation, but a hearings examiner recommended that the revocation be affirmed, the Department Director agreed, and the District Court affirmed the revocation. On appeal, the Supreme Court also affirmed. Substantial evidence supported the Director's findings, and nothing in the record indicated that the Director misapprehended the effect of the findings. Statutory and administrative guidelines allowed for revocation of the license under these circumstances, and the District Court correctly affirmed the Director's decision to revoke the license. Owens v. Dept. of Revenue, 2007 MT 298, 340 M 48, 172 P3d 1227 (2007).

Transfer of Liquor License Properly Approved Given Compliance With License Transfer Laws and Lack of Evidence Requiring Denial of Transfer: A group of 83 citizens protested the transfer of a liquor license to a proposed truck stop casino on grounds that gambling can be addictive and lead to criminal behavior for some persons, that gambling should not be legal, and that gambling should be restricted to certain areas of town other than near the residential area where many of the protesters lived. Following the required hearing on transfer of the license, the Department of Revenue approved the transfer and the citizens appealed. The Supreme Court noted that the citizens' arguments were very broad policy-type concerns that would more appropriately be raised with the Legislature rather than in the context of a license transfer and found that the Department properly considered each component of public convenience and necessity and correctly concluded that there was no substantial evidence that required denial of the license. The applicant and the Department complied with all laws regarding license transfer, and the court declined to interfere with the approval of the transfer. In re Protests to Application for Transfer of Liquor License, 2007 MT 192, 338 M 363, 168 P3d 68 (2007).

Location Requirement Not Unreasonable: Kiser submitted an application for a liquor license but failed to specify a location for his proposed establishment. Kiser was allowed to participate in the licensing process anyway, and the application was considered on its merits, but denied. Kiser contended that the licensing requirement was unreasonable, discriminatory, and unconstitutional. The Supreme Court disagreed, finding that identification of the location where the license will be used is an element to be weighed when balancing applicants' qualifications and the relative degrees to which their proposals serve public convenience and necessity. Further, the distinction made between enforcement of the location requirement and enforcement of the citizenship requirement was not clearly erroneous. Kiser v. Dept. of Revenue, 1999 MT 228, 296 M 93, 987 P2d 363, 56 St. Rep. 897 (1999).

Determination of Applicants' Qualifications — Running of Statutory Period: Applicants argued that the Department of Revenue (now Department of Justice) abused its discretion and exceeded its statutory authority by failing to make an investigation and determination of qualifications within 30 days of receipt of the completed application (see 1997 amendment), despite the fact that the establishment was not yet constructed. However, this section also requires a Department inspection of the premises of the proposed establishment, and the inspection of the building cannot take place before construction is completed. Therefore, the 30-day investigative period does not begin to run until an applicant has submitted all required paperwork and the proposed establishment is constructed. Ramage v. Dept. of Revenue, 236 M 69, 768 P2d 864, 46 St. Rep. 187 (1989).

State Preemption of Local Control:

The Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) has complete control of the liquor traffic within the state, and cities and towns are without power to interfere with such control. State ex rel. McCarten v. Corwin, 119 M 520, 177 P2d 189 (1947).

Under the maxim expressio unius est exclusio alterius the Legislature has made manifest its intent to inhibit all powers of cities and towns over the matter of intoxicating liquors, except as to those powers specifically enumerated. Stephens v. Great Falls, 119 M 368, 175 P2d 408 (1946).

City Fee: Holder of retail liquor license issued by Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) was entitled to engage in retail liquor business without interference by city authorities subject only to payment of a license fee, which city might exact. State ex rel. Wily v. District Court, 118 M 50, 164 P2d 358 (1945).

Opposition by Inhabitants of Locality or Neighborhood:

Opposition by inhabitants of the particular locality or neighborhood was not provided for by the law as a basis for refusal. If applicant met the legal requirements, rules, and regulations of the Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue), he was entitled to a license. McFatridge v. District Court, 113 M 81, 122 P2d 834 (1942).

That a majority of the inhabitants of a town and vicinity may be opposed to granting of a license does not constitute grounds for refusal of the license by the Board. State ex rel. McCarten v. Harris, 112 M 344, 115 P2d 292 (1941).

"Premises" Defined: The word "premises" as used in subsection (2) means the building in which the liquor business is to be carried on, and its meaning cannot be extended to include the locality or neighborhood in which the building is located. McFatridge v. District Court, 113 M 81, 122 P2d 834 (1942).

Suitability of Premises: Among other things, the test of suitability of premises should be established by rule made, promulgated and published, and not left to the caprice and whim of the board. In making the investigation of an application the board has discretion to determine if all qualifications exist, but if it finds that they do exist, it has no discretion to refuse a license for extraneous reasons. State ex rel. McCarten v. Harris, 112 M 344, 115 P2d 292 (1941).

Chapter 414 in (2), in last sentence after "of the department", inserted "or the department of justice"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

1991 Amendment: In (5)(b), near beginning of first sentence, substituted "after notice and opportunity for protest" for "in its discretion", after "cases" inserted "specified in subsection (5)(a)", at end inserted "and is justified by public convenience and necessity", and near beginning of second sentence, after "department", substituted "may not allow" for "shall in no event nor for any cause permit"; near end of (6), after "approval", substituted "if there has not been a change in location and" for "providing"; and made minor changes in style.

1987 Amendment: In (4) and (5) substituted "alcoholic beverages" for "liquor".

Security Interest Retained in Beer and Wine License — Assignment Contingent on Fulfillment of Premises Lease: Groshelle leased a bar to Bertschs. The lease provided that Groshelle would assign the beer and wine license to Bertschs and retain a security interest in the license and that Bertschs would reassign the license to Groshelle upon termination of the lease. The transfer of license was approved by the Department of Revenue. After deciding to sell the business to Reids, Bertschs applied for transfer of the license to Reids, subject to Groshelle's security interest and a reassignment to Groshelle upon termination of the lease. That transfer was also approved. After a lease period of several years, Reids and Groshelle could not come to terms regarding a new lease. Groshelle filed a complaint seeking a judgment declaring the reassignment provisions of the lease valid and enforceable. The District Court properly granted partial summary judgment to Groshelle after holding the reassignment enforceable, subject to Department approval. The Supreme Court affirmed on appeal, finding nothing in the language of the various leases of the bar premises, fixtures, and furniture that created a lease in the beer and wine license and nothing in the record indicating Groshelle's intent to relinquish the license. Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995), distinguishing Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924 (1979).

Purported Equitable Ownership of Beer License: A person who claims equitable ownership of a beer license and wishes to have the license transferred to him may not enforce his claim when he has never been the record owner of the license, his name has never been endorsed on the license in any other capacity, and, as a result, he has never been subjected to the scrutiny of the Liquor Division of the Department of Revenue (now Department of Justice) throughout the time he has claimed his equitable interest. Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924, 36 St. Rep. 479 (1979), distinguished in Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995).

Transfer at End of Lease: When plaintiffs rented premises and allowed defendant to use their liquor license under a homemade lease, liquor license was not transferred to defendant at the expiration of the lease. Beard v. McCormick, 147 M 361, 411 P2d 964 (1966).

License Transferred With Lease: A court decree adjudged that the liquor licenses be transferred to the defendants. Because they were unable under Montana law to hold such licenses, an arrangement was made between the plaintiff and the defendants to transfer the licenses to the plaintiff along with a lease of the premises. Such lease and transfer were upheld as there was consideration. Sears v. Barker, 126 M 101, 244 P2d 516 (1952).

Transfer of Location:

Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) conformed to legislative directive in refusing to authorize removal of license from premises for which it was granted to another location. State ex rel. Boulds v. Paige, 124 M 353, 224 P2d 141 (1950).

Purchaser of a license from a licensee cannot compel Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) to consent to transfer of license when he intends to carry on business at a location different from that authorized in the original license. State ex rel. Jester v. Paige, 123 M 301, 213 P2d 441 (1949).

Assignment of License: An "involuntary" assignment and coerced surrender, enforced by court decree, after making for the parties a contract to which they did not and could not agree, are not authorized. Light v. Zeiter, 124 M 67, 219 P2d 295 (1950).

Disqualification of Partner: The disqualification of a single partner works a disqualification of all the partners. Light v. Zeiter, 124 M 67, 219 P2d 295 (1950).

Evidence: Complaint in suit for reformation of contract on ground that words "stock and fixtures" in contract for sale of beer and liquor establishment, containing provision for surrender of property in case of default, were intended by the parties to include the beer and liquor licenses. Plaintiffs had no right in the original licenses which were transferred to purchasers where the several plaintiffs were alleged to have been joint owners, but the original liquor and beer licenses were in the name of only one of them. Light v. Zeiter, 124 M 67, 219 P2d 295 (1950).

Disqualified Person Interested in Premises: License issued in name of one person who failed to state in application that two others who were ineligible for license had an interest in the premises was invalid and subject to cancellation. Perry v. Luding, 123 M 570, 217 P2d 207 (1950).

Attachment of License: A retail liquor license is subject to attachment. Stallinger v. Goss, 121 M 437, 193 P2d 810 (1948).

Transfer After Sheriff's Sale: A retail liquor dealer's license could be purchased by a qualified person at a Sheriff's sale, and, under a previous version of this section, the purchaser could insist that the license so purchased be transferred to him. Stallinger v. Goss, 121 M 437, 193 P2d 810 (1948).

Successful Applicant for Liquor License Required to Be Citizen When License Issued — Deference to Agency Interpretation of Statute: Tokumoto, Merhi, and others applied for several new liquor licenses to be issued for Missoula. At the time of his application, Merhi was not a U.S. citizen. The Department of Revenue determined, in accordance with its longstanding interpretation of the statutes, that Merhi did not have to be a citizen at the time that the relative merits of Merhi's application for a license were determined, as long as he was a citizen at the time of issuance of a license. Citing Norfolk Holdings, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 249 M 40, 813 P2d 460 (1991), the Supreme Court affirmed the Department's decision, noting that the Supreme Court gives great deference to an interpretation of a statute by the agency charged with its administration. "Liquor" to Include Table Wine — Fine for Possession of Untaxed Table Wine Affirmed: A $1,500 fine was properly assessed against an all-beverages licensee found in possession for sale of table wine upon which no Montana tax had been paid, because the wine came within the definition of "liquor" as the term was used in 16-6-301 prior to 1987 amendment. The District Court was constrained by 2-4-704 to affirm the penalty, absent a showing of abuse of discretion by the Department of Revenue. Swan Corp. v. Dept. of Revenue, 232 M 210, 755 P2d 1388, 45 St. Rep. 998 (1988).

Limitation of Actions: Under this section's procedural provisions, which were deleted in 1975, a licensee whose license was revoked for nonuse was barred from relief by his failure to take action within 15 days after receipt of notice from the Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue). State ex rel. Gillespie v. Mont. Liquor Control Bd., 150 M 26, 430 P2d 112 (1967).

Review of Agency Action: The principal reason for the enactment of this section was to afford to any person, original applicant or otherwise, appearing before the Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue), the right to have the agency's actions reviewed judicially for abuse of discretion. Skaggs Drug Centers v. Mont. Liquor Control Bd., 146 M 115, 404 P2d 511 (1965).

Jurisdiction: On application for Writ of Prohibition by the ex officio beer board to restrain the District Court proceeding instituted by beer licensees to annul an order suspending their licenses, it was held that Board did not exceed its jurisdiction in suspending licenses, but trial court in issuing order to show cause exceeded its jurisdiction. State ex rel. Stewart v. District Court, 103 M 487, 63 P2d 141 (1936).

Attorney General's Opinions

State Authority to Regulate Liquor — No Delegation to Municipalities: The authority granted to the state by the 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution to regulate the sale of liquor has not been delegated to municipalities with general powers. Case Notes

Interested Party May Intervene in Mandamus Action: Party opposed to transfer of a liquor license is an interested party under 16-4-411 and therefore has standing to intervene in mandamus action. A person having an interest in the subject matter of a mandamus action may be permitted to intervene for the purpose of resisting the granting of the writ. Christopherson v. St., 226 M 350, 735 P2d 524, 44 St. Rep. 712 (1987).

Mandamus Denied — Adequate Remedy Under This Statute: Applicant who was denied transfer of a liquor license had plain, adequate, and speedy remedy in law under 16-4-411; therefore, the court properly denied his application for alternative Writ of Mandamus or Prohibition. Applicant failed to exhaust his administrative remedies and did not show that the Department of Revenue or State Tax Appeal Board was acting contrary to law. Christopherson v. Case Notes

Reapplication Within Five Years — Return of Application Only Option: When an applicant for a liquor license reapplied within 5 years of the first denial, the plain language of the statute precluded the Department of Revenue from denying the subsequent application. The only action available to the Department was to return the application without further consideration. In re E-Z Supply, Inc., 267 M 298, 883 P2d 833, 51 St. Rep. 1029 (1994).

McCracken Not a Town: In a proceeding in mandamus to compel the Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) to refund to relator, a retail liquor dealer doing business at a place called "McCracken", situated within a distance of 5 miles of the city of Billings, the difference between $600 paid by him as a license fee and $200 properly chargeable in a "town" located as is McCracken, the Supreme Court held, under the facts presented, that McCracken was not a town, as claimed by relator under the decision in Pollard v. Mont. Liquor Control Bd., 114 M 44, 131 P2d 974 (1942), although mail so addressed reached its destination, and it appeared on the official map of the railroad commission. State ex rel. McCracken v. Case Notes

Preemption: Cities do not have the authority or jurisdiction to enact ordinances dealing with the control of sales of liquor because the state has reserved exclusive control of that function. State ex rel. Libby v. Haswell, 147 M 492, 414 P2d 652 (1966), overruled, pertaining to planning and zoning, in Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998).

Attorney General's Opinions

No Authority in Local Governing Body to Prohibit Minors in Licensed Premises: An incorporated town with general powers does not have the authority to enact an ordinance prohibiting underage persons from being on licensed premises where alcoholic beverages are sold and consumed because the entire control of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of alcoholic beverages is retained within the State of Montana. The local government may not enact an ordinance providing for greater penalties than those found in 45-5-624 for an underage person convicted of possession of alcoholic beverages. 41 A.G. Op. 84 (1986).

State Authority to Regulate Liquor — No Delegation to Municipalities: The authority granted to the state by the 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution to regulate the sale of liquor has not been delegated to municipalities with general powers. Therefore, a municipality with general powers may not punish a violation of its obscenity ordinance by suspending or revoking the liquor license of the offender. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

Maximum Fee: A city which currently charges the maximum fee allowed under this section does not have the authority to enact an ordinance establishing a delinquent fee schedule for alcohol licenses. The statute expressly limits the maximum fee amount chargeable by local governments and provides no power to access a higher fee under any circumstances. 41 A.G. Op. 20 (1985).

Local Governments Preempted From Controlling Beer Sales: In Montana, neither cities nor counties have authority to enact ordinances requiring wholesale and retail distributors of keg beer to keep and maintain records of the sales or distribution of all beer kegs within the city or county. 40 A.G. Op. 48 (1984).

City License — Effect on State License: A city may license a beer distributor but may not thereby limit or make ineffective a state license. 37 A.G. Op. 100 (1977).

Part 8
Liquor License Security Interest

Part Case Notes

Security Interest Retained in Beer and Wine License — Assignment Contingent on Fulfillment of Premises Lease: Groshelle leased a bar to Bertschs. The lease provided that Groshelle would assign the beer and wine license to Bertschs and retain a security interest in the license and that Bertschs would reassign the license to Groshelle upon termination of the lease. The transfer of license was approved by the Department of Revenue. After deciding to sell the business to Reids, Bertschs applied for transfer of the license to Reids, subject to Groshelle's security interest and a reassignment to Groshelle upon termination of the lease. That transfer was also approved. After a lease period of several years, Reids and Groshelle could not come to terms regarding a new lease. Groshelle filed a complaint seeking a judgment declaring the reassignment provisions of the lease valid and enforceable. The District Court properly granted partial summary judgment to Groshelle after holding the reassignment enforceable, subject to Department approval. The Supreme Court affirmed on appeal, finding nothing in the language of the various leases of the bar premises, fixtures, and furniture that created a lease in the beer and wine license and nothing in the record indicating Groshelle's intent to relinquish the license. Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995), distinguishing Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924 (1979).

Purported Equitable Ownership of Beer License: A person who claims equitable ownership of a retail beer license and wishes to have the license transferred to him may not enforce his claim when he has never been the record owner of the license, his name has never been endorsed on the license in any other capacity, and, as a result, he has never been subjected to the scrutiny of the Liquor Division of the Department of Revenue throughout the time he has claimed his equitable interest. Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924, 36 St. Rep. 479 (1979), distinguished in Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995).

"Liquor" to Include Table Wine — Fine for Possession of Untaxed Table Wine Affirmed: A $1,500 fine was properly assessed against an all-beverages licensee found in possession for sale of table wine upon which no Montana tax had been paid, because the wine came within the definition of "liquor" as the term was used in 16-6-301 prior to 1987 amendment. State Jurisdiction to Prosecute Indians for On-Reservation Liquor Law Violations Upheld: Montana filed charges against Indian grocery store owners for possessing and selling liquor without a state license within the boundaries of the Fort Peck Reservation. When the tribe filed suit in District Court, arguing that Montana could not criminally prosecute Indians for liquor violations, Montana filed a motion arguing that the 11th amendment barred the tribes action and that federal law permitted the state to prosecute Indians for criminal violations of state liquor laws. The District Court granted the states 11th amendment motion, but granted summary judgment for the tribe, ruling that the state had no jurisdiction to maintain the prosecutions. On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court reversed, holding that pursuant to the interpretation of Rice v. Rehner, 463 US 713 (1983), Montana has jurisdiction to prosecute Indians who violate state liquor laws on an Indian reservation. Fort Belknap Indian Community of the Fort Belknap Indian Reservation v. Mazurek, 793 F. Supp. 949 (D.C. Mont. 1992), affirmed in part and reversed in part, 43 F3d 428 (9th Cir. 1994), certiorari denied, 516 US 806, 133 L Ed 2d 15, 116 S Ct 49 (1995).

State Jurisdiction to Punish Criminal Violations of State Liquor Laws by Indians in Indian Country: Under the holding in Rice v. Rehner, 463 US 713 (1983), and 18 U.S.C. 1161, the state has the power to enforce state criminal statutes against Indians for violations of state law relating to the sale or possession of liquor within Indian reservations. Brown v. District Court, 238 M 248, 777 P2d 877, 46 St. Rep. 1242 (1989).

Common-Law Rights Giving Way to Liquor Licensing System: Defendant asserted that as a natural born white citizen she had a common-law right to sell beer and wine without a valid state license. Although both Art. IV, sec. 2, and the 14th amendment of the U.S. Constitution protect a citizen's federal rights from abridgment by another person or by the state, the protections afforded by these clauses are not absolute and yield to the reasonable exercise of state police powers, such as the liquor licensing system. St. v. Barnes, 232 M 405, 758 P2d 264, 45 St. Rep. 1150 (1988).

Jurisdiction of Offense of Selling Alcohol Without a License: The District Court was the proper court to try the offense of sale of beer or wine without a valid state license. St. v. Barnes, 232 M 405, 758 P2d 264, 45 St. Rep. 1150 (1988).

Sale of Liquor and of Management Interest: The bulk sale of liquor on the shelves and not a retail sale and the transfer of a business conducted under a liquor license is permissible under this section. Johnstone v. Svejkovsky, 170 M 504, 554 P2d 1329 (1976).

Commerce Clause of Federal Constitution Not Violated: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933), in effect regulating the importation of intoxicating liquor from other states, does not violate the Commerce Clause in view of the section in the 21st amendment prohibiting the transportation or importation into any state of intoxicating liquor in violation of the laws of a state. St. v. Andre, 101 M 366, 54 P2d 566 (1936).

Information in Language of Statute Sufficient: Information charging unlawful sale of intoxicating liquor was not demurrable as uncertain and ambiguous. If too general in character, defendant had a plain remedy by application for a bill of particulars. St. v. Driscoll, 101 M 348, 54 P2d 571 (1936).

16-6-302. Sale of alcoholic beverage without license — sale or importation in violation of code — penalty.

Illegal Sale of Alcohol Not Requiring "Victim": The District Court properly ruled that the state did not have to produce a "victim" of an offense under this section if it could show that the defendant continued to sell alcoholic beverages without paying a fair share for the privilege. In this respect the entire state and every resident other than defendant was the "victim" of defendant's conduct. St. v. Barnes, 232 M 405, 758 P2d 264, 45 St. Rep. 1150 (1988).

Issuance of Revocation Notice Eight Months After Satisfaction of Violation Not Considered Timely — Immediate Revocation Required: Seaman was cited, and ultimately convicted, of selling liquor that was not purchased from a Montana agency liquor store. This section requires that the Department of Revenue immediately revoke the liquor license when satisfied that the license holder has violated the statute, but here, Seaman was not notified of the intent to revoke until at least 8 months after being convicted. The subsequent revocation of Seaman's license was improper because the Department did not act immediately as required by law. Seaman v. Dept. of Revenue, 2002 MT 34, 308 M 307, 42 P3d 790 (2002).

(b) discuss and negotiate with individual Indian tribes in Montana the possibility of resolving other state taxation issues, including but not limited to the imposition of fuel and alcohol taxes on Indian reservations, through state-tribal cooperative agreements; and

(c) report its findings on negotiations with tribal authorities on a comprehensive state-tribal taxation agreement or proposed legislation to the interim committee on Indian affairs [now law and justice interim committee] prior to the 53rd legislative session.

(2) The legislature also directs the interim committee on Indian affairs [now law and justice interim committee] to work with the Montana tribal chairman's association, the state coordinator of Indian affairs, and individual tribes to:

(a) monitor negotiations conducted pursuant to subsection (1)(a) for proposed cigarette tax collection;

The legislation must include a mechanism to prevent dual taxation by providing for revenue sharing between the state and a tribal government that has adopted an ordinance imposing a cigarette tax that is identical to that imposed by the state.

(d) identify other unresolved taxation issues, including but not limited to the imposition of fuel and alcohol taxes on Indian reservations, between the state and Montana Indian tribes; and

(e) propose legislation to the 53rd legislature that would facilitate a cooperative government-to-government resolution of all Indian reservation taxation issues."

WHEREAS, smokeless tobacco use can lead to oral cancer, gum disease, and nicotine addiction; and increases the risk of cardiovascular disease, including heart attacks.

WHEREAS, 173,000 Montanans, including 41,500 children, lack health care coverage.

WHEREAS, 56% of uninsured Montanans are self-employed or work for small businesses with 10 or fewer employees; and 60% of small businesses cannot afford to offer health benefits.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF MONTANA:

That we raise the tax on cigarettes by $1.00 per pack (from 70 cents to $1.70 per pack) and increase the tax on smokeless tobacco by a proportional amount and dedicate use of those tax funds for health care needs."

1989 Amendment: Near middle increased cigarette excise tax from 16 cents to 18 cents; and made minor changes in phraseology.

1985 Amendments: Chapter 450 at beginning deleted "From and after July 1, 1981"; and near end after "then", substituted "a tax on each cigarette equal to 1/20th the tax on a package containing not more than 20 cigarettes" for "16 cents on each 20 or fraction of 20 cigarettes contained in such package".

Chapter 704 in version effective on occurrence of contingency, at beginning deleted "From and after July 1, 1981"; and increased tax from 16 cents to 24 cents in two places.

Chapter 704 Contingent Effective Date and Termination: Section 5, Ch. 704, L. 1985, provided: "This act is effective October 1, 1985, but only if the rate of tax on cigarettes imposed by 26 U.S.C. 5701(b)(1) is reduced from $8 per thousand to $4 per thousand on that date."

Section 4, Ch. 704, L. 1985, provided that the act terminates June 30, 1987.

Nonoccurrence of Contingency: Chapter 704, L. 1985, which amended this section, provided in section 5 that the act would become effective October 1, 1985, only if the federal tax rate was reduced on that date. The tax rate was not so reduced, and therefore the amendment did not take effect.

Composite Section: Chapter 450, on packages containing more than 20 cigarettes, provided for a formula which assesses a greater amount of tax than the 24 cents per package set forth in Ch. 704. Therefore, in preparation of the composite of the Ch. 450 and 704 amendments, the Code Commissioner has codified the formula set forth in Ch. 450. Section 4, Ch. 704, L. 1985, provided a termination date of June 30, 1987; therefore, the version printed as temporary is revived July 1, 1987.

1983 Amendment: Changed tax from 12 cents to 16 cents twice.

1981 Amendment: Substituted "July 1, 1981" for "March 5, 1971" following "after" in the first sentence; consolidated the sales tax on cigarettes by adding the 2-cent tax in (2) and the 1-cent tax in (3) to subsection (1); deleted former subsections (2) and (3). WHEREAS, 17,100 Montana children, now under 18, will ultimately die prematurely from smoking.

WHEREAS, Montanans spend $216 million annually on health care costs in Montana directly caused by smoking.

WHEREAS, studies have also found that adolescents and young adults are 2 to 3 times more likely to quit than adults due to tobacco price increases.

Calculating Wholesale Price: Despite provisions of this section for discount to wholesalers in purchasing tax insignia, under 16-11-112 the full face value of the insignia is to be used in calculating wholesale cigarette price, so that State Board of Equalization (now Tax Appeal Board) formula reducing wholesale cost by discount was improper. Appropriations — Legislative Control Over Marketing Assessment Funds: Although the control of the Legislature over appropriations to state agencies is based upon broad constitutional provisions, certain money may either be exempt from the appropriation process or the purposes for which that money may be appropriated may be limited by statute. Thus, the Legislature may control appropriations from the Wheat Marketing and Research Account, but those appropriations are subject to the statutorily stated purposes of the Account. Any attempt by the Legislature in an appropriation bill to alter the purposes for which appropriations from the Account are made is subject to the constitutional restriction that the purpose of legislation must be clearly stated in the title of the bill. 39 A.G. Op. 3 (1981).

Chapter 28, L. 1981, made no amendments to Sec. 2, Ch. 438, L. 1977, which terminated subsections (10) through (15) of this section. However, the Code Commissioner did not remove those subsections because the testimony of witnesses on HB 341, as well as the title to HB 341, indicates an apparent intent to remove the sunset provisions.

Public University Endowment Funds Not "Public Funds" — Not Required to be Invested Through Unified Investment Program: Article VIII, sec. 13, Mont. Const., does not require that endowments granted to Montana's public universities be invested through the unified investment program. 53 A.G. Op. 6 (2010).

Attorney General's Opinions

Disaster and Emergency Expenditures: An interaccount loan was not appropriate to provide a loan of $11.4 million to the Department of State Lands (now Department of Natural Resources and Conservation) from the state's general fund to be repaid by a subsequent appropriation of the same amount from the general fund. An interaccount loan may not be made to a special revenue account when the borrower anticipates no income, other than the possibility of a supplemental appropriation sometime in the future, with which to repay the loan. The reliance on the possibility of a supplemental appropriation does not meet the requirement of reasonable evidence of future income under the interaccount loan statute. 42 A.G. Op. 123 (1988).

Case Notes

Child Support Enforcement Remedies Held Separate Remedies to Be Exercised Within Ten-Year Statute of Limitations — Due Process Requirements Applicable to Separate Remedies — Connell Distinguished: Emery was divorced from Keep in 1987, and Emery was ordered to pay child support. In exchange for Keep's receipt of payments under the Aid to Families With Dependent Children (now FAIM financial assistance) program, Keep assigned the Child Support Enforcement Division (CSED) of the Department of Public Health and Human Services her right to receive child support and her right to enforcement of support. In 1991, CSED served Emery with a Notice of Intent (NOI) to collect the child support payments by referral of his debt to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) for collection by interception of any federal tax refund owed to Emery. In response to the NOI, Emery timely requested an administrative hearing before CSED, which was granted, but the hearing was indefinitely continued, and no interception was made by the IRS. In 1992, CSED sent a second NOI to Emery, but Emery made no response. In 1992, no interception was made by the IRS. Also in 1992, Emery and Keep executed a stipulated change of their children's custody. In that stipulation, Keep waived her ability to collect child support arrearages, and the District Court approved the stipulation in an order. In 1995, CSED sent a third NOI to Emery notifying him of CSED's intent to collect child support payments by interception of Emery's federal tax refund. In response to the 1995 NOI, Emery requested a hearing before the CSED. Within 8 months from service of the 1995 NOI upon Emery, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) held that CSED's assigned right to child support was not affected by the waiver because CSED was not a party to the stipulation. The District Court approved the decision of the ALJ. On a motion for alteration or amendment of the District Court's order, the District Court, relying upon In re Connell v. St., 280 M 491, 930 P2d 88 (1997), held that the delay between Emery's 1991 request for administrative review and the 1996 hearing before the ALJ violated Emery's right to due process of law and his right to the administration of justice without delay. The Supreme Court reviewed its decision in Connell and pointed out that in that case, 44 months elapsed before the ALJ made a decision in response to Connell's request for administrative review of a CSED NOI and that the 44-month lapse denied Connell his constitutional rights to due process and administration of justice without delay. In contrast, the Supreme Court held that the NOI served upon Emery in 1995 in the case before it was a separate proceeding from the NOI served upon him in 1991 and was not, as interpreted by the District Court, a continuation of the 1991 proceeding because the 1991 proceeding was discontinued once the IRS failed to make an interception of the federal tax refund owed to Emery. Further, the Supreme Court pointed out that the various administrative remedies, such as state debt offsets, license suspension, warrants for distraint, and state income withholding, are all separate remedies for the CSED to pursue, and election of one remedy does not preclude pursuit of another remedy after, or at the same time as, the remedy chosen by the CSED until the debt assigned to the CSED is fully paid. Any of the remedies, the Supreme Court held, were subject to the 10-year statute of limitations provided in 27-2-201. The Supreme Court therefore held that because the lapse of time in the case before it was between different proceedings and not within one proceeding and the lapse of time within the 1995 proceeding was reasonable, Emery's right of due process and right to administration of justice without delay were not violated. The Supreme Court also held that because Emery had no right under Montana law to a hearing when no action was being taken by the CSED against him, the failure of the CSED to grant a hearing did not implicate Emery's rights of due process and administration of justice. In response to Emery's argument that the CSED did not act soon enough in initiating its collection action, the Supreme Court held that Art. II, sec. 16, Mont. Const., imposes no requirement that the CSED act "speedily and without delay" within the 10-year statute of limitations provided in 27-2-201, noting that imposition of such a requirement would effectively eliminate that 10-year limitation period. For these reasons, the Supreme Court reversed the decision made by the District Court that Emery's constitutional rights were violated by the decision of the CSED. Emery v. St., 286 M 376, 950 P2d 764, 54 St. Rep. 1454 (1997).

1995 Amendments — Phrase Change — Code Commissioner Correction: Section 6, Ch. 75, L. 1995, directed the Code Commissioner to change references in the MCA to Highway Commission to Transportation Commission. In this section, the Code Commissioner has made the change in the definition of political subdivision. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Chapter 418 in definition of political subdivision, in (b), deleted reference to "division of water resources"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995. The amendment also substituted "department of natural resource management" for "department of natural resources and conservation". As enacted, Ch. 418, L. 1995, no longer created a Department of Natural Resource Management but retained the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation. Pursuant to sec. 73, Ch. 18, L. 1995, the Code Commissioner has corrected the erroneous reference.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1983 Amendment: Made 1981 amendment permanent. (Amendment was to terminate July 1, 1983—sec. 21, Ch. 500, L. 1981.)

1981 Amendment: Deleted "except that no such rate shall exceed 7% except revenue bonds issued under the terms of Title 7, chapter 7, parts 44 and 45, Title 7, chapter 13, part 43, and 90-5-101 through 90-5-113, which rate shall not exceed 9%" at the end of (1); added subsection (2) relating to superiority of interest rates established by this section.

Case Notes

Interest Rate on Special Assessment: A municipality or county acting in behalf of a legally formed special improvement district, under the provisions of Title 7, ch. 12, may issue and sell bonds or warrants bearing an interest rate in excess of 7% per annum. State ex rel. Townsend v. D. A. Davidson, Inc., 166 M 104, 531 P2d 370 (1975).

Attorney General's Opinions

Payment Directly to Purchaser Not Considered Interest: A payment made directly to the purchaser of industrial development revenue bonds by the user-beneficiary of the bond proceeds from the user-beneficiary's own funds did not have to be considered in applying the interest limitation that was contained in 17-5-102 prior to 1981 amendment. 38 A.G. Op. 78 (1980).

Sale of Bonds at Less Than Face Value: Prior to 1981 amendment removing specific interest rate limitations, the sale of industrial revenue bonds issued pursuant to Title 90, ch. 5, part 1, at a price less than the face value of the bonds did not violate 17-5-102 if the yield of the bonds exceeded the 9% limitation. 38 A.G. Op. 78 (1980).

Compiler's Comments

2005 Amendment: Chapter 451 at end after "interest on the bonds" inserted reference to additional rate of interest to pay principal and interest on bonds; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 28, 2005.

Case Notes

Rate of Interest: In order to give the phrase "the rate of interest on said bonds" any meaning, a municipality or county acting on behalf of a special improvement district has the power to issue and sell bonds or warrants bearing an interest rate in excess of 7% per annum (see 2005 amendment). State ex rel. Townsend v. D. A. Davidson, Inc., 166 M 104, 531 P2d 370 (1975).

Constitutionality: Chapter 45, L. 1941, construed in connection with Ch. 55, L. 1941 (omitted), directing the state Board of Examiners to issue and sell bonds for the erection of necessary buildings at the state hospital for the insane, did not run counter to the provisions of Art. XIII, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 8, 1972 Mont. Const.), prescribing the manner in which state indebtedness in excess of $100,000 may be created. Such provision did not require that a law creating a state debt in excess of $100,000 must be submitted to the people at a general election for their approval or rejection, but only a law authorizing the debt. Saving Clause: Section 8, Ch. 374, L. 2005, was a saving clause.

Long-Range Building Program Bonds

Part Case Notes

Approval by Voters: Issuance of new bonds under 17-5-410 (now repealed) created a liability within the meaning of Art. XIII, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 8, 1972 Mont. Const.), and must be approved by a vote of the people before the bonds are issued. State ex rel. Ward v. Anderson, 158 M 279, 491 P2d 868 (1971).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Two-Thirds Majority Required: When a bill authorizing the Department of Administration to incur future lease and/or purchase payments did not pass by a two-thirds majority of each house as required by the Montana Constitution, no legal method or procedure existed for a lease-purchase plan for construction of the building. 35 A.G. Op. 41 (1973).

17-5-405. Debt service account.

Compiler's Comments

1997 Amendment: Chapter 422 deleted former (1), (2), and (3) that read: "(1) From and after the pledge and appropriation of any special tax to the debt service account, as provided and contemplated in this section, 17-5-407, and 17-5-408, such tax shall continue in force and shall be available and shall be pledged and appropriated for the payment of long-range building program bonds, and all moneys received from the collection thereof shall be deposited by the treasurer to the credit of the debt service account.

(2) No special taxes pledged to the debt service account on January 1, 1973, shall be discontinued or diverted to other funds until all bonds issued pursuant to this part prior to that date and the interest thereon have been fully paid or the state's liability thereon has been fully discharged, except to the extent, if any, that the right so to do has been reserved in the resolutions authorizing the issuance of such bonds.

(3) Subject to the provisions of subsections (1) and (2), the state reserves the right to modify from time to time the nature and amount of special taxes to be deposited to the credit of the debt service account"; in (2), at end of second sentence, substituted "credit to the debt service account an amount sufficient to restore the balance from the general fund" for "credit to said account an amount sufficient to restore said balance from the next collections of the special taxes appropriated to said account and from any other collections of taxes appropriated to the general fund, not exceeding the aggregate amount theretofore transferred from the debt service account to the general fund"; adjusted subsection references; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

1983 Amendment: Throughout section, substituted "debt service account" for "sinking fund account".

Case Notes

Approval by Voters: Because portions of the proceeds of the income tax, corporation license tax, and tobacco tax are pledged for the security of bonds issued under this chapter, the issuance of new bonds would create a liability within the meaning of Art. XIII, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 8, 1972 Mont. Const.), and such bonds may not be issued without approval by a vote of the people. This holding does not have retroactive effect; bonds issued in good faith before November 23, 1971, but without approval by a vote of the electors pursuant to Art. XIII, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 8, 1972 Mont. Const.), are valid. State ex rel. Ward v. Anderson, 158 M 279, 491 P2d 868 (1971), distinguishing Cottingham v. St. Bd. of Examiners, 134 M 1, 328 P2d 907 (1958).

Coal Severance Tax Bonds — Water Development

Part Compiler's Comments

Appropriation — Creation of Debt for Coal Severance Tax Bonds: Section 16, Ch. 613, L. 1993, provided: "(1) The legislature, through the enactment of this section by a vote of three-fourths of the members of each house of the legislature, as required by Article IX, section 5, of the Montana constitution, pledges, dedicates, and appropriates from the coal severance tax bond fund all money necessary for the payment of principal and interest not otherwise provided for on the coal severance tax bonds authorized by [sections 1 through 3] [not codified] to be issued pursuant to Title 17, chapter 5, part 7, pursuant to the provisions of [sections 1 through 3] [not codified], and pursuant to the general resolution for this bond program that has been adopted by the board of examiners under the authority provided in Title 17, chapter 5, part 7.

(2) The legislature, through the enactment of this section, in accordance with Article VIII, section 8, of the Montana constitution, authorizes the creation of a state debt in an amount not to exceed $3,855,242 for loans to political subdivisions and local government entities for water development projects approved in [sections 1 through 3] [not codified] and for funding a reserve for the coal severance tax bonds authorized to fund those projects.

(3) In connection with the issuance of coal severance tax bonds, the board of examiners may pay the principal and interest on the bonds from the debt service account and in all other respects manage and use the funds within each special bond account for the benefit of the bonds. The board of examiners shall exercise its discretion to enhance the marketability of the bonds and to secure the most advantageous financial arrangements for the state.

(4) Earnings on bond proceeds prior to the completion of any loan must be allocated to the debt service account to pay the debt service on the bonds during this period. Earnings in excess of debt service, if any, must be allocated to the water development state special revenue account and may be used for the purposes allowed under 85-1-604(3)(c) [now repealed].

(5) Loan repayments from loans financed with coal severance tax bonds are pledged, dedicated, and appropriated to the debt service account in the state treasury for the benefit of bonds approved for loans under this section." Effective May 5, 1993.

State Debt: Section 17, Ch. 613, L. 1993, required that [section 16] (not codified) receive a three-fourths vote of each house to create state debt and appropriate coal severance tax bond fund deposits. [Section 16] received the necessary three-fourths vote of each house.

Severability: Section 18, Ch. 613, L. 1993, was a severability clause.

Part Case Notes

Special Legislation — Permissible When General Act Cannot Be Provided: Plaintiff filed a complaint for declaratory judgment in the Supreme Court seeking to determine the validity of several acts of the Legislature allowing the issuance of state revenue bonds. The bonds would be financed by coal severance taxes to provide proceeds for development of state water resources. Plaintiff contended that the appropriation of funds for favorable loans to a score of small municipalities, water districts, and portions of counties constituted special legislation and was unconstitutional. The court noted that Art. V, sec. 12, Mont. Const., is not absolutely prohibitory.

The court noted that the Legislature cannot draft a general act of statewide application providing for the issuance and sale of revenue bonds and at the same time control the way the proceeds are to be spent or loaned except through its direct authorization of projects. The court held that the passage of Ch. 705, L. 1983, was an implementation of Title 85, ch. 1, part 6, and excluded no class of governmental entity. Therefore, those enactments were "general" legislation within the meaning of Art. V, sec. 12, Mont. Const. The court also held sections 5 and 6 of Ch. 705, L. 1983, were valid in any event because even though local in effect, these were provisions for which a general act could not be provided. Grossman v. St., 209 M 427, 682 P2d 1319, 41 St. Rep. 804 (1984).

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 390, L. 2013, provided: "WHEREAS, Article VIII, section 15, of the Montana Constitution requires that "Public retirement systems shall be funded on an actuarially sound basis" and that "Public retirement system assets, including income and actuarially required contributions, shall not be encumbered, diverted, reduced, or terminated and shall be held in trust to provide benefits to participants and their beneficiaries and to defray administrative expenses"; and

WHEREAS, the unprecedented collapse of the financial markets in 2008 through 2009 and the subsequent slow rate of economic recovery have resulted in little or no prospect that current statutory contribution rates together with future market returns will be sufficient to fund the Public Employees' Retirement System on an actuarially sound basis, and current contributions remain insufficient to pay the past and future accruals of retirement benefits for members currently in the system; and

WHEREAS, failure to return the system to a position of actuarially sound funding places the benefits to be paid to current system participants in jeopardy and results in collection of employee contributions for which future benefits may not be guaranteed; and

WHEREAS, the current and increasing level of unfunded liabilities has the potential to compromise the credit ratings of the state of Montana and of local government entities, including public school districts; and

WHEREAS, because reasonable increases in employer contributions and reasonable reductions in benefits for future participants alone will not be sufficient to return the system to a position of actuarially sound funding, a reasonable increase in contributions for current participants is necessary to help return the system to a position of actuarially sound funding; and

WHEREAS, during the past two legislative sessions and interims, the Legislature, interim committees, the retirement system board and staff, and the Governor's office have analyzed and enacted alternatives for returning the system to a position of actuarially sound funding without raising contract impairment issues for current members, which have failed to reduce system costs enough to restore the system to actuarial soundness; and

WHEREAS, in light of significant strains on the Montana economy, on state and local government budgets, and on taxpayers, a modest supplemental contribution rate increase of 1% imposed on current members, with an appropriate mechanism to terminate the supplemental contribution rate as system funding improves and in conjunction with additional employer and state contributions, is, pursuant to the language of U.S. Trust Company of New York v. New Jersey, 431 U.S. 1 (1977), concerning contract impairment, reasonable and necessary, is for a valid public purpose, and is the least impairing alternative available to the Legislature as it seeks to fulfill its constitutional obligation to ensure that the retirement system is funded in an actuarially sound manner."

Case Notes

1999 Coal Producer's License Tax Violative of Constitutional Coal Severance Tax Provisions: By simple majority vote, the 1999 Legislature passed House Bill No. 260, which created a license tax on the production of coal and allocated revenue from the tax to various state programs. Several legislators challenged the validity of the new tax, contending that by creating a license tax on the same taxable event for which the state coal severance tax is imposed and then providing a credit against the severance tax in an amount slightly greater than the amount of the license tax, the Legislature simply diverted what in substance and character are coal severance taxes to purposes other than the coal tax trust fund, in violation of Art. IX, sec. 5, Mont. Const. The Supreme Court agreed, noting that the only difference between the coal severance tax and the coal producer's license tax was the purpose for which each was allocated. A tax on the production of natural resources is characterized by the nature of the activity upon which the tax is imposed, and the effect of a legislative assessment is more important than its label in determining the character of the tax. Legislative imposition of a tax can become unlawful when done to accomplish an unlawful end, which was the case in this instance because the coal producer's license tax diverted production-based coal severance taxes for an unconstitutional purpose. Although the Legislature has the authority to determine the percentage of the coal severance tax, in this case, the Legislature simply gave a different name to the same tax and thereby diverted revenue to causes other than the coal tax trust fund. A coal severance tax by any other name is just as dedicated. By diverting and allocating coal severance tax revenue in a manner contrary to the requirement in Art. IX, sec. 5, and by doing so without the required three-fourths vote of each house of the Legislature, House Bill No. 260 violated the constitution; thus, the state was enjoined from enforcing House Bill No. 260. Attorney General's Opinions

Investment Earnings Not to Be Credited to Science and Technology Development Account: Investment earnings on funds earmarked to be loaned but not yet paid out to a loan recipient are not payback funds or loan repayments within the context of 17-6-201 or 90-3-305 (now repealed). Therefore, those earnings may not be credited to the science and technology development account to be used to cover costs of administering programs under the Montana Science and Technology Financing Act. 45 A.G. Op. 28 (1994).

Three-Fourths Vote Required to Appropriate Severance Tax Trust Fund Income: Income deposited in the coal severance tax permanent fund under this section becomes part of the principal of the trust. As such, the Legislature may not appropriate by a simple majority the income and interest earned on the trust fund since July 1, 1983; rather, a three-fourths vote of each house is required. (See 1989 amendment.) 42 A.G. Op. 110 (1988).

Case Notes

Bonded Debt — Not Invalid as Continuing Appropriation: Plaintiff filed a complaint for declaratory judgment in the Supreme Court seeking to determine the validity of several acts of the Legislature allowing the issuance of state revenue bonds. The bonds would be financed by coal severance taxes to provide proceeds for development of state water resources. Plaintiff contended that this was an invalid "continuing appropriation". Plaintiff contended that the 48th Legislature by enacting the program could not constitutionally bind future Legislatures to "appropriate" the coal tax money necessary to service the bonds; that the principal of the coal severance tax trust funds had been invaded for years; and that each bond issue requires a separate appropriation of coal severance tax revenues by a three-fourths vote of each house of the Legislature. The Supreme Court harmonized the various constitutional provisions involved. The court held that the Legislature can authorize long-term borrowing by issuing and selling bonds and can provide for the servicing for such indebtedness by repayment or refunding. The court found nothing making the coal severance tax trust fund immune from use as a source of funding for long-term state bonds. When the Legislature validly acts to establish a debt, that indebtedness becomes a state obligation extending over the life of the indebtedness, and every succeeding Legislature has an unavoidable duty to provide for it in the manner required by the authorizing law. Amount of Funding Indefinite — Certainty Upon Sale of Bonds: Plaintiff filed a complaint for declaratory judgment in the Supreme Court seeking to determine the validity of several acts of the Legislature allowing the issuance of state revenue bonds. The plaintiff contended that H.B. 846, L. 1981, whereby the Legislature authorized issuance of up to $10 million in coal severance tax bonds for the state's share of construction costs of Tongue River Dam rehabilitation, violated Art. VIII, sec. 14, and Art. IX, sec. 5, Mont. Const., in that the amount of money necessary to finance the project was not definite or certain. The court found that at the time of the bill's passage, it was impossible for the Legislature to determine the exact cost. The authorization is contingent on legislative approval of a detailed project plan. Sections 17-5-709 and 17-5-710 place limits on the bonds that may be issued. The court found that no Legislature can be expected to predict the interest rate which will meet the market for the issuance of state bonds. The court found that when the bonds are issued and sold, the interest rate to be paid by the state will become certain. The amounts necessary to service and repay the indebtedness will be definite. The court relied on State ex rel. Toomey v. St. Bd. of Examiners, 74 M 1, 238 P 316 (1925), which held "that is certain which can be made certain", to uphold the authorization for the project. Grossman v. St., 209 M 427, 682 P2d 1319, 41 St. Rep. 804 (1984).

Attorney General's Opinions

Montana Higher Education Student Assistance Corporation Not State Bond Issuer — Bond Fee Inapplicable: A reasonable interpretation of this section is that it governs application of the audit fee for entities issuing private activity bonds, while 17-5-2201 governs application of the fee for all other types of bond issuance. The Montana Higher Education Student Assistance Corporation is not a state bond issuer as that term is used in 17-5-2201; therefore, the fees in that section do not apply to bonds issued by the Corporation. 47 A.G. Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 378, L. 2007, provided: "WHEREAS, the Montana Legislature has previously determined that Montana is blessed with an abundance of diverse renewable resources, that renewable energy production promotes and sustains economic development activity in local communities across the state, that increased use of renewable resources will enhance Montana's energy self-sufficiency, that economic and environmental benefits from renewable energy production accrue to the public at large, and that the expanded development of these resources to meet Montana's electricity demand and stabilize electricity prices should be encouraged and promoted; and

WHEREAS, Congress, pursuant to the Energy Tax Incentives Act of 2005, codified in part as section 54 of the Internal Revenue Code and referred to as the Federal Act, has created a federal tax credit program that would enable qualified issuers to issue clean renewable energy bonds for which the holder would receive a federal tax credit, in lieu of interest, to finance the capital costs of qualified projects as described in the Federal Act; and

WHEREAS, qualified issuers and qualified borrowers under the Federal Act include governmental bodies, which are defined as any state, territory, or possession of the United States, the District of Columbia, an Indian tribal government, or any political subdivision of those entities; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature, in enacting the Montana Renewable Power Production and Rural Economic Development Act, has required Montana public utilities to establish graduated renewable energy standards and to purchase renewable energy from the community renewable energy projects and has allowed Montana political subdivisions or governmental bodies to be owners of community renewable energy projects; and

WHEREAS, several Montana cities, towns, and counties have expressed a desire to issue clean renewable energy bonds and to acquire and construct qualified projects under the Federal Act that would provide the energy for their own needs at a stable price and have applied to the Internal Revenue Service for allocations under the Federal Act; and

WHEREAS, the purpose of this legislation is to authorize Montana local governmental bodies and Indian tribal governments to participate as qualified issuers or qualified borrowers under the Federal Act and to enable governmental bodies and Indian tribal governments to better access financial investments for community renewable energy projects or alternative renewable energy sources."

Solid Waste Management District Not Considered Political Subdivision for Municipal Finance Consolidation Purposes: A solid waste management district created under Title 7, chapter 13, part 2 (now repealed), is not governed by an independent board autonomous from the supervisory control of the Board of County Commissioners. Therefore, a solid waste management district is not considered a political subdivision for purposes of funding under the Municipal Finance Consolidation Act. 44 A.G. Op. 28 (1992).

Refuse District Not Special Taxing District or Political Subdivision: Under the rationale of this section and 42 A.G. Op. 80 (1988), a refuse disposal district has no independent governing body and therefore does not fall within the definition of "special taxing district". Further, under the rationale of 43 A.G. Op. 56 (1990), because a refuse board is not a separate and independent body and has not been delegated supervisory authority over a refuse disposal district, a refuse disposal district cannot be considered a political subdivision, as that term is used in this section. 43 A.G. Attorney General's Opinions

Montana Higher Education Student Assistance Corporation Not State Bond Issuer — Bond Fee Inapplicable: A reasonable interpretation of 17-5-1312 is that it governs application of the audit fee for entities issuing private activity bonds, while this section governs application of the fee for all other types of bond issuance. The Montana Higher Education Student Assistance Corporation is not a state bond issuer as that term is used in this section; therefore, the fees in this section do not apply to bonds issued by the Corporation. 47 A.G. Op. 1 (1997).

State Board of Education: Nothing contained in this section or 17-2-202 and 17-3-1003, relative to the duties of the State Treasurer and state boards, is out of harmony with Ch. 94, L. 1929 (since repealed), concerning power of State Board of Education to erect and operate dormitories. Barbour v. St. Bd. of Educ., 92 M 321, 13 P2d 225 (1932).

WHEREAS, the Legislature further finds that while those sacrifices may be difficult to quantify or compare because they range from loss of time with family and friends due to demands of reserve duty to loss of life in the service of the country, those sacrifices have in common that they occurred because of the status of the individual as a member of the armed forces; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature further finds that it has the authority pursuant to Article II, section 35, of the Montana Constitution to recognize and reward this status by providing special consideration to the status of service members and veterans; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that it is appropriate to reward this status and the sacrifices the status represents by facilitating the fulfillment of the American dream of home ownership for those who serve or have served in the American armed forces; and

WHEREAS, the purpose of the Montana Veterans' Home Loan Mortgage Program Act is not to provide the most substantial return on the investment of money in the coal tax trust fund used for the program but to use some of the money in the trust fund for a mortgage loan program so that first-time home buyers who are eligible veterans can acquire a mortgage loan at a rate lower than prevailing market rates and in this way reward those eligible veterans who have served this country well and reward the unremarried spouses of eligible veterans who have made the ultimate sacrifice in service to their country."

Attorney General's Opinions

Public University Endowment Funds Not "Public Funds" — Not Required to be Invested Through Unified Investment Program: Article VIII, sec. 13, Mont. Const., does not require that endowments granted to Montana's public universities be invested through the unified investment program. 53 A.G. Op. 6 (2010).

Investment Earnings Not to Be Credited to Science and Technology Development Account: Investment earnings on funds earmarked to be loaned but not yet paid out to a loan recipient are not payback funds or loan repayments within the context of 90-3-305 (now repealed) or this section. Therefore, those earnings may not be credited to the science and technology development account to be used to cover costs of administering programs under the Montana Science and Technology Financing Act. 45 A.G. Op. 28 (1994).

Cost Deductions From Investment Earnings Allowed: Subsection (7) of this section allows for deduction of allocated program costs from investment earnings of the state special revenue accounts referred to in 81-1-104. 42 A.G. Op. 108 (1988).

Regulation of Gifts to School for Deaf and Blind: The Board of Public Education has complete control over the ultimate disposition of gifts to the Montana School for the Deaf and Blind and can utilize such gifts without a specific appropriation. Pending such disposition, cash and similar gifts to the School must be deposited with the State Treasurer. If the Board invests any gifts, investment must be done pursuant to the unified investment program. 36 A.G. Op. 106 (1976).

University System — Funds — Deposit and Investment: The statutes relating to the deposit and investment of state money are applicable to the Board of Regents of Higher Education and the separate units of the Montana University System. 36 A.G. Op. 2 (1975).

Case Notes

Accounting System Allowing Commingling of State Trust Revenue Constitutional: Plaintiff challenged the state's alleged improper commingling of state land trust assets, including rental and bonus payments on certain coal leases, into the general fund, asserting that the accounting system violated the state's duty to obtain full market value for school trust lands. The District Court concluded that plaintiff failed to prove financial harm to the school trust beneficiaries, particularly when the Legislature's appropriation to public schools far exceeded the combined money provided by the interest income and the bonus payments. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed. The state satisfied its trust obligations by demonstrating that its accounting system was sufficiently accurate and complete to allow plaintiff to ascertain that all trust revenue goes to benefit public schools, while plaintiff failed to carry its burden of proving that the state withheld either the interest income or the bonus payments or improperly diverted those funds to nontrust purposes. Thus, the state statutory scheme did not breach the state's trustee duty by requiring the deposit of interest income and bonus payments into the general fund. Attorney General's Opinions

Foreclosure and Disposal of Real Property: Arguably, if the Board of Investments has the authority to invest in first mortgages, it should have the authority to foreclose and dispose of the real property involved. However, no such specific authority exists. Therefore, once title to real property passes to the state, its administration, control, and subsequent disposition come under the direction and supervision of the Board of Land Commissioners. (See 1997 amendments to 17-6-201, 77-1-101, and 77-1-701.) 36 A.G. Op. 104 (1976).

1985 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 418 deleted former (1) through (3) that read: "(1) The following securities are permissible investments for all investment funds referred to in 17-6-203, except as indicated:

(a) any securities authorized to be pledged to secure deposits of public funds under 17-6-103;

(b) bonds, notes, debentures, equipment obligations, or any other kind of absolute obligation of any corporation organized and operating in any state of the United States or in Canada, if the obligations purchased are payable in United States dollars, or of any corporation in which the United States government is a voting shareholder by act of congress; provided that all investments under this subsection (1)(b) must be rated by one nationally recognized rating agency among the top third of their quality categories, not applicable to defaulted bonds;

(c) commercial paper of highest quality, as defined by one nationally recognized rating agency, issued by any corporation organized and operating in any state of the United States, provided that:

(i) such securities mature in 270 days or less;

(ii) the issuing corporation or the parent company of a finance subsidiary issuing commercial paper, at the time of the last financial reporting period, had received net income averaging $1 million or more annually for the preceding 5 years; and

(iii) no investment may be made at any time under this subsection (1)(c) which would cause the book value of such investments in any investment fund to exceed 10% of the book value of such fund or would cause the commercial paper of any one corporation to exceed 2% of the book value of such fund;

(d) bankers' acceptances guaranteed by any bank having its principal office in any state of the United States and having deposits in excess of $500 million;

(e) interest-bearing deposits in banks, building and loan associations, savings and loan associations, and credit unions located in Montana; provided, however, that the board of investments shall require pledged securities as specified in 17-6-102 (interest on said deposits shall not be less than the prevailing rate of interest being paid on deposits of private funds);

(f) unencumbered real property, first mortgages, and participations in first mortgages on unencumbered real property as provided in this subsection (1)(f) and subsection (5), provided that:

(i) no such mortgage or mortgage participation may be purchased unless:

(A) the principal amount of the loan secured by the mortgage or mortgage participation is 80% or less of the appraised value of the property;

(B) the principal amount of the loan secured by the mortgage or mortgage participation exceeds 80% of the appraised value of the property but the amount of the loan in excess of 80%, determined at the time the loan was made, is guaranteed or insured by a mortgage insurance company which the board of investments has determined to be a qualified private insurer;

(C) 25% or more of the loan or participation therein secured is guaranteed or insured in the event of default by the United States of America or an agency thereof; or

(D) the mortgagor has leased the mortgaged property to a person, firm, or corporation whose rental payments under the lease are guaranteed for the full term of the loan or participation therein by an agency of the United States; and

(ii) no investment shall be made at any time under subsection (1)(f) which would cause the book value of such investments in any investment fund to exceed 50% of the book value of such fund; and

(g) any other investment in any business activity in the state, including activities that continue existing jobs or create new jobs in Montana, provided that investments which do not meet the requirements of subsections (1)(a) through (1)(f) may not, in the aggregate, exceed 10% of the fund from which each such investment is made.

(2) Investments from the pooled investment fund shall be restricted to fixed income securities described in subsections (1)(a) to (1)(e) above.

(3) Retirement funds and the fund provided for in 17-6-203, subsection (4) may be invested in preferred and common stocks of any corporation organized and operating in any state of the United States, provided that:

(a) the corporation has assets of a value not less than $10 million;

(b) if the investment is preferred stock, the corporation's aggregate earnings available for payment of interest and preferred dividends, for a period of 5 consecutive years immediately before the date of investment, have been at least 1½ times the aggregate of interest and preferred dividends required to be paid during this period;

(c) no investment may be made at any time under subsection (3) which would cause the book value of such investments in any retirement fund to exceed 50% of the book value of such fund or would cause the stock of one corporation to exceed 2% of the book value of such retirement fund;

(d) subsection (3)(c) does not apply to funds provided for in 17-6-203(4)"; in first sentence of (1), after "and/or", substituted "financial institutions" for "banks"; at beginning of (2), deleted former first sentence that read: "The board may invest in mortgage loans financed by the board of housing if the mortgages are not in default and meet the requirements of subsection (1)(f)"; and deleted former (6) that read: "The Montana economic development board created in 2-15-1805 may invest the Montana in-state investment fund in any in-state investment authorized by its rules in addition to those investments authorized by this section."

Chapter 421 in (1) in first sentence, after "firms", inserted "credit unions".

Chapter 418 substituted "financial institutions" for "banks". Chapter 421 inserted "credit unions" before "banks". Because the term "financial institutions" includes credit unions, the Code Commissioner has not inserted "credit unions".

Interim Study Committee Bill: Chapter 418, L. 1985, was introduced by request of Joint Interim Subcommittee No. 3. See the committee report entitled "Effective Management of State Investments", Montana Legislative Council, December 1984. (The committee bill was substantially amended during the legislative process.)

1983 Amendments — Composite: Chapter 358, near beginning of (1)(c) before "quality", changed "prime" to "highest"; and in (1)(c)(ii) after "reporting period," deleted "had a ratio of current assets to current liabilities, including among current liabilities long-term debt maturing within 1 year, of at least 1½ to 1 and".

Chapter 360, in (1)(f), inserted "as provided in this subsection (1)(f) and subsection (5)"; and inserted (5) authorizing commitment agreement with Board of Housing.

Chapter 387, in (1)(e), after "associations" inserted ", and credit unions"; inserted (1)(g) authorizing investment in any business activity that continues or creates jobs in Montana.

Chapter 677, in (4), following "to direct", inserted "its portion of"; and inserted (6) allowing Board to authorize in-state investments by rule.

1981 Amendment: Deleted former subsection (3)(c) restricting investments in common stock to stocks that have paid cash dividends in each of at least 5 years immediately preceding purchase and to stocks of corporations with aggregate earnings at least equal to aggregate dividends paid and limiting to 2% the assets of a retirement fund that may be invested in stocks that didn't qualify under the above restrictions; increased the percent of book value from 20% to 50% and the percent of one corporation's stock from 1% to 2% in subsection (3)(c).

1997 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 42 in (5) substituted "state treasurer" for "state auditor". Amendment effective March 12, 1997.

Chapter 48 in (5) substituted "department" for "state treasurer" and after "orders" deleted "upon the proper funds addressed to the state auditor". Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

The Code Commissioner has codified the amendment in Ch. 48, because "department" is a broader reference than "state treasurer" and the Director of the Department is the ex officio State Treasurer.

1995 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 40 inserted last sentence of (2), (2)(a), and (2)(b) allowing the Board to set the rate of interest and providing criteria that the Board must consider in setting the interest rate; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 325 deleted former last sentence in (2) that read: "It shall also give notice to the state auditor of the investment to be made by the treasurer, designating the fund or funds to be invested and the amounts"; in (3) substituted "state treasurer" for "auditor"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Style changes in the chapters were slightly different. In each case, the codifier chose the most appropriate.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 677, L. 1983, provided: "(1) A statement of intent is required for this bill because it grants rulemaking authority to the Montana economic development board [now the Board of Investments] in section 16. These rules will include definitions of small- and medium-sized businesses, a method of commitment of funds to financial institutions, setting service fees for loans, defining types of permissible investments, and procedural rules to govern the board's proceedings.

(2) It is the intent of the legislature that:

(a) the definitions of small- and medium-sized business be based on either the number of employees of the business, the level of capitalization of the business, or a combination of these factors;

(b) the method of committing funds to financial institutions be similar to the method utilized by the board of housing for committing funds for housing developments to financial institutions;

(c) the level of service fees be set to cover the costs associated with processing the investment and be similar to those charged by financial institutions;

(d) the permissible investments adopted by rules be based on the long-term benefit to the Montana economy and adhere to the prudent-man rule. The investments should be aimed at diversifying, strengthening, and stabilizing the Montana economy and increasing employment opportunities while maintaining and improving a clean and healthful environment; and

(e) the procedural rules be based on the Attorney General's model rules."

Chapter 370 in definition of Montana in-state investment fund changed "17-6-305" to "17-6-306".

Chapter 581 substituted definition of Board for "the Montana economic development board established in 2-15-1805".

1985 Amendment: Inserted definition of clean and healthful environment.

Incorrect Internal References: (1) Section 2(1), Ch. 677, L. 1983, provided: "(1) Board means the Montana economic development board established in [section 19]." The "Board", however, was created in section 17 because sections 17 and 18 of the bill as introduced were deleted, which resulted in section 19 being renumbered as section 17.

(2) Section 2(3), Ch. 677, L. 1983, provided: "(3) Committee means the Economic Development Oversight Committee created by [section 17]." The Economic Development Oversight Committee was deleted from the bill prior to passage and this definition was inadvertently left in the bill. The Code Commissioner therefore has not codified the subsection.

Case Notes

Accounting System Allowing Commingling of State Trust Revenue Constitutional: Plaintiff challenged the state's alleged improper commingling of state land trust assets, including rental and bonus payments on certain coal leases, into the general fund, asserting that the accounting system violated the state's duty to obtain full market value for school trust lands. The District Court concluded that plaintiff failed to prove financial harm to the school trust beneficiaries, particularly when the Legislature's appropriation to public schools far exceeded the combined money provided by the interest income and the bonus payments. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed. The state satisfied its trust obligations by demonstrating that its accounting system was sufficiently accurate and complete to allow plaintiff to ascertain that all trust revenue goes to benefit public schools, while plaintiff failed to carry its burden of proving that the state withheld either the interest income or the bonus payments or improperly diverted those funds to nontrust purposes. Thus, the state statutory scheme did not breach the state's trustee duty by requiring the deposit of interest income and bonus payments into the general fund. Attorney General's Opinions

Board of Investments Allowed to Complete Grants Entered Between Board of Science and Technology Development and University System: In 1989, the Legislature created the Board of Science and Technology Development and allowed that Board to administer a statutorily allocated amount of money from the in-state investment fund for seed capital project loans. From 1989 to 1997, the Legislature continued to fund the Board of Science and Technology Development, which used the money to enter into research and development loans with different units of the Montana University System. In 1997, the Legislature deleted the Board of Science and Technology Development's authority to make loans that had been authorized in previous sessions, effective July 1, 1999, but authorized the Board of Science and Technology Development to grant up to $2 million of interest and income from investments to university research and development projects during the interim between 1997 and 1999. Relying on that authority, the Board of Science and Technology Development entered into six separate grant agreements with the University System, and the various units relied on the grants to secure matching federal funds for the projects. In 1999, in an attempt to make the coal tax permanent trust fund whole, the Legislature dismantled the Board of Science and Technology Development and directed the Board of Investments to administer agreements entered into by the Board of Science and Technology Development that had been funded with coal tax permanent trust funds and, at the same time, eliminated the funds set aside for the completion of the agreements, creating an inherent statutory conflict. Nevertheless, the agreements were fully integrated, binding contracts. The Attorney General concluded that the 1999 elimination of the Board of Investment's ability to complete the grant obligations to the University System would constitute a substantial impairment of contracts. Further, without the funds, the University System would not be able to complete the projects and federal matching funds would be jeopardized. To harmonize the conflict and avoid a contract impairment, the Attorney General held that the Board of Investments could complete the payment of grants to the University System from interest and income derived from Board of Science and Technology Development loans. 49 A.G. Op. 2 (2001).

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 349, L. 2011, provided: "WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that members of the Montana National Guard, residents of Montana in the federal reserves, and Montana residents serving on active duty in the armed forces have all made sacrifices of various kinds in order to serve the state and their country in times of war or national emergency; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature further finds that while those sacrifices may be difficult to quantify or compare because they range from loss of time with family and friends due to demands of reserve duty to loss of life in the service of the country, those sacrifices have in common that they occurred because of the status of the individual as a member of the armed forces; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature further finds that it has the authority pursuant to Article II, section 35, of the Montana Constitution to recognize and reward this status by providing special consideration to the status of service members and veterans; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that it is appropriate to reward this status and the sacrifices the status represents by facilitating the fulfillment of the American dream of home ownership for those who serve or have served in the American armed forces; and

WHEREAS, the purpose of the Montana Veterans' Home Loan Mortgage Program Act is not to provide the most substantial return on the investment of money in the coal tax trust fund used for the program but to use some of the money in the trust fund for a mortgage loan program so that first-time home buyers who are eligible veterans can acquire a mortgage loan at a rate lower than prevailing market rates and in this way reward those eligible veterans who have served this country well and reward the unremarried spouses of eligible veterans who have made the ultimate sacrifice in service to their country."

Case Notes

Provisions Permitting Use of In-State Investment Fund to Guarantee Private Loans or Bonds Unconstitutional: The provisions of this section which permit the use of in-state investment fund money derived from taxation to guarantee loans or bonds of private individuals or private entities either directly or through the capital reserve account or through the economic development guaranty fund are unconstitutional from the viewpoint of Art. V, sec. 11(5), Art. VIII, sec. 1, and Art. VIII, sec. 13(1), Mont. Const. Hollow v. St., 222 M 478, 723 P2d 227, 43 St. Rep. 1435 (1986).

Attorney General's Opinions

Board of Investments Allowed to Complete Grants Entered Between Board of Science and Technology Development and University System: In 1989, the Legislature created the Board of Science and Technology Development and allowed that Board to administer a statutorily allocated amount of money from the in-state investment fund for seed capital project loans. From 1989 to 1997, the Legislature continued to fund the Board of Science and Technology Development, which used the money to enter into research and development loans with different units of the Montana University System. In 1997, the Legislature deleted the Board of Science and Technology Development's authority to make loans that had been authorized in previous sessions, effective July 1, 1999, but authorized the Board of Science and Technology Development to grant up to $2 million of interest and income from investments to university research and development projects during the interim between 1997 and 1999. Relying on that authority, the Board of Science and Technology Development entered into six separate grant agreements with the University System, and the various units relied on the grants to secure matching federal funds for the projects. In 1999, in an attempt to make the coal tax permanent trust fund whole, the Legislature dismantled the Board of Science and Technology Development and directed the Board of Investments to administer agreements entered into by the Board of Science and Technology Development that had been funded with coal tax permanent trust funds and, at the same time, eliminated the funds set aside for the completion of the agreements, creating an inherent statutory conflict. Nevertheless, the agreements were fully integrated, binding contracts. The Attorney General concluded that the 1999 elimination of the Board of Investment's ability to complete the grant obligations to the University System would constitute a substantial impairment of contracts. Further, without the funds, the University System would not be able to complete the projects and federal matching funds would be jeopardized. To harmonize the conflict and avoid a contract impairment, the Attorney General held that the Board of Investments could complete the payment of grants to the University System from interest and income derived from Board of Science and Technology Development loans. 49 A.G. Repeal of Audit and Evaluation of Microbusiness Finance Program: Section 4, Ch. 88, L. 1993, repealed sec. 9, Ch. 602, L. 1991, which required an audit and evaluation of the microbusiness finance program and a report to the Legislature. Repealer effective March 10, 1993.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 602, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [sections 4 and 7] [17-6-406 and 17-6-411, now repealed] authorize the department of commerce to adopt rules for the administration of the microbusiness finance program and for the nomination of candidates to the microbusiness advisory council. [This act] [Title 17, ch. 6, part 4] is intended to provide a significant portion of the capital for a network of institutions that will, taken together, provide access throughout Montana to small loans for economically sound and feasible microbusiness projects that because of the high costs and diseconomies of scale of small lending or unconventional collateral are unlikely to receive financing from conventional public or private sources. The rules must ensure that a certified microbusiness development corporation receiving funds under this program:

(1) is prepared and qualified to provide or furnish access to management training and technical assistance to loan applicants and to conduct credit investigation and analysis and revolving loan fund administration in a prudent and professional manner;

(2) has identified adequate sources of operating income and sufficient prospective business clients; and

(3) includes in the membership of its board of directors representation of minorities, women, and low-income persons.

Ensuring management training capability, prudent revolving loan fund administration, and adequate operating income and market base must be balanced against the requirement to achieve geographic and rural-to-urban equity and equity for minorities, women, and low-income persons.

The rules must require that applicants to be certified as microbusiness development corporations submit cooperative proposals that propose to serve a multicounty region of the state and incorporate as partners or have the explicit approval of a significant number of development institutions and service providers within the communities to be served, including but not limited to local governments, certified community lead organizations, financial institutions, business incubators, business assistance groups, women, and representatives of low-income and minority populations.

Interest rates paid to the department by certified microbusiness development corporations receiving development loans must be at least sufficient, when the development loan fund is fully invested in development loans, to cover the department's administrative costs of the microbusiness finance program. Rates generally must be kept at the minimum necessary to provide for the department's administrative costs in order to provide the corporations with an interest earnings spread to be used for their own operating expenses.

Development loans generally must be interest-only loans, renewable at terms not to exceed 8 years. When the department chooses not to renew an interest-only development loan that has come to term and the corporation receiving the loan has administered its funds according to the program's criteria, the department shall attempt to negotiate an amortization schedule for repaying the loan that does not disrupt the operations or earnings of the corporation.

For maximum interest rates that certified microbusiness development corporations may charge on microbusiness loans, the rules must attempt to ensure that microbusiness development corporations comply with federal and state usury laws and other federal and state statutes and regulations regarding maximum rates to be charged by financial institutions. The department shall develop guidelines designed to reflect prevailing market conditions and specific loan risk and portfolio risk and may establish specific rate limits based on standard industry benchmarks, such as the New York prime rate, with the objective of allowing modest interest premiums, on the order of 1% to 3% above prevailing market rates, to be charged.

For minimum interest rates on microbusiness loans, the rules must consider prevailing market conditions and established industry benchmarks, such as the New York prime rate, in attempting to ensure that microbusiness development corporations are charging at least a prevailing market rate for loans of similar nature, term, and risk."

Audit and Evaluation of Microbusiness Finance Program — Report to Legislature: Section 9, Ch. 602, L. 1991, provided: "An audit, an analysis of costs and benefits, and an evaluation of the microbusiness finance program must be conducted by the office of the legislative auditor, beginning October 1, 1994, and the findings of this audit, analysis, and evaluation must be reported to the legislature no later than January 15, 1995." Effective April 24, 1991.

Appropriation — Approval of Three-Fourths of Members Required — Severability: Section 11, Ch. 602, L. 1991, provided: "(1) (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of 17-6-308 and 17-6-309 and recognizing that the provisions of [sections 1 through 9] [Title 17, ch. 6, part 4] are consistent with 17-6-304 and 17-6-305 and that [sections 1 through 9] [Title 17, ch. 6, part 4] will result in long-term benefits to the economy of the state, there is appropriated, subject to the provisions of subsections (1)(b) and (1)(c), to the department of commerce from the in-state investment fund [now permanent coal tax trust fund] in 17-6-306 [now repealed] during the biennium beginning July 1, 1991, $3,250,000 for the microbusiness finance program established in [section 4] [17-6-406]. Funds appropriated from the in-state investment fund [now permanent coal tax trust fund] must be deposited in the microbusiness development loan account and are appropriated to the department for the purpose of making development loans pursuant to [sections 1 through 9] [Title 17, ch. 6, part 4].

(b) The funds appropriated in subsection (1)(a) from the in-state investment fund [now permanent coal tax trust fund] to the department of commerce must remain in the in-state investment fund [now permanent coal tax trust fund] until the department has decided to make a loan to a certified microbusiness development corporation under the provisions of [section 5] [17-6-407]. When the department has made the decision to make a loan to a certified microbusiness development corporation under the provisions of [section 5] [17-6-407], the director of the department shall notify the state treasurer of the decision and direct him to transfer an amount equal to the amount of the loan from the in-state investment fund [now permanent coal tax trust fund] to the microbusiness development loan account created in [section 5] [17-6-407].

(c) Funds may not be transferred from the in-state investment fund [now permanent coal tax trust fund] to the microbusiness development loan account for the purposes of [sections 1 through 9] [Title 17, ch. 6, part 4] except as provided in subsection (1)(b).

(2) Because subsection (1) appropriates money from the principal of the permanent coal tax trust fund, the appropriation requires a vote of three-fourths of the members of each house of the legislature. If [this act] is approved by a vote of less than three-fourths of the members of each house, this section is void and the remaining sections of [this act] are valid and remain in effect in all valid applications upon enactment." The final vote requirement necessary to implement the provisions of this appropriation was met; therefore, the appropriation is valid. Section 13, Ch. 602, L. 1991, a coordination section, provided: "If Senate Bill No. 26 is passed and approved and if it includes provisions eliminating the in-state investment fund, the code commissioner is instructed to substitute "permanent coal tax trust" for "in-state investment fund" where it appears in [this act], unless the context requires otherwise." Senate Bill No. 26 was approved April 24, 1991, as Ch. 589, L. 1991; therefore, the references in this appropriation to the in-state investment fund are construed to mean the permanent coal tax trust fund. Section 14(2), Ch. 602, L. 1991, provided that this appropriation is effective July 1, 1991.

Appropriation: Section 12, Ch. 602, L. 1991, provided: "There is appropriated to the microbusiness finance program administrative account created in [section 5] [17-6-407] from the general fund $64,600 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1992." Section 14(2), Ch. 602, L. 1991, provided that this appropriation is effective July 1, 1991.

Effective Date: Section 14(1), Ch. 602, L. 1991, provided that this part is effective on passage and approval. Approved April 24, 1991.

Part Attorney General's Opinions

No Encumbrance of Unexpended Microbusiness Development Funds After End of Fiscal Year: The Department of Commerce entered into contracts with several microbusiness development corporations in June 1997, contingent upon matching funds being provided by September 30, 1997. However, when the matching funds were not received by that date, the Department amended the contracts to extend the time for providing matching funds to September 30, 1999. The Legislative Auditor conceded that Department rules allowed a valid encumbrance through September 30, 1997 (see ARM 8.99.505(3)), but maintained that after that time, the funds were no longer validly encumbered and should have reverted to the coal tax trust fund from which they were appropriated. The Attorney General agreed. In light of the balanced budget requirement in Art. VIII, sec. 9, Mont. Const., 17-7-304 contemplates that an appropriation for a specific purpose will revert to the fund or account from which it was appropriated after the expiration of the time for which it was appropriated, and appropriations for an unspecified period of time must revert at the end of the biennium. In this case, the appropriation was subject to reversion on June 30, 1997. The Department had administrative authority to create a valid encumbrance until September 30, 1997, but once that contingency expired, the Department had no authority to contract further in order to encumber the funds. There is no legal provision allowing encumbrance of funds after the end of a fiscal year. Because the Department's commitments were made after fiscal yearend, they were not valid obligations pursuant to 17-7-302; thus any unexpended balance from the appropriation should have reverted to the coal tax trust fund as of September 30, 1997. 48 A.G. CHAPTER 7
BUDGETING AND APPROPRIATIONS

Part 1
Budget Systems and Program Plans

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Appropriations to Community Colleges: The budget for community college districts must be approved by the Board of Regents and fit into the Budget Act procedure of 17-7-101, et seq. It is a budget request which may be altered by the chief budget officer and which is ultimately subject to legislative approval. While 65% of state funding of community colleges is the goal, the Legislature may or may not appropriate an amount equal to 65% of the districts' proposed budgets. If it does not, an additional levy, which must be approved by the voters in the district, is authorized to make up the deficiency. The General Appropriations Act of 1979 does no more than reflect this entire statutory scheme, especially the requirements of 20-15-301, et seq. The General Appropriations Act of 1979 properly appropriates state funds to the community colleges. 38 A.G. Op. 54 (1979).

Attorney General's Opinions

Water Adjudication Program Not Void Given Sufficient Line Item Appropriations to Avoid Voidness: A contingent voidness clause attached to legislation establishing the water adjudication account required that at least $2 million each fiscal year be appropriated to the water adjudication account by line item appropriation. Although the line item appropriations were directed to two agencies instead of being included in a single programmatic line item, the Attorney General concluded that more than $2 million had been appropriated from state sources other than the water adjudication account to avoid the contingent voidness provision. 51 A.G. Op. 3 (2005).

Case Notes

County Properly Ordered to Pay County Attorney's Salary Increase: Although the Board of County Commissioners had been notified that the state would be unable to pay an increased contribution to the County Attorney's salary, the Board awarded the County Attorney a salary in excess of twice the amount appropriated by the state. When the state's one-half share of the salary failed to cover the salary increase, the County Attorney sued the county for the shortfall. The District Court ordered the county to pay the salary increase, and the county appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed, holding that counties are responsible for any increases in County Attorneys' salaries that are not taken into account and included in the state appropriation for paying County Attorneys' salaries. Attorney General's Opinions

Applicability of Budget Amendment Process to Statutory Appropriations: Legislative history and case law support the conclusion that the scope of the budget amendment process is restricted to the expenditure of funds by state agencies in excess of their appropriations. The budget amendment process does not apply to "statutory appropriations", which are those appropriations accomplished by legislative enactment, either with or without specific appropriation laws. (See Title 17, ch. 7, part 5.) 40 A.G. Op. 25 (1983).

Attorney General's Opinions

No Encumbrance of Unexpended Microbusiness Development Funds After End of Fiscal Year: The Department of Commerce entered into contracts with several microbusiness development corporations in June 1997, contingent upon matching funds being provided by September 30, 1997. However, when the matching funds were not received by that date, the Department amended the contracts to extend the time for providing matching funds to September 30, 1999. The Legislative Auditor conceded that Department rules allowed a valid encumbrance through September 30, 1997 (see ARM 8.99.505(3)), but maintained that after that time, the funds were no longer validly encumbered and should have reverted to the coal tax trust fund from which they were appropriated. The Attorney General agreed. In light of the balanced budget requirement in Art. VIII, sec. 9, Mont. Const., 17-7-304 contemplates that an appropriation for a specific purpose will revert to the fund or account from which it was appropriated after the expiration of the time for which it was appropriated, and appropriations for an unspecified period of time must revert at the end of the biennium. In this case, the appropriation was subject to reversion on June 30, 1997. The Department had administrative authority to create a valid encumbrance until September 30, 1997, but once that contingency expired, the Department had no authority to contract further in order to encumber the funds. There is no legal provision allowing encumbrance of funds after the end of a fiscal year. Because the Department's commitments were made after fiscal yearend, they were not valid obligations pursuant to this section; thus any unexpended balance from the appropriation should have reverted to the coal tax trust fund as of September 30, 1997. 48 A.G. Op. 26 (2000). See also 40 A.G. Op. 4 (1983).

Encumbrance of Funds — Valid Obligation: The Coal Board may encumber funds at the close of a fiscal year only by incurring a "valid obligation" against them under 17-7-302. The Coal Board does not incur a valid obligation against its appropriation by inviting a full application for a grant after screening a preapplication since it is not legally bound to approve the application. 40 A.G. Op. 4 (1983).

The language that was to terminate on occurrence of contingency was deleted from this section by Ch. 486, L. 2009.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 308 in temporary version in (2), in first sentence, substituted "university of Montana campuses at Missoula, Butte, Dillon, and Helena and the Montana state university campuses at Bozeman, Billings, Havre, and Great Falls" for former language that read: "university of Montana at Missoula, Montana state university at Bozeman, Montana college of mineral science and technology at Butte, eastern Montana college at Billings, northern Montana college at Havre, western Montana college of the university of Montana at Dillon" and after "offices in Butte" deleted "and the vocational-technical centers at Billings, Butte, Great Falls, Helena, and Missoula"; and made minor changes in style. Attorney General's Opinions

No Encumbrance of Unexpended Microbusiness Development Funds After End of Fiscal Year: The Department of Commerce entered into contracts with several microbusiness development corporations in June 1997, contingent upon matching funds being provided by September 30, 1997. However, when the matching funds were not received by that date, the Department amended the contracts to extend the time for providing matching funds to September 30, 1999. The Legislative Auditor conceded that Department rules allowed a valid encumbrance through September 30, 1997 (see ARM 8.99.505(3)), but maintained that after that time, the funds were no longer validly encumbered and should have reverted to the coal tax trust fund from which they were appropriated. The Attorney General agreed. In light of the balanced budget requirement in Art. VIII, sec. 9, Mont. Const., this section contemplates that an appropriation for a specific purpose will revert to the fund or account from which it was appropriated after the expiration of the time for which it was appropriated, and appropriations for an unspecified period of time must revert at the end of the biennium. In this case, the appropriation was subject to reversion on June 30, 1997. The Department had administrative authority to create a valid encumbrance until September 30, 1997, but once that contingency expired, the Department had no authority to contract further in order to encumber the funds. There is no legal provision allowing encumbrance of funds after the end of a fiscal year. Because the Department's commitments were made after fiscal yearend, they were not valid obligations pursuant to 17-7-302; thus any unexpended balance from the appropriation should have reverted to the coal tax trust fund as of September 30, 1997. 48 A.G. Op. 26 (2000). See also 40 A.G. Op. 4 (1983).

General Fund Responsible for Payment of Airport Loan Program Shortfall: Proceeds from bonds issued under the long-range building program were appropriated for use by the airport improvement program. As bond retirement occurred, a deficit shortfall was created between the bond payments and the repayment of the loans. Although the Legislature in 1993 established a different loan program with imposition of a 1-cent tax on aviation fuel pursuant to 67-1-301, there was no suggestion that proceeds from that tax were to be used for payment of bond proceeds under the previous loan program. Despite the fact that a legislative audit recommended that payment of the shortfall on the bonds should be paid from either of two special revenue accounts of the Aeronautics Division, the Attorney General held that both the bond instrument and the appropriation of bond proceeds clearly showed that the general fund was the proper source for payment on the bond shortfall. 47 A.G. Op. 7 (1997).

Reversion of Coal Board Funds: The provision of 17-7-304, requiring the reversion of unexpended and unencumbered portions of appropriations at the close of the fiscal year, applies to the appropriations to the Coal Board from the local impact and education trust fund. The Legislature appropriates money to the Coal Board as a discretionary matter under 90-6-207. There is no constitutional impediment to the reversion of the funds, nor is there any indication of legislative intent to except the Coal Board grant money from the operation of 17-7-304. The Board must follow the legislatively created financial requirements. 40 A.G. Op. 4 (1983).

Budget Amendments

Part Compiler's Comments

Severability: Section 10, Ch. 536, L. 1983, was a severability section.

Attorney General's Opinions

Applicability of Budget Amendment Process to Statutory Appropriations: Legislative history and case law support the conclusion that the scope of the budget amendment process is restricted to the expenditure of funds by state agencies in excess of their appropriations. The budget amendment process does not apply to "statutory appropriations", which are those appropriations accomplished by legislative enactment, either with or without specific appropriation laws. (See Title 17, ch. 7, part 5.) 40 A.G. Op. 25 (1983).

Failure to Deduct Carryover Balance — Not Subject to Appropriation: In determining the amount of the fee, the Department of Revenue failed to deduct the carryover balance from the previous year. This unappropriated balance was not available to the office of Consumer Counsel for expenditure under a budget amendment. Rather, the balance inures to the benefit of the regulated companies in the form of a corresponding lower fee for the succeeding year. 39 A.G. Op. 59 (1982).

1995 Amendment: Chapter 545 in (3) deleted second sentence and (3)(a) and (3)(b) that read: "The approving authority may not approve the budget amendment until he receives the legislative finance committee's written report for that budget amendment unless:

(a) the report is not received within 90 calendar days from the date the certification and supporting documentation were forwarded to the finance committee, in which case the approving authority may approve the budget amendment; or

After such a waiver, the legislative fiscal analyst may complete the written review"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1995 Transition: Section 81, Ch. 545, L. 1995, provided: "(1) The members of the legislative council, as provided in 5-11-101, the members of the legislative finance committee, as provided in 5-12-202, the members of the legislative audit committee, as provided in 5-13-202, and the members of the environmental quality council, as provided in 5-16-101, must be appointed as soon as possible following [the effective date of this section] [effective April 27, 1995].

1985 Amendment: In (1) near beginning, after "amendment", deleted "from a requesting agency"; and throughout section, before "approving authority", deleted "executive branch".

Attorney General's Opinions

Disaster and Emergency Payments — Budget Amendment Process Inapplicable: The budget amendment process was not applicable to a request to pay the costs associated with the suppression of forest fires. The budget amendment process is not intended to permit a loan from the state's general fund when the only anticipated revenue for repayment is the possibility of a subsequent appropriation of funds from the general fund. 42 A.G. WHEREAS, Libby Dam was dedicated on August 24, 1975, and spans the Kootenai River 17 miles upstream from the town of Libby, Montana; and

WHEREAS, Lake Koocanusa, the reservoir behind Libby Dam, extends 90 miles north of the dam, with 48 miles of Lake Koocanusa located in Lincoln County and the remainder in British Columbia, Canada; and

WHEREAS, Libby Dam, in Montana's northwest corner, and three dams in Canada were constructed to protect downstream areas from flooding, and Libby Dam holds back an average of 5,800,000 acre-feet of water; and

WHEREAS, economic benefits have been derived from the storage of these floodwaters and the coordinated, timely release of those waters through generation of electricity, irrigation, navigation, and recreation; and

WHEREAS, the construction of Libby Dam placed many thousands of acres of land in Lincoln County underwater, leading to decreased real property tax revenues for the county and a loss of timber sales and wildlife and fish habitat, among other losses; and

WHEREAS, the Canadian government was compensated for construction of the dams and storage of floodwaters through a sharing of dollars on electricity from additional power generated at downstream dams and hydropower generating facilities, leading to the formation of the Columbia Basin Trust; and

WHEREAS, citizens of Lincoln County did not participate in the negotiations for the terms of the Columbia River Treaty and no compensation has been received by Lincoln County; and

WHEREAS, the renegotiation of the treaty is currently being considered, and there is a possibility that compensation could be provided to Lincoln County as a result of federal legislation, litigation, determination of regulations, and the renegotiation of the treaty; and

WHEREAS, the population of the State of Montana has increased by 223,412 persons (by 32%) in the past 30 years; and

WHEREAS, the standing House and Senate State Administration Committees of the 58th Legislature, recognizing the unique nature of law enforcement services and the importance of retaining qualified law enforcement personnel, directed the Attorney General to report to the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee on recruitment and retention efforts, to conduct a salary survey, and to develop draft legislation to implement recommendations; and

WHEREAS, in addition to the salary survey conducted by the Attorney General, the Montana Legislative Audit Division conducted a separate salary survey of the Sheriff departments in the eight counties where the Montana Highway Patrol district offices are located, including the headquarters in Helena; and

WHEREAS, in the past 11 years, 62 of the 80 officers (78%) that left the Montana Highway Patrol for nonretirement purposes went to other law enforcement agencies for higher salaries; and

WHEREAS, Montana Highway Patrol officer positions have been placed into the alternative pay and classification plan, which allows market-based salary survey adjustments, to recruit and retain officers; and

WHEREAS, market-based salary information from county Sheriff departments, which are recruiting and hiring Montana Highway Patrol officers because of higher salaries, is readily available to establish market-based salary rates to compensate Montana Highway Patrol officers and reduce attrition in these positions; and

WHEREAS, this act is intended to allow the Montana Highway Patrol to be in a position to hire, train, and retain competent officers to ensure that Montana roadways are kept safe for all travelers."

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 276, L. 1997, provided: "WHEREAS, it is the intent of the state compensation insurance fund to assist all Montanans by reducing the unfunded liability of the old fund, terminating the old fund liability tax when the old fund is adequately funded, which is currently estimated to occur as early as June 30, 1999, providing for the payment of dividends to policyholders, and maintaining a viable state compensation insurance fund; and

WHEREAS, there was an unfunded liability of $355 million as of June 30, 1996, for claims for workers' compensation injuries occurring before July 1, 1990, in the old fund, which included $129 million in outstanding bond debt; and

WHEREAS, the old fund is funded with the old fund liability tax paid by employers, employees, and self-employed persons, generating as much as $50 million each year; and

WHEREAS, the surplus of $231 in the new fund as of June 30, 1996, allowed the Board of Directors of the State Fund to declare a dividend of up to $109 million to retire the outstanding bond debt in the old fund; and

WHEREAS, the unfunded liability in the old fund will be an estimated $200 million deficit by June 30, 1997, and the surplus or the excess of assets above the reserves that are set aside to meet the claim liability in the new fund will be an estimated $127 million by June 30, 1997; and

WHEREAS, current state law requires the State Fund to use dividends to be applied first to old fund outstanding liability rather than paying dividends directly to policyholders, the State Fund shall, no later than June 30, 1998, transfer $63.8 million to the old fund account to pay old fund claims to allow direct payment of dividends to policyholders; and

WHEREAS, the $20 million appropriation received by the State Fund from the general fund during the June 1989 Special Session partially addressed the unfunded liability issue existing at that time in the old fund and canceled a planned 22% rate increase; and

WHEREAS, the State Fund now agrees to repay the $20 million appropriation to the general fund by June 30, 1999, in lieu of transferring additional funds to the old fund account to provide the general fund with additional revenue and to remove any perception that the State Fund remains a burden on the general fund; and

WHEREAS, because decreases in premium rates totaled 35% in fiscal years 1996 and 1997 and legislative changes in benefit levels have resulted in the return of private carriers, the 15% limitation on administration expenses as a percent of the prior year's premium will significantly impact the State Fund's ability to provide service to policyholders and their injured workers; and

WHEREAS, the State Fund seeks to improve the level of services provided to customers without increasing existing State Fund staffing levels by working with private sector-licensed insurance producers; and

WHEREAS, in response to*Haag v. Montana Schools Group Insurance Authority* , 274 M 109, 906 P.2d 693 (1995), in which the Montana Supreme Court ruled that an insurer's failure to comply with the time limitations for accepting or denying a workers' compensation claim constituted acceptance of the claim, current law needs to be clarified to provide that the failure to comply with the time limitations does not constitute acceptance of the claim."

Purported 1993 Amendment — Coordination: Section 13(1), Ch. 352, L. 1993, provided: "If House Bill No. 92 is passed and approved and if it amends the State-Tribal Cooperative Agreements Act to specifically include the assessment and collection of a tax or license or permit fee and provides for revenue sharing, then [sections 3 through 5 of this act] are void." House Bill No. 92 was approved as Ch. 625, L. 1993, and contained the provisions alluded to in the coordination instruction. Chapter 352 inserted references in the (3) list of statutory references to sections 4 and 5 of Ch. 352, L. 1993, which were enacted but subsequently rendered void by the enactment of Ch. 625, L. 1993. The effect was that this section, although purportedly amended by sec. 11, Ch. 352, was not actually amended by that chapter.

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 450, L. 1993, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [section 2] [19-8-817(4)] gives the public employees' retirement board authority to adopt administrative rules to implement the cost-of-living adjustment provided in the bill.

It is the intent of the legislature to provide a one-time ad hoc cost-of-living adjustment to each member of the game wardens' retirement system [now game wardens' and peace officers' retirement system] who has been retired for 5 years or more, to the member's beneficiary, or to the member's contingent annuitant. The cost of the adjustment will be paid by increasing the amortization period of the system's unfunded liabilities.

It is further the intent of the legislature that the proposed statutory retirement committee established in House Bill No. 65 be assigned by the legislative council to develop legislation providing an equitable guaranteed annual benefit adjustment for each of Montana's statewide public retirement systems and that the legislation be presented to the 54th legislature for consideration. It is further the intent of the legislature that the cost of holding hearings and developing the legislation be paid by retirement systems and donations from public employee and retiree associations."

Coordination: Section 7, Ch. 450, L. 1993, provided: "If Senate Bill No. 203 is not passed and approved, then [this act] is void." Senate Bill No. 203 was passed and approved as Ch. 367, L. 1993; therefore, Ch. 450, L. 1993, is valid.

Severability: Section 12, Ch. 534, L. 1993, was a severability clause.

Effective Date — Applicability: Section 8, Ch. 625, L. 1993, provided: "[This act] is effective July 1, 1993, and applies to agreements entered into on or after July 1, 1993."

Saving Clause: Section 16, Ch. 630, L. 1993, was a saving clause.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 10, Sp. L. January 1992, provided: "WHEREAS, Chapter 823, Laws of 1991, provided, among other things, for adjustment payments to retirees of state, local, and teacher retirement systems who are also Montana residents; and

WHEREAS, the first adjustment payments were intended to be made for the 1991 tax year and to be payable to retirees by June 1, 1992; and

WHEREAS, the language of section 5, Chapter 823, Laws of 1991, which provides for the payment of the retirement adjustments by June 1 of each year, read together with the May 24, 1991, effective date of Chapter 823 created confusion and a question of whether the adjustment payments were required to be paid beginning June 1, 1991, for the 1990 tax year, which was not the intended result; and

WHEREAS, the additional, unintended payments have not been made at this time; and

WHEREAS, the impact on the general fund of beginning the adjustment payments a year earlier than intended is estimated to be approximately $2.9 million; and

WHEREAS, this act is intended as a curative amendment to Chapter 823, Laws of 1991, to clarify that the intent of the 52nd Legislature in enacting Chapter 823, Laws of 1991, was to make the first adjustment payments beginning June 1, 1992.

Attorney General's Opinions

Appropriations — Legislative Control Over Marketing Assessment Funds: Although the control of the Legislature over appropriations to state agencies is based upon broad constitutional provisions, certain money may either be exempt from the appropriation process or the purposes for which that money may be appropriated may be limited by statute. Thus, the Legislature may control appropriations from the Wheat Marketing and Research Account, but those appropriations are subject to the statutorily stated purposes of the Account. Any attempt by the Legislature in an appropriation bill to alter the purposes for which appropriations from the Account are made is subject to the constitutional restriction that the purpose of legislation must be clearly stated in the title of the bill. 39 A.G. Op. 3 (1981).

17-8-103. Expenditures in excess of appropriation unlawful — conditions in appropriation acts.

Compiler's Comments

1983 Amendments: Chapter 536, near middle of (1), substituted ", including any approved, authorized, and valid budget amendment," for "or authorized budget amendment"; and at end of (1) made similar change.

Subsection (2) was enacted by sec. 1, Ch. 693, L. 1983. The codification instruction was to include sec. 1, Ch. 693 as an integral part of Title 17, ch. 8. The Code Commissioner codified section as subsection (2) of this section because of close coherence of the subject matter.

Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 693, L. 1983, which enacted subsection (2) provided: "WHEREAS, Article VIII, Section 12, Constitution of Montana requires the legislature to insure by law the strict accountability of all revenue received and money spent by state and local governments; and

WHEREAS, Article VIII, Section 14, Constitution of Montana prohibits the payment of money, except for interest on the public debt, from the treasury unless upon an appropriation made by law and a warrant drawn by the proper officer."

Case Notes

Additional Expenditures: Under former law, mandate was issued by the Supreme Court to compel State Board of Public Welfare to present to the state Board of Examiners forthwith written application setting forth the circumstances confronting it with reference to the need for money to carry out the relief program in Silver Bow County and requesting authorization for expenditures to meet the relief requirements in Silver Bow County. 17-8-106. Expenditure limitation — exception.

Attorney General's Opinions

Expenditure Limits Not Extended to Future Biennial Budget Cycles: A County Commissioner questioned whether this section (enacted 1981) limited the power of subsequent Legislatures to appropriate funds by establishing a cap on expenditures in the 1981 budget biennium and for future biennial budget cycles. The Attorney General noted that, consistent with constitutional design, the Legislature lacks the power to pass a law that purports to establish binding legislative spending policy for future Legislatures. Each Legislature is vested with full legislative power, and there is no cap on state spending in the Montana Constitution. Thus, the 1981 enactment of this section placed no enforceable limits on the spending power of subsequent Legislatures. 51 A.G. Op. 4 (2005).

17-8-107. Limitations on spending deferred inflows of resources — exception — definition.

Compiler's Comments

2015 Amendment: Chapter 7 in (1) and (2) substituted "inflows of resources" for "revenue"; in (1) deleted second sentence that read: "For purposes of this section, "deferred revenue" means funds received in one fiscal year but properly allocable and recorded as revenue in the subsequent fiscal year"; and inserted (3) defining "deferred inflows of resources". 1987 Amendment: At beginning of (1) inserted exception clause; and inserted (2) exempting costs of publication of magazine of western history.

Claims

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Penalties for Fraudulent Benefits Claim — Specific Remedy Controlling Over General Remedy: Although 17-8-231 (now repealed) appears to provide a penalty for fraudulent claiming of unemployment insurance benefits, that statute is a general one which provides a penalty in conflict with the more specific penalty provided under 39-51-3201. Because the more particular statute must control to the extent of any inconsistency, the Department of Labor and Industry is limited to recovery of those amounts of benefits wrongfully received by the claimant. The Department may not sue a claimant for all benefits paid to the claimant or for the additional penalty provided in 17-8-231 (now repealed), but may disqualify the claimant under 39-51-3201 from receipt of future benefits. 40 A.G. Op. 21 (1983).

1995 Amendment: Chapter 325 throughout section substituted "department of administration" or "department" for "state auditor"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Case Notes

No Application of Statute to Leases — Time for Filing — Prejudice Required: Where the State executed a 6-year lease of certain communications equipment with the plaintiff's assignor in 1973 and, prior to notice of the assignment of the lease to the plaintiff, unilaterally terminated the lease in 1977, the court did not err in holding the State liable for damages for termination of the lease. The State cannot rely for a defense upon the failure of the assignor to give notice of the assignment to the State because: (1) 17-8-211(1) applies to assignments of "claims", not leases; (2) the statute does not require filing within a time certain, and filing was eventually made prior to suit; and (3) the State can claim no prejudice, as it had actual notice of the assignment. Leaseamerica Corp. of Wis. v. St., 191 M 462, 625 P2d 68, 38 St. Rep. 378 (1981).

TITLE 18
PUBLIC CONTRACTS

CHAPTER 1
PUBLIC CONTRACTS GENERALLY

Chapter Case Notes

Cost of Overrun — Material Issue of Reliance on Plans: Kalispell argued that contract documents plainly advised all bidders to make their own determination as to the amount of material to be moved and not to rely on the figures on the city's plans and specifications. By entering into the contract, the bidders allegedly bound themselves to do the rough grading at the price bid and should get no additional compensation for overrun. However, the District Court rejected the city's argument that the plaintiffs' complaint, therefore, failed to state a claim and that there could be no issues of material fact before the District Court. Based on a recent line of cases from the Supreme Court, the District Judge determined that the fact finder had to hear the evidence in order to find whether or not the contractors justifiably relied on the plans. Stenerson v. Kalispell, 193 M 8, 629 P2d 773, 38 St. Rep. 938 (1981), followed in Clark Bros. Contractors v. St., 218 M 490, 710 P2d 41, 42 St. Rep. 1765 (1985).

Part 1
Preferences and General Matters

Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 181 deleted definition of Montana-made that read: ""Montana-made" means manufactured or produced in this state and made with the:

(i) use of parts, materials, or supplies of which 50% or more were manufactured or produced in this state; or

(ii) employment of persons of whom 50% or more are bona fide residents of Montana as defined in 18-2-401"; in definition of public agency inserted (ii) providing that a public agency does not include a political subdivision for the purposes of 18-1-102(1)(b); and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Severability: Section 22, Ch. 443, L. 1997, was a severability clause. Effective April 30, 1997.

Compiler's Comments

2005 Amendment: Chapter 574 in (1) in introductory clause near end inserted exception clause. Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 181 in (1) at beginning deleted "Except as provided in subsection (1)(b)"; in (1)(b) substituted language requiring a public agency to award a public contract without regard to residency unless a nonresident's state or country allows a preference for residents for former language that read: "a public contract for the purchase of goods, if the goods are comparable in quality and performance, to the lowest responsible resident bidder whose:

(A) bid is not more than 3% higher than that of the lowest responsible nonresident bidder;

(B) offered goods are Montana-made and whose bid is not more than 5% higher than that of the lowest responsible nonresident bidder; or

(C) offered goods are Montana-made and whose bid is not more than 3% higher than that of the lowest responsible resident bidder whose offered goods are not Montana-made.

(b) The transportation commission or the department of transportation may not enter into a contract for a state-funded highway project or a construction project with a bidder whose operations are not headquartered in the United States unless:

(i) the foreign country in which the bidder is headquartered affords companies based in the United States open, fair, and nondiscriminatory access to bidding on highway projects and construction projects located in the foreign country; and

(ii) the department of transportation has entered into a reciprocity agreement with the foreign country that addresses:

(A) the equal and fair treatment of bids originating in the United States and in the foreign country;

(B) specific ownership requirements and tax policies in the United States and in the foreign country that may result in the unequal treatment of all bids received, regardless of their origin;

(C) the means by which contractors from both the United States and the foreign country are notified of highway projects and construction projects available for bid; and

(D) any other differences in public policy or procedure that may result in the unequal treatment of bids originating in the United States or in the foreign country for projects located in either the United States or the foreign country.

(c) (i) If both subsections (1)(a)(ii)(B) and (1)(a)(ii)(C) are applicable to bids for a contract, the contract must be awarded to the resident bidder whose offered goods are Montana-made if the bid is:

(A) not more than 3% higher than that of a resident bidder whose offered goods are not Montana-made; and

(B) not more than 5% higher than that of the nonresident bidder.

(ii) However, a combination of preferences under this subsection (1)(c) may not exceed 5%"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Applicability: Section 28, Ch. 181, L. 2001, provided: "[This act] applies to contracts for which the contracting government entity begins the contracting process after October 1, 2001."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 306 at beginning of (1) inserted exception clause; inserted (1)(b) prohibiting department of transportation and transportation commission from entering into contracts for highway construction projects with bidders not headquartered in United States unless reciprocity agreement in place; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 14, 1999.

Contingent Voidness: Section 3, Ch. 306, L. 1999, provided: "Contingent voidness. (1) If the federal government notifies the state in writing that the enforcement of [this act] places at risk this state's eligibility to receive federal funds for highway projects, then the bracketed language in [this act] is void pursuant to subsection (2).

(2) The bracketed language in [this act] is void on the date that the director of the department of transportation certifies to the governor in writing that the director has received written notice of the federal government's intention to terminate allocation of highway funds to Montana because of the enforcement of [this act]." On April 13, 1999, the federal government notified the state that the provisions of Senate Bill No. 330 (Ch. 306, L. 1999) are contrary to federal highway laws. On March 3, 2000, the director of the department of transportation certified to the governor that the written notice was received.

1991 Amendment: In (1)(a)(i) deleted language that gave a resident bidder preference over nonresident bidders equal to the greater of 3% or the percentage of preference the nonresident bidder would receive against nonresident bidders in his state of residence and inserted language allowing no preference except against a nonresident bidder from any state or country enforcing a preference for resident bidders. Amendment effective February 19, 1991.

1987 Amendment: Substituted existing text (see 1987 Session Law) for former text that read: "(1) In order to provide for an orderly administration of the business of the state of Montana in awarding contracts for materials, supplies, equipment, construction, repair, and public works of all kinds, it shall be the duty of each board, commission, officer, or individual charged by law with the responsibility for the execution of the contract on behalf of the state, board, commission, political subdivision, agency, school district, or a public corporation of the state of Montana to award such contract to the lowest responsible bidder who is a resident of the state of Montana and whose bid is not more than 3% higher than that of the lowest responsible bidder who is a nonresident of this state.

(2) In awarding contracts for purchase of products, materials, supplies, or equipment, such board, commission, officer, or individual shall award the contract to any such resident whose offered materials, supplies, or equipment are manufactured or produced in this state by Montana industry and labor and whose bid is not more than 3% higher than that of the lowest responsible resident bidder whose offered materials, supplies, or equipment are not so manufactured or produced, provided that such products, materials, supplies, and equipment are comparable in quality and performance.

(3) In awarding contracts for construction, repair, and public works of all kinds, bids received from nonresident bidders are subject to the 3% preference, or that percent that applies to a Montana bidder in the award of public contracts in the nonresident bidder's state of residence, whichever is greater.

(4) This requirement shall prevail whether the law requires advertisement for bids or does not require advertisement for bids, and it shall apply to contracts involving funds obtained from the federal government unless expressly prohibited by the laws of the United States or regulations adopted pursuant thereto."

1985 Amendment: Inserted (3) referring to preference percentage of nonresident bidder's state of residence.

Case Notes

Misapplication of State Law Not Basis for Claim of Denial of Equal Protection: ISC argued that its allegations that the Department of Administration had applied the Montana Procurement Act in a discriminatory fashion in not awarding ISC a contract supported its claim that it had been denied equal protection. The Supreme Court held that ISC's claim failed because at most, it amounted to an allegation that state law was misapplied in an individual case and did not constitute invidious discrimination in violation of the equal protection clause. ISC Distrib., Inc. v. Trevor, 273 M 185, 903 P2d 170, 52 St. Rep. 894 (1995).

No Property Right Created When Government's Award of Contract Is Discretionary: ISC argued that the Department of Administration had violated its right to due process when the Department did not award ISC a contract that had been put out for bid. The Supreme Court held that a property right that would support a due process claim is not created when a state agency is not required to award a contract on a sufficiently objective basis. ISC Distrib., Inc. v. Trevor, 273 M 185, 903 P2d 170, 52 St. Rep. 894 (1995).

Contractor Not Allowed to Submit Bid — Inability to Show Bid Would Have Been Lowest: Petri attempted to submit a hand-carried, written bid to state officials for a painting contract at Montana State University (now Montana State University-Bozeman). Petri arrived at the site of the bid opening several minutes after the announced closing of the time for submitting bids. As a result, the bid was rejected. The Supreme Court held that Petri cannot prove a violation of MSU's statutory duty to accept the lowest bid because he could not prove that the bid would have been the lowest given the fact that it was rejected from consideration by MSU. Petri v. Mont. St. Univ., 260 M 392, 860 P2d 154, 50 St. Rep. 1133 (1993).

Janitorial and Maintenance Services: Although this section provides percentage preference for resident bidders, it also establishes a general policy of requiring competitive bidding, including contracts for janitorial services for Capitol complex, and such contracts must be let by competitive bidding. State ex rel. Great Falls Mr. Klean v. Bd. of Examiners, 153 M 220, 456 P2d 278 (1969).

"Responsible Bidder" Interpreted: The term "responsible bidder" as used in the phrase "lowest responsible bidder" does not refer to pecuniary responsibility only but includes judgment, skill, ability, capacity, and integrity. The officers entrusted with the duty of awarding a contract to the lowest responsible bidder must exercise official discretion in determining the question. They cannot be compelled by mandamus to award a contract to a particular bidder merely because he has offered the lowest bid or tendered a sufficient bond. State ex rel. Eaves v. Rickards, 16 M 145, 40 P 216 (1895).

Attorney General's Opinions

Acquisition of Resident Status for Preference Purposes: A joint venture may qualify for resident status as a partnership enterprise for purposes of the preference under this section, but 18-1-103 requires that a majority of the venture's partners must have been Montana residents for at least 1 year immediately prior to the involved bidding in order to acquire resident status. (See 2001 amendment.) 42 A.G. Op. 107 (1988).

Restriction of Competitive Bidding Process by Resident Bidder's Preference Prohibited: Both the federal circular A-102 (1981), incorporated into the regulations of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, and subsection (2)(b) of this section prohibit restriction of the competitive bidding process by resident bidder's preference for state and local contracts funded in part by grants-in-aid from that agency. 42 A.G. Op. 35 (1987), partially overruling 37 A.G. Op. 59 (1977).

Preference for Resident Bidder Construed: When a bid letting involves a resident using out-of-state materials, a resident using in-state materials, and a nonresident as the three lowest bidders, the resident bidder preference would not require awarding the bid to the resident using in-state materials if his bid was more than 3% higher than the lowest responsible nonresident bidder. (See 1991 and 2001 amendments.) 40 A.G. Op. 79 (1984).

Preference for Resident Contractors — Federal Funding: A county water and sewer district is required to apply a 3% preference to the lowest responsible resident bidder with respect to the entire contract cost regardless of the source of funds. (See 2001 amendment.) 37 A.G. Op. 59 (1977).

Service Contracts: Contracts for the preparation and service of meals need not be awarded by competitive bidding. 29 A.G. Op. 49 (1962).

Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 181 in (1) near beginning after "18-1-102" deleted "18-1-111"; in (2) near beginning inserted "limited liability company"; deleted former (4) that read: "(4) Notwithstanding the foregoing, any bidder on a contract for the purchase of goods, whether an individual, partnership, or corporation, foreign or domestic and regardless of ownership thereof, whose offered goods are Montana-made is a resident for the purpose of 18-1-102, 18-1-111, and this section"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Applicability: Section 28, Ch. 181, L. 2001, provided: "[This act] applies to contracts for which the contracting government entity begins the contracting process after October 1, 2001."

1997 Amendment: Chapter 42 in (1) and (4) substituted "18-1-111, and this section" for "18-1-103, and 18-1-111"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 12, 1997.

Chapter 370 in (1) and (4) deleted reference to 18-1-112.

Chapter 512 in (4), after "purchase of", substituted "goods" for "products, materials, supplies, or equipment", after "offered" substituted "goods" for "materials, supplies, or equipment", and in middle of sentence substituted "Montana-made is" for "manufactured or produced in this state by industry located in Montana and Montana labor shall be deemed to be".

Attorney General's Opinions

Acquisition of Resident Status for Preference Purposes: A joint venture may qualify for resident status as a partnership enterprise for purposes of the preference under 18-1-102, but this section requires that a majority of the venture's partners must have been Montana residents for at least 1 year immediately prior to the involved bidding in order to acquire resident status. (See 2001 amendment.) 42 A.G. Op. 107 (1988).

18-1-106. Department of labor and industry to determine residency of selected contractors — applications for redetermination — determination as prima facie evidence.

Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 483 throughout section substituted references to department of labor and industry for references to department of commerce; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 558 in (1), after "certain contractors", deleted "issued public contractor's licenses under the provisions of Title 37, chapter 71"; in (2), in two places, and in (3), before "public contractor", deleted "licensed"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 26, 1995.

1985 Amendment: In three places substituted "department of commerce" for "department of revenue"; and in first sentence substituted "Title 37, chapter 71" for "Title 15, chapter 50".

Case Notes

Challenge of Issuance of Certificate: Under 18-1-104 (repealed and replaced by this section), a resident contractor had standing to challenge, by original application for a Writ of Mandate, the validity of the residency certificate issued by Department of Revenue (now Department of Labor and Industry) to a nonresident contractor. Since the resident was not a party to or given notice of administrative proceedings awarding the certificate of residency, he had no administrative remedies to exhaust. State ex rel. Sletten Constr. Co. v. Great Falls, 163 M 307, 516 P2d 1149 (1973), distinguished in ISC Distrib., Inc. v. Trevor, 273 M 185, 903 P2d 170, 52 St. Rep. 894 (1995).

Insufficient Affidavit: Under 18-1-104 (repealed and replaced by this section), a foreign corporation which stated that it would use Montana products and materials "insofar as they are available" and that it would use Montana labor "except for selected supervisory personnel" did not qualify for certification as a resident contractor. State ex rel. Sletten Constr. Co. v. Great Falls, 163 M 307, 516 P2d 1149 (1973).

18-1-110. Hiring preference for residents of Indian reservations for state construction projects within reservation — rules.

Compiler's Comments

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 506, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [sections 1 and 2] [2-18-111 and 18-1-110] direct the commissioner of labor and industry to adopt rules to implement [sections 1 and 2] [2-18-111 and 18-1-110]. It is the intent of the legislature that the rules also be designed to assist the commissioner of labor and industry to enforce the provisions of [sections 1 and 2] [2-18-111 and 18-1-110] and to investigate complaints of any violations of law, as provided in [sections 1 and 2] [2-18-111 and 18-1-110]."

Applicability: Section 7, Ch. 506, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] applies to hiring for vacancies in state agency or state construction project positions within an Indian reservation that occur after [the effective date of this act] [effective October 1, 1991]."

Case Notes

Conditions of Tribal Affiliation Applicable to Indian Hiring Preference — Status of Individual Indian Not Controlling: Schmasow claimed that the Native American Center (NAC) should have hired her as executive director pursuant to an Indian employment preference provision, 25 U.S.C. 450e(b), that was contained in the NAC's contract with the Indian Health Service. The NAC instead hired Shield, another Indian, but Schmasow contended that Shield did not qualify for the employment preference because he was a member of the Little Shell Chippewa Tribe, which is not a federally recognized tribe listed by the U.S. Secretary of the Interior under 25 U.S.C. 479a-1. The District Court concluded that Shield was eligible for the preference, and Schmasow appealed. In affirming the District Court, the Supreme Court held that in order to satisfy the definitions of Indian and Indian tribe in the preference law, one must establish that the hired person's tribe is itself eligible for the health care benefits and that the status of an individual Indian is not controlling. The Little Shell Chippewa Tribe fits the definition of Indian tribe because it is part of an Indian community that receives federal Indian funding for special programs and services, even though it is not a federally recognized tribe. Because Shield was an enrolled member of the Little Shell Chippewa Tribe, he satisfied the definition of Indian and was eligible for the hiring preference. Schmasow v. Native Am. Center, 1999 MT 49, 293 M 382, 978 P2d 304, 56 St. Rep. 198 (1999).

Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

The legislature intends that the rules should prevent bidders from circumventing the preference provisions by creating business entities specifically to obtain residency status or to gain an award of a public contract for goods after being disqualified for submitting a false affidavit. The rules should also specify the contents of an affidavit to be submitted by a bidder as required under section 6 [18-1-113]."

No Standing to Challenge to Award of Public School Transportation Contract on Statutory Grounds: Plaintiff provided bus service to a school district for about 24 years, but in 2001, the district elected to accept bids for the service. Plaintiff submitted the lowest bid, but the district decided to reject the bid on grounds that plaintiff was not a responsible bidder. The contract was awarded to another bidder, and plaintiff challenged the contract on statutory grounds, claiming that the district violated 20-9-204, 20-10-125, and this section. The Supreme Court declined to address any statutory violations because plaintiff lacked standing to bring the complaint under the criteria in Debcon, Inc. v. Glasgow, 2001 MT 124, 305 M 391, 28 P3d 478 (2001). Hickey v. Baker School District No. 12, 2002 MT 322, 313 M 162, 60 P3d 966 (2002), distinguishing State ex rel. Sletten Constr. Co. v. Great Falls, 163 M 307, 516 P2d 1149 (1973), and E.H. Oftedal & Sons, Inc. v. St., 2002 MT 1, 308 M 50, 40 P3d 349 (2002).

Competitive Bidding — Contract Formed by Execution of Written Instrument, Not by Award of Project — No Requirement That State Be Notified of Bidding Error Prior to Award of Project: After E.H. Oftedal and Sons, Inc. (Oftedal), submitted a bid on a highway project, but before the actual contract was signed, Oftedal notified the state that $789,000 in errors had been discovered. Oftedal requested that the bid be withdrawn or that the contract amount be adjusted upward, but the requests were denied. Oftedal appealed, but the District Court held that Oftedal did not give timely notice of the mistakes prior to the acceptance of the bid, so equitable relief was unavailable under 28-2-1611. The Supreme Court disagreed and reversed. As a matter of law, no contract for performance of the highway project was formed by the award of the project, prior to execution of the written contract, so there could be no requirement that the state have knowledge of Oftedal's unilateral mistake prior to the award of the project. No notice of the mistake was necessary at that time to obtain equitable relief under 28-2-1611. E.H. Oftedal & Sons, Inc. v. St., 2002 MT 1, 308 M 50, 40 P3d 349 (2002), distinguishing Baker v. St., 218 M 235, 707 P2d 20 (1985).

Equitable Relief Available to Correct Inadvertent Bidding Errors in Revising Highway Construction Project: Contractor E.H. Oftedal and Sons, Inc. (Oftedal), submitted a bid on a Montana highway project. Because Oftedal's was the lowest bid, the state awarded the contract to Oftedal, but upon later investigation, Oftedal determined that the bid contained several errors amounting to $789,000, and requested that the bid be withdrawn. The request was denied, so Oftedal requested an upward revision of the bid to reflect the mistakes. Even if the contract amount was revised upward to reflect the errors, Oftedal's bid would still have been lowest. Although the state recognized that Oftedal had made an unintended mistake, the request for upward revision was also denied, in part because the Federal Highway Administration would not allow any federal money to be used to cover any state cost over Oftedal's original bid. To avoid losing its substantial bid bond, Oftedal signed the contract under protest for the original amount and petitioned the District Court for equitable relief under 28-2-1611 through an upward revision of the contract sum. The District Court denied relief and granted summary judgment to the state. Oftedal appealed to the Supreme Court, seeking an upward revision to reflect the amount of the error and an order for specific performance of the revised contract. The Supreme Court found that equitable relief was appropriate because of mistake, and remanded to the District Court with instructions to reform the contract to reflect the true intentions of the parties. The mistakes in this case were inadvertent, and even though some negligence might have been inherent in the mistakes, they could not be said to preclude equitable relief when viewed in light of the parties' agreed assessment of the nature of the errors. Negligence of the party creating the mistake is not necessarily a bar to judicial reformation of a contract. Under 28-2-1612, for the purpose of revising a contract, a court must presume that all parties intended to make an equitable and conscientious agreement, and it could not be presumed that either party intended Oftedal to incur the hardship of supplying $789,000 of work and material to the state without compensation. E.H. Oftedal & Sons, Inc. v. St., 2002 MT 1, 308 M 50, 40 P3d 349 (2002).

Public Contracts Subject to Fundamental Contract Analysis — Public Bidding and Contract Modification Statutes Not Inherently Inconsistent: Public contracts are not necessarily exempt from fundamental contract analysis because competitive bidding statutes were established for the benefit of the public rather than to establish the rights of bidders. Nothing in the competitive bidding statutes places public contracts out of reach of remedies at law or the equitable relief provided under 28-2-1611 if a party is otherwise qualified for relief under the terms of the statute. Further, public bidding statutes and contract modification statutes are not inherently inconsistent, so 28-2-1611 may be applied to public contracts. E.H. Oftedal & Sons, Inc. v. St., 2002 MT 1, 308 M 50, 40 P3d 349 (2002).

Waiver of State Immunity — Applies Only to Express Contracts: Although 18-1-404 appears to provide a specific waiver of the state's immunity as to all contract actions, express or implied, the section is ambiguous when read and construed in conjunction with other provisions in part 4, specifically this section which expressly grants District Courts jurisdiction over only express contract actions. Legislative history demonstrates that the Legislature intended to waive only the state's immunity as to express contracts. Section 18-1-404 does not subject the state to liability on implied contracts. Peretti v. St., 238 M 239, 777 P2d 329, 46 St. Rep. 1235 (1989).

Implied Warranty — Plans and Specifications: A contractor can rely on plans and specifications and need not verify them. The owner warrants and is responsible for the accuracy of the descriptions in the plans and specifications of the contract. The contract impliedly warrants that the plans are suitable and accurate. The implied warranty is as much a part of the contract as the express terms and is subject to the statute of limitations pertaining to the contract. Lutey Constr. v. St., 257 M 387, 851 P2d 1037, 50 St. Rep. 321 (1993).

Commencement of Period of Limitations: A claim or dispute arises at the time the state submits a final estimate to the contractor for his approval or rejection. Zook Bros. Constr. Co. v. St., 171 M 64, 556 P2d 911 (1976), followed in Lutey Constr. v. St., 257 M 387, 851 P2d 1037, 50 St. Rep. 321 (1993).

Estoppel: The state led the contractor to believe that his claim would receive timely attention and would be reviewed by the state pending an administrative decision on its merits. The contractor relied on the assurances, and the state is therefore foreclosed from raising a Statute of Limitations defense. Zook Bros. Constr. Co. v. St., 171 M 64, 556 P2d 911 (1976), followed in Lutey Constr. v. St., 257 M 387, 851 P2d 1037, 50 St. Rep. 321 (1993).

Attorney General's Opinions

Application of One-Year Statute of Limitations in Contract Actions Against the State: Three separate periods of limitation apply to disputes arising from express contracts with state agencies. (1) A contractor who fails to submit his claim to an agency having an administrative procedure for resolving contract disputes within the time limits prescribed in the contract or, if no time is specified, within 90 days after the dispute arises, is barred from thereafter submitting his claim to the agency or litigating the question in District Court. (2) A contractor who timely submits his dispute to an agency having an administrative procedure but who fails to bring an action in District Court within 1 year after a final adverse decision by the agency is barred from litigating his claim in District Court. (3) In cases where no settlement procedure is provided by a contracting agency, a 1-year Statute of Limitations, commencing at the time the cause of action arises, applies. 37 A.G. Op. 40 (1977).

Case Notes

No State Prosecutorial Immunity for Actions of County Attorney: McDaniel was sentenced to 20 years for burglary, with the sentence suspended subject to several conditions. About 4 months after sentencing, McDaniel tested positive for drugs, and the probation officer elected to initiate an intervention hearing, where an agreement was entered into in lieu of a formal violation being filed. Upon learning of the intervention hearing, the County Attorney filed a petition to revoke McDaniel's suspended sentence based on McDaniel's drug use. McDaniel moved to dismiss on grounds that in filing the revocation petition, the state breached the agreement. The District Court granted McDaniel's motions, and the revocation petition was dismissed. McDaniel subsequently filed an action against the state for damages, claiming that the state breached the written agreement and deprived McDaniel of property in violation of due process. The state asserted that because the County Attorney was acting within the scope of his duties as an agent of the state when filing the revocation petition, the state was entitled to prosecutorial immunity. The District Court agreed and granted the state's motion for summary judgment. On appeal, the state contended that prosecutorial immunity should be extended to include county and state governments employing prosecutors who are named as defendants in tort actions. However, for the state to extend the County Attorney's immunity to itself, the state must establish that the County Attorney could raise prosecutorial immunity as a defense if the claims were brought against the County Attorney rather than the state. Here, the County Attorney was not a party to the intervention agreement, so there was no factual or legal basis for McDaniel to bring a contract-based claim against the County Attorney, and absent a basis for the prosecutor to assert prosecutorial immunity, there was no basis for the state to extend immunity to itself. The Legislature intended to waive state immunity as to express contracts, so it was incongruous for the state to assert immunity as a defense to the alleged contract violation. The Supreme Court reversed. McDaniel v. St., 2009 MT 159, 350 M 422, 208 P3d 817 (2009).

Moratory Interest on Borrowed Funds Not Recoverable: Relying upon the accuracy of plans supplied by the state, Martel Construction (Martel) contracted with the state to construct a new highway bridge to replace one originally built in 1936. In preparing its plans, the state had relied on plans used to construct the 1936 bridge, incorrectly believing that those plans represented the elevation and dimensions needed for the new bridge. As a result of this error, Martel was required to perform extra work not contemplated under the contract. The District Court awarded Martel damages for the actual construction costs for the extra work performed and damages for "moratory interest" or the interest paid on funds borrowed to finance the extra work. The Supreme Court reversed the portion of the ruling allowing recovery of "moratory interest", holding that the state is not liable for prejudgment or postjudgment interest unless the interest is part of actual damages resulting from the state's breach of contract. Martel Constr., Inc. v. St., 249 M 507, 817 P2d 677, 48 St. Rep. 812 (1991).

Waiver of State Immunity — Applies Only to Express Contracts: Although this section appears to provide a specific waiver of the state's immunity as to all contract actions, express or implied, the section is ambiguous when read and construed in conjunction with other provisions in part 4, specifically 18-1-401 that expressly grants District Courts jurisdiction over only express contract actions. Legislative history demonstrates that the Legislature intended to waive only the state's immunity as to express contracts. This section does not subject the state to liability on implied contracts. Peretti v. St., 238 M 239, 777 P2d 329, 46 St. Rep. 1235 (1989).

Findings of Court in Error — No Waiver of Indemnity Reimbursement From State: Appellant contracted with the state to build a segment of highway. Respondent subcontracted with appellant to do certain concrete work on bridges. The state designed cuts through a mountainous area that were too steep and had to be redone for stability. This delayed the project and the availability of concrete, increasing costs of construction. Appellant entered a supplemental agreement with the state that purported to waive claims for extra costs. The Supreme Court reversed the lower court finding that this provision precluded appellant from indemnity reimbursement from the state for extra money paid to respondent because of the delay. Under the waiver provision, the contractor could still claim expenses from conditions not within the knowledge of the parties at execution of the agreement. Unavailability of concrete because of delay was such a condition. The court noted that the judgment against the state was subject to 18-1-404. E.F. Matelich Constr. Co. v. Goodfellow Bros., Inc., 217 M 29, 702 P2d 967, 42 St. Rep. 1004 (1985).

Constitutionality of Limitation of Interest: In an action in which the plaintiff was awarded damages for the unilateral and unlawful termination of a lease of certain communications equipment by the state, the trial court did not err in holding the limitation of interest on judgments in contract actions constitutional. The transcripts of the Constitutional Convention debates show that the purpose of the delegates in adopting Art. II, sec. 18, was to limit nonimmunity to torts committed by the state. Leaseamerica Corp. of Wis. v. St., 191 M 462, 625 P2d 68, 38 St. Rep. 398 (1981).

Contractual Liability for Attorney Fees — Fees Not "Costs" Absent Bad Faith: Where the State executed a 6-year lease of certain communications equipment with the plaintiff in a lease providing that the State would pay the lessor for "legal expenses" incurred as a result of any default by the State and unilaterally terminated the lease 3 years later, the trial court did not err in holding the State liable for attorney fees under the indemnity provisions in the lease. A reading of the applicable statutes indicates that liability for attorney fees can arise from contract but cannot be awarded as "costs" absent bad faith on the State's part. Leaseamerica Corp. of Wis. v. St., 191 M 462, 625 P2d 68, 38 St. Rep. 398 (1981).

Exclusive Jurisdiction in District Court: Appellees were students enrolled in a 2-year aviation technology program at the Missoula Technical Center, a vocational-technical center operated by the state. Because of budget cutbacks, the program was terminated after the first year. The students sued for damages in federal District Court, alleging that the termination of the program violated their rights of equal protection and due process. The District Court held the state had contracted with the students to provide 2 years of instruction and that termination constituted a breach of that contract. The court then ruled that the breach violated the students' due process rights. The U.S. Court of Appeals reversed, saying that the 11th amendment to the United States Constitution explicitly withholds from the U.S. courts jurisdiction over suits brought against a state by citizens of another state or another country. Also, the 11th amendment has always been interpreted to provide that an unconsenting state is immune from suits brought in federal courts by her own citizens, unless the state waives such immunity. Article 2, sec. 18, Mont. Const., waives state immunity from suit. The U.S. Court of Appeals held that in order to waive immunity from suit in federal courts, Art. II, sec. 18, Mont. Const., would expressly have to extend to federal suits, which it does not. The District Court had concluded that alternate jurisdiction could lie under 18-1-404, but that provision holding the state liable on contracts grants Montana state District Courts exclusive jurisdiction over such contract disputes. St. v. Peretti, 661 F2d 756 (9th Cir. 1981).

No Sovereign Immunity in Contract Actions: An action arising out of a contract is an action for injury to property; therefore the state, counties, towns, and all other local governmental entities have no sovereign immunity in contract actions. Peretti v. St. Bd. of Education, 464 F. Supp. 784 (D.C. Mont. 1979).

Contract Action Against State: In a contract action against the state, the same rules of construction apply as in contract actions between private parties. Sornsin Constr. Co. v. St., 180 M 248, 590 P2d 125 (1978).

Failure of Corporation to Possess Articles of Incorporation: The failure of a corporation to possess articles of incorporation until 21 days after the execution of the contract with the state does not constitute an illegal purpose which would void the agreement from its inception. On the contrary, this defect rendered the contract voidable at the state's option. Mont. Ass'n of Underwriters v. Dept. of Administration, 172 M 211, 563 P2d 577 (1977).

CHAPTER 2
CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTS

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Exemption of Certain Projects — Conditions — Termination: Section 4, Ch. 303, L. 1999, provided: "(1) If the nondenominational chapel project at Montana tech of the university of Montana is authorized in House Bill No. 5, then the design of this project is not subject to the requirements of 18-2-112 or Title 18, chapter 8, part 2.

(2) (a) It is the intent of the legislature, with regard to the classroom-laboratory building authorized in section 4, Chapter 469, Laws of 1997, that the department of administration contract as provided in this subsection (2). The department shall contract for combinations of services, materials, and labor related to innovative building technologies, not otherwise expressly allowed under Title 18, if the innovative technologies:

(i) have the potential to produce energy or operational savings for the state over the life cycle of the building;

(ii) demonstrate the use of recycled material; or

(iii) demonstrate the use of indigenous material for which a new local, regional, or national market may be developed.

(b) The conditions in subsection (2)(a) must specifically apply to individual building systems or components and not to the general contract for construction or for any project service, including design. The terms, guaranties, and conditions related to the innovations must be negotiated by the department in the best interests of the state and must provide that there is no express or implied commitment of state appropriations for construction, operations, or maintenance." Section 6, Ch. 303, L. 1999, provided that sec. 4, Ch. 303, L. 1999, terminates June 30, 2003.

Authorizing Inmate Labor for Construction of Prison Projects — 1989 Capital Projects Bill: Section 22, House Bill No. 777, L. 1989, provided: "For the purposes of constructing a 96-man housing unit authorized in [section 6]; the ranch housing units and the irrigation system at Montana state prison authorized in [section 7]; and the inspection, study, and renovation of dams at Montana state prison authorized in [section 10(2)]; the department of institutions [now department of corrections] may use inmate labor to construct the projects and is exempt, for the purposes of completing these projects, from the provisions of 53-1-301(1)(g). The department of administration may exempt these projects from any provisions of Montana law relating to public bidding, bonding, workers' compensation coverage, or labor and wage requirements." House Bill No. 777 was successfully challenged in the First Judicial District Court in Cause No. ADV-89-914. The District Court held that the title of the bill did not contain any reference to the substantive change the bill created in state law requirements for competitive bidding and that such a substantive change did not belong in an appropriation bill. A special session of the Legislature was called on May 21, 1990, and House Bill No. 1 was passed allowing for the use of convict labor and exempting the project from competitive bidding requirements.

Chapter Case Notes

Architect Liable for Inadequate Specifications: There was sufficient evidence presented to the District Court to support its findings that the architect's water system specifications for a new school building were inadequate. A contractor is not responsible for errors or defects in the plans and is not liable, absent negligence on his part, when the owner's plans and specifications prove defective. Ace Plumbing & Heating, Inc. v. School District, 204 M 81, 662 P2d 1327, 40 St. Rep. 678 (1983).

Effect of Unanticipated Condition on Contractor's Obligation: Even though a contract incorporates by reference federal, state, or local laws, a contractor is not required to alter construction plans to comply with health standards when the condition to be alleviated is abnormal, unanticipated, or substantially different from those in the contract plans and drawings. Ace Plumbing & Heating, Inc. v. School District, 204 M 81, 662 P2d 1327, 40 St. Rep. 678 (1983).

Contract Made Without License: The District Court erred in concluding that the contract entered into between the parties was illegal and therefore void. Appellant admits that it did not have a public contractor's license as required by statute when it accepted the bid proposal. It admits that it may have violated the law and may be assessed a misdemeanor fine. Nowhere in the statutes is it declared that a contract made without a license is unenforceable or void. Taurman v. Cascade, 192 M 529, 629 P2d 226, 38 St. Rep. 906 (1981).

Part Case Notes

Implied Warranty — Plans and Specifications: A contractor can rely on plans and specifications and need not verify them. The owner warrants and is responsible for the accuracy of the descriptions in the plans and specifications of the contract. The contract impliedly warrants that the plans are suitable and accurate. The implied warranty is as much a part of the contract as the express terms and is subject to the statute of limitations pertaining to the contract. Lutey Constr. v. St., 257 M 387, 851 P2d 1037, 50 St. Rep. 321 (1993).

Attorney General's Opinions

Daly Mansion Restoration Subject to Public Construction Contracts: The Daly Mansion is a "building" within the definition in this section, and work on the mansion constitutes "construction" under the statute. Amendment effective April 24, 1993.

1985 Amendment: Inserted (2)(d) allowing Department of Military Affairs to authorize construction of certain buildings.

Case Notes

Consent by Appropriation — Effect of Statute Allowing Committee Decision on Location of Legislative Chambers: The directive in 5-17-102 (renumbered 2-17-805) to the Capitol Building and Planning Committee (abolished in 1993) to decide the location of legislative chambers belies the contention that the Legislature consented under this section to relocation of the Senate chambers when the Legislature passed an appropriation for a capitol renovation project. Goodover v. Dept. of Administration, 201 M 92, 651 P2d 1005, 39 St. Rep. 1975 (1982).

Consent to Remodeling: This section's provision for legislative consent to "construction" of a building requires legislative consent to a remodeling project that will cost in excess of $25,000 (see 1993 and 1997 amendments), and the consent may take the form of an appropriation of money or a joint resolution. Goodover v. Dept. of Administration, 201 M 92, 651 P2d 1005, 39 St. Rep. 1975 (1982).

Any change order over $25,000 must be with the consent of the board of examiners. The department may refer change orders under $25,000 that affect the project scope or other unusual change orders to the board of examiners for consideration. Case Notes

Lowest Bidder Working Beyond Contract Time — Other Bidder Without Standing to Protest: Appellant bid $440 more than lowest bidder and protested the bid award because the recipient of contract had not completed another public contract on which he was working beyond contract completion time. The District Court dismissed the action for lack of standing. The Supreme Court affirmed since a contract does not exist prior to the acceptance of bid by an agency, depriving appellant of standing under contract theory. The bidding statutes were not enacted for the benefit of competing bidders, but for the public. The court noted that appellant failed to claim standing as a taxpayer and did not seek judicial review under the Montana Administrative Procedure Act. Baker v. St., 218 M 235, 707 P2d 20, 42 St. Rep. 1546 (1985), distinguished in ISC Distrib., Inc. v. Trevor, 273 M 185, 903 P2d 170, 52 St. Rep. 894 (1995).

Mandamus Against Those Determining Qualifications of Public Contract Bidders: The Department of Administration and Board of Examiners, in determining whether bidders for the construction of a public building are qualified and will perform the contract in conformity with the specifications and terms of the solicitation for bids, as required by 18-2-103, are acting in a discretionary manner, and mandamus may not be used to control their discretion. Martel Constr., Inc. v. Bd. of Examiners, 205 M 332, 668 P2d 222, 40 St. Rep. 1340 (1983).

Meeting of Minds — Oral Acknowledgment of Part of Written Contract Bid Specifications: The State's solicitation for bids for construction of building provided that the bid acknowledge receipt of any addenda. The State accepted the bid of a contractor that did not make the acknowledgment in its bid. The evidence that the State phoned the contractor regarding two addenda and contractor stated it knew of them and had begun preparation for fulfilling them was adequate to show that contractor had actual knowledge of the addenda and showed there was a meeting of the minds as to their existence and the requirements for fulfillment of their terms. Martel Constr., Inc. v. Bd. of Examiners, 205 M 332, 668 P2d 222, 40 St. Rep. 1340 (1983).

Public Contract Bid — Submission Binds Bidder: State's solicitation for bids provided that all written addenda would become part of the contract documents, that all bidders would be bound by the addenda, whether or not they were received by the bidder, and that the owner reserved the right to reject all bids and waive any informality or irregularity in any bid. One bid did not acknowledge receipt of certain addenda, though the bidder stated during a phone conversation with the State that he knew of the addenda. The solicitation provisions bound the bidder to full performance of the contract documents, including all addenda, whether received or not, and in submitting its bid the bidder bound itself to the full performance of the contract documents, including the addenda. Martel Constr., Inc. v. Bd. of Examiners, 205 M 332, 668 P2d 222, 40 St. Rep. 1340 (1983).

Waiver of Irregularities in Bids — Materiality of Irregularity: The State has the right to waive immaterial irregularities in bids for public contracts. Deviations in bids not going to the substance of the bid and irregularities not giving one bidder a substantial advantage over other bidders are types of irregularities that can be waived by the State in awarding contracts. The irregularity was immaterial where lowest bidder failed to acknowledge receipt of addenda put out by the State, though the bidder was required to make such acknowledgment. The bidder stated in a phone conversation with the State that it knew of the addenda, that the addenda required work costing about $55,280, and that the spread between that bidder and the next lowest bidder was $174,000. The defect would have been material and could not have been waived if the bid spread had been less than $55,280. Martel Constr., Inc. v. Bd. of Examiners, 205 M 332, 668 P2d 222, 40 St. Rep. 1340 (1983).

Case Notes

Material Supplier Held to Be Subcontractor: Under a contract that defined "work" as including construction labor and all materials and equipment incorporated into the construction project, a firm which merely served as a conduit for materials used by a general contractor was held to be a subcontractor, and a supplier of that firm was held entitled to pursue action on the general contractor's bond. Robintech, Inc. v. White & McNeil Excavating, Inc., 218 M 404, 709 P2d 631, 42 St. Rep. 1690 (1985).

Action Against City: A materialman, the supplier of a contractor who had a public works contract with city, could not hold the city liable for materials and supplies not paid for by contractor but used in performance of contract. C. E. Mitchell & Sons v. Davis, 162 M 221, 511 P2d 316 (1973).

Estoppel of Surety: This section did not prevent a surety on a bond given hereunder from becoming liable by estoppel to a third party who, in reliance on the surety's representations that he would be protected by the bond, paid off unpaid checks of the contractor and advanced money to the contractor for future payments, all in the nature of claims covered by the bond. Bower v. Tebbs, 132 M 146, 314 P2d 731 (1957).

Action on Contract — Change of Venue: An action brought by a merchant against a state highway contractor and his bondsman to recover for supplies furnished the former's subcontractor was held to be one upon a contract between the contractor and the state for the benefit of third persons and to be triable in the county in which the person entitled to payment resided or had his place of business. H. Earl Clack Co. v. Staunton, 100 M 26, 44 P2d 1069 (1935).

18-2-202. Failure to require security — waiver.

Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 130 near middle, after "fails to take", substituted "the security required or authorized by 18-2-201" for "such bond, cash, checks, drafts, money orders, or certificates of deposit as herein required"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 13, 1995.

18-2-203. Amount and terms of security.

Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 130 at beginning substituted "security" for "bond" and near middle, after "fix and determine the", substituted "amount of the security and the name of the secured party" for "amount of such bond and to whom such bond shall run"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 13, 1995.

18-2-204. Right of action on security — notice.

Compiler's Comments

2009 Amendment: Chapter 56 made section gender neutral; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2009.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 130 in (1), in first sentence, substituted "security" for "bond" and after "furnished in the" deleted "prosecution of such", in second sentence substituted "right of action on the security" for "right of action on such bond for any sum whatever", and in model notice substituted "security" for "bond", after "name of the principal and" substituted "name of the person providing the security" for "surety or sureties upon such bond", and at end substituted

"the security" for "said bond"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 13, 1995.

Case Notes

Action Against City: A materialman, the supplier of a contractor who had a public works contract with city, could not hold the city liable for materials and supplies not paid for by contractor but used in performance of contract. C. E. Mitchell & Sons v. Davis, 162 M 221, 511 P2d 316 (1973).

"Acceptance" — By Whom: The word "acceptance" in this section as used in connection with a state highway contract contemplates a final, complete, and unconditional acceptance. There can be no such acceptance while there is still a dispute as to the amount owing on the contract. It means acceptance by an officer or body, not an engineer. Kirkpatrick v. Douglas, 104 M 212, 65 P2d 1169 (1937).

Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 130 substituted "the security" for "such bond"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 13, 1995.

Case Notes

Action Against City: A materialman, the supplier of a contractor who had a public works contract with city, could not hold the city liable for materials and supplies not paid for by contractor but used in performance of contract. C. E. Mitchell & Sons v. Davis, 162 M 221, 511 P2d 316 (1973).

Federal Court Actions: Title 18, ch. 2, part 2, governs the court remedies in favor of suppliers and materialmen suing for and making recovery upon surety bonds furnished and supplied by general contractors engaged in public works. Those sections are the state law to be applied in federal court. U.S. v. Reliance Ins. Co. of Philadelphia, 227 F. Supp. 939 (D.C. Mont. 1964).

Provender, Materials, or Supplies: Equipment rental comes within the phrase "provender, materials, or supplies" as used in a bond pursuant to this section. Bower v. Tebbs, 132 M 146, 314 P2d 731 (1957).

Action on Contract — Change of Venue: An action brought by a merchant against a state highway contractor and his bondsman to recover for supplies furnished the former's subcontractor was held to be one upon a contract between the contractor and the state for the benefit of third persons and to be triable in the county in which the person entitled to payment resided or had his place of business. H. Earl Clack Co. v. Staunton, 100 M 26, 44 P2d 1069 (1935).

18-2-206. Notice to contractor concerning subcontractor.

Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 130 throughout section substituted references to security for references to bond; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 13, 1995.

1987 Amendment: In (1), after "first delivery", deleted "of such provender, material, supplies, or provisions" and after "such work" substituted "give a notice of a right of action on the bond" for "deliver or send by certified mail to the contractor a notice in writing stating in substance and effect that"; deleted former (1)(a) and (1)(b) stating content of notice and that bond would be held; inserted (2) detailing notice delivery and content requirements; inserted (3) making prescribed notice exclusive; and made minor changes in phraseology.

Case Notes

Material Supplier Held to Be Subcontractor: Under a contract that defined "work" as including construction labor and all materials and equipment incorporated into the construction project, a firm which merely served as a conduit for materials used by a general contractor was held to be a subcontractor, and a supplier of that firm was held entitled to pursue action on the general contractor's bond. Robintech, Inc. v. White & McNeil Excavating, Inc., 218 M 404, 709 P2d 631, 42 St. Rep. 1690 (1985).

Time for Raising Lack of Notice as Defense: In an action by a materialman against a general contractor for material supplied to the subcontractor, the general contractor could not raise the affirmative defense that statutory notice was not given for the first time upon submitting proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law. The materialman alleged that he had complied with all conditions precedent to bringing the suit. The general contractor entered a general denial, and a general denial did not put notice in issue. Treasure St. Indus., Inc. v. Leigland, 151 M 288, 443 P2d 22 (1968).

Waiver of Notice: A materialman brought an action against the general contractor for materials supplied to subcontractor. The general contractor waived the right to notice from materialman where he knew from beginning that the materialman was supplying masonry materials to the subcontractor for the job and consented thereto. Treasure St. Indus., Inc. v. Leigland, 151 M 288, 443 P2d 22 (1968), followed in Robintech, Inc. v. White & McNeil Excavating, Inc., 218 M 404, 709 P2d 631, 42 St. Rep. 1690 (1985).

Defense Not Available to Contractor: Plaintiff brought an action against a highway contractor and his surety to recover for supplies furnished to drivers of trucks of a subcontractor who had not received pay therefor. The defense that the subcontractor deducted the amount owing from the wages of the drivers and that he was the agent of the plaintiff in collecting for the supplies did not alter the liability of the contractor and his surety under their contracts. H. Earl Clack Co. v. Staunton, 105 M 375, 72 P2d 1022 (1937).

Subcontractor Agent of Contractor: This section making the giving of notice a condition precedent to the right to proceed to suit does not deprive one of right to maintain an action instituted on the theory that the subcontractor was the agent of the contractor, without having first given notice. The contractor and his surety were liable for the indebtedness incurred to materialman who furnished supplies to subcontractor as the relationship of principal and agent was established by contracts. H. Earl Clack Co. v. Staunton, 105 M 375, 72 P2d 1022 (1937).

18-2-207. Costs — attorney fees.

Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 130 near beginning substituted "the surety, payor, or other person liable on the security" for "such surety or sureties" and near end substituted "notice required in 18-2-206" for "notice hereinbefore mentioned"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 13, 1995.

Case Notes

Attorney Fees: Under this section the prevailing plaintiff is entitled to recover as compensation for attorneys such sum as the court shall adjudge reasonable for the institution and prosecution of proceedings against surety. U.S. v. Reliance Ins. Co. of Philadelphia, 227 F. Supp. 939 (D.C. Mont. 1964).

18-2-208. Exceptions.

Compiler's Comments

Amendment effective March 13, 1995.

Case Notes

Supplier of Subcontractor Not Prohibited From Pursuing Claim Against General Contractor's Bond: Luciano supplied pipe supplies to Petroleum Pipe and Supply Company, a subcontractor for Northwest Pipe and Casing Company. Northwest advanced money to Petroleum, and Luciano supplied pipe to Petroleum in advance of payment for the pipe. Petroleum subsequently went bankrupt, and Luciano made a claim against Northwest's bond for the amount owed by Petroleum for advanced supplies. Northwest argued that the language of the statute prohibited a claim by Luciano. The Supreme Court stated that the statute had to be strictly construed in order to ensure that those persons who should be protected by a contractor's bond were in fact protected. The Supreme Court held that Northwest had only loaned money to Petroleum and that although Petroleum would not have been able to sue on the bond, no money had been lent to Luciano and he was entitled to seek recovery from the general contractor's bond for supplies advanced to Petroleum. Luciano v. NW. Pipe & Casing Co., 264 M 148, 870 P2d 99, 51 St. Rep. 196 (1994).

Special Conditions — Standard Prevailing Rate of Wages

Part Compiler's Comments

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 79 (Ch. 139, L. 1981) provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it grants the Commissioner of Labor and Industry rulemaking authority regarding the preference for Montana labor in public works contracts. This bill intends that the commissioner adopt rules concerning areas such as the use of apprentices, methods of computing standard prevailing wage rates, and geographical areas subject to the rates. The commissioner shall also have the authority to adopt rules as may be needed to ensure that reporting and enforcement measures are complied with."

Part Case Notes

Failure to Pay Wage Rates Prescribed in Contract — Employer Liable for Penalties: Contractors appealed from a District Court order, arguing that because wage rates were not adopted in compliance with administrative procedures, inclusion constituted an illegal provision in the contract with which contractors were not required to comply. The Supreme Court held that contractors were legally bound to pay the wage rates agreed to by all parties and contained in a voluntarily executed contract. Lix v. Kenney, 246 M 426, 804 P2d 391, 48 St. Rep. 23 (1991).

Primary Contractor Liable When Subcontractor Defaults: Subcontractor clauses that speak of a continuing obligation to see that the subcontractor abides by the terms and conditions of a collective bargaining agreement established between a primary contractor and union employees, including fringe benefits, if breached by the subcontractor become a legal and enforceable promise to pay on the part of the primary contractor. Sletten Constr. Co. v. Audit Services, Inc., 190 M 123, 619 P2d 177, 37 St. Rep. 1777 (1980).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Application of Wage Rate to Service Contracts: The provisions of the prevailing wage rate law apply to service contracts entered into by the state, counties, municipalities, or school districts. The term "public works contracts" in 18-2-403(2) includes all contracts subject to the requirements of 18-2-403(1). 42 A.G. Op. 60 (1988).

Workfare — Prevailing Wage for Similar Work: Section 53-3-304 (now repealed) requires that all participants in the "workfare" program receive benefits equal to wages paid at the prevailing rate for similar county work. The prevailing wage as determined under the "Little Davis-Bacon Act" is the most frequent or commonly used rate of pay. The prevailing wage is not necessarily the minimum wage. The county may pay the minimum wage only if similar work, as that done under workfare, has generally been performed for the minimum wage or if the county has never had similar work performed. To determine what is similar work, the county should classify work to be performed under the workfare program with other work closely resembling the type currently being done for the county. 40 A.G. Op. 3 (1983).

18-2-401. Definitions.

Compiler's Comments

2009 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 2 in definition of standard prevailing rate of wages in (a)(ii) near middle of first sentence and in (b) near middle after "Retirement" inserted "Income"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2009. The amendment by Ch. 277 rendered the amendment by Ch. 2 void.

Chapter 277 in definition of contractor near beginning after "any" inserted "individual"; inserted definition of fringe benefits; deleted former definition of heavy and highway construction wage rates that read: ""Heavy and highway construction wage rates" means wage rates, including fringe benefits for health and welfare and pension contributions, that meet the requirements of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 and other bona fide programs approved by the United States department of labor and zone pay and travel allowance that are determined and established statewide for heavy and highway construction projects, such as alteration or repair of roads, streets, highways, alleys, runways, trails, parking areas, utility rights-of-way, staging yards located on or off the right-of-way, or new or reopened pits that produce aggregate, asphalt, concrete, or backfill when the pit does not normally sell to the general public"; in definition of standard prevailing rate of wages near end of introductory language after "means" inserted "the rates established as provided in", and substituted (a) through (c) describing standard prevailing rate of wages for building construction services, for heavy construction services and highway construction services, and for nonconstruction services for former (a)(i), (a)(ii), and (b) that read: "(i) the heavy and highway construction wage rates applicable to heavy and highway construction projects; or

(ii) those wages, other than heavy and highway construction wages, including fringe benefits for health and welfare and pension contributions, that meet the requirements of the Employee Retirement Security Act of 1974 and other bona fide programs approved by the United States department of labor and travel allowance that are paid in the district by other contractors for work of a similar character performed in that district by each craft, classification, or type of worker needed to complete a contract under this part. In each district, the standard prevailing rate of wages must be computed by the department based on work performed by electrical contractors who are licensed under Title 37, chapter 68, master plumbers who are licensed under Title 37, chapter 69, part 3, and Montana contractors who are registered under Title 39, chapter 9, and whose work is performed according to commercial building codes. The contractor survey must include information pertaining to the number of skilled craftspersons employed in the employer's peak month of employment and the wages and benefits paid for each craft. In setting the prevailing wages from the survey for each craft, the department shall use the weighted average wage for each craft, except in those cases in which the survey shows that 50% of the craftspersons are receiving the same wage. When the survey shows that 50% of the craftspersons are receiving the same wage, that wage is the prevailing wage for that craft. The work performed must be work of a similar character to the work performed in the district unless the annual survey of construction contractors and the biennial survey of nonconstruction service employers in the district does not generate sufficient data. If the survey produces insufficient data, the rate may be established by the use of other information or methods that the commissioner determines fairly establish the standard prevailing rate of wages. The commissioner shall establish by rule the method or methods by which the standard prevailing rate of wages is determined. The rules must establish a process for determining if there is insufficient data generated by the survey of employers in the district that requires the use of other methods of determining the standard prevailing rate of wages. The rules must identify the amount of data that constitutes insufficient data and require the commissioner of labor to use other methods of determining the standard prevailing rate of wages when insufficient data exists. The alternative methods of determining the prevailing rate of wages must provide for review and the incorporation of data from work of a similar character that is conducted as near as possible to the original district.

(b) When work of a similar character is not being performed in the district, the standard prevailing rate of wages, including fringe benefits for health and welfare and pension contributions, that meets the requirements of the Employee Retirement Security Act of 1974 and other bona fide programs approved by the United States department of labor and the rate of travel allowance must be those rates established by collective bargaining agreements in effect in the district for each craft, classification, or type of worker needed to complete the contract"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2009.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 293 in definition of standard prevailing rate of wages in (a)(ii) in second sentence near middle after "performed by" inserted "electrical contractors who are licensed under Title 37, chapter 68, master plumbers who are licensed under Title 37, chapter 69, part 3, and". Amendment effective April 11, 2003.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 517 in definition of bona fide resident of Montana at beginning of second sentence deleted "Sojourners or"; inserted definitions of contractor and employer; in definition of standard prevailing rate of wages in (a)(ii) at end of first complete sentence after "computed" substituted "by the department based on work performed by Montana contractors who are registered under Title 39, chapter 9, and whose work is performed according to commercial building codes" for "from a weighted average wage rate based on all of the hours worked on work", inserted second through fourth full sentences regarding survey information and setting prevailing wages for each craft, and near middle of fifth full sentence after "unless the" substituted "annual survey of construction contractors and the biennial survey of nonconstruction service employers" for "survey of employers"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 522 inserted definitions of construction services, nonconstruction services, and public works contract; deleted definition of labor that read: ""Labor" means all services in excess of $25,000 performed in construction, maintenance, or remodeling work in a state, county, municipal, school district, or political subdivision project and does not include engineering, superintendence, management, or office or clerical work"; in definition of standard prevailing rate of wages, in (a)(ii) near beginning of second sentence after "wages", substituted "must be computed from" for "is" and at end inserted "unless the survey of employers in the district does not generate sufficient data" and inserted third through seventh sentences regarding use of alternative methods of wage rate determination; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

1997 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 522, L. 1997, provided: "A statement of intent is desired for this bill because it authorizes the commissioner of labor to adopt rules specifying the method or methods of determining the standard prevailing rate of wages in the absence of sufficient data in a district. It is the intent of the legislature that the commissioner of labor adopt rules establishing a process for determining when there is insufficient data generated by a survey of employers in the district. It is the intent of the legislature that the rules identify an amount of data that constitutes insufficient data under the amendments to 18-2-401. It is the further intent of the legislature that methods for identifying the prevailing wage in the absence of sufficient data in the district provide for review and incorporation of data from work of a similar character that is conducted as near as possible to the district."

Transition for Necessary Prevailing Wage Rates: Section 8, Ch. 522, L. 1997, provided: "(1) The commissioner of labor and industry may adopt temporary standard prevailing wage rates for an occupation or trade for which a standard prevailing wage rate has never been established but that is necessary to implement the provisions of [this act].

(2) The commissioner may temporarily incorporate the federal Davis-Bacon Act wage rates established for Montana as the state heavy and highway construction wage rates to provide uniformity between federal and state standard prevailing wage rates for heavy and highway construction."

"Heavy or Highway" Construction Construed — "Utility Rights-of-Way" Construed: After receiving complaints about the wages being paid to workers constructing tunnels for heating and electric utilities on the Montana State University-Bozeman campus, the Montana Department of Labor and Industry (DLI) held that the construction projects were "heavy" construction within the meaning of subsection (5) and (7) of this section and that a higher wage should be paid. (Definitions of heavy and highway construction wage rates deleted in 2009 legislation.) The DLI also held that the contracting state agency, the Department of Administration (DA), was liable for back wages. The DA appealed the DLI decision to the District Court, which held that the project was not "heavy" construction because it was not a utility "right-of-way". The Supreme Court held that the District Court erred in applying the definition of "right-of-way" found in 60-1-103 and in holding that a "right-of-way" is only an interest in land. The Supreme Court pointed out that this section sets out a listing of projects that are to be built or constructed. The Supreme Court noted that not only could an interest in land not be "constructed" but that the inclusion of "rights-of-way" in the list of types of projects listed in subsection (5) of this section was not intended by the Legislature, because of the use of the phrase "such as", to be an exclusive list of projects. The Supreme Court therefore held that the tunnels were "utility rights-of-way", that they qualified as "heavy construction" within the meaning of subsection (5) of this section, and that a higher wage should have been paid by the DA. Dept. of Administration v. Ekanger, 284 M 151, 943 P2d 994, 54 St. Rep. 821 (1997).

Little Davis-Bacon Act — No Unconstitutional Delegation by Legislature: Appellant contended that 18-2-401(7)(b) is an unconstitutional delegation of authority from the Legislature to private parties for determination of the prevailing wage rate. The court held that such provision was not applicable to the facts of the case. The case is governed by 18-2-401(7)(a). Montana's Little Davis-Bacon Act authorizes the Commissioner of Labor to establish standard prevailing rates using union contracts and "other information" as guidelines. Therefore, collective bargaining agreements are advisory, but not compulsory, where there is other evidence of prevailing wage rates in the community as there was in the Bozeman area. No unconstitutional delegation of authority has occurred in 18-2-401(7)(a). Hunter v. Bozeman, 216 M 251, 700 P2d 184, 42 St. Rep. 784 (1985).

Commissioner to Determine Standard Prevailing Rate of Wages: Plaintiff was awarded the mechanical subcontract on a research laboratory being constructed by the State. The State received a complaint that plaintiff was not paying the "standard prevailing rate" (SPR) of wages. The State investigated and concluded that the complaint was legitimate. Plaintiff commenced a declaratory judgment action, and judgment was entered in his favor. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that the authority to determine the SPR rests exclusively with the Commissioner of Labor and Industry. The District Court was incorrect in allowing the contractor to determine the SPR. The court also held that this was not reversible error since the SPR existed only somewhere in the bureaucracy and plaintiff was unaware of it. Because of this, there was no mutual assent under the contract. Thompkins v. Fuller, 205 M 168, 667 P2d 944, 40 St. Rep. 1192 (1983).

"Work of a Similar Character" Construed: In interpreting the meaning of the "standard prevailing rate" of wages paid by other contractors for "work of a similar character", the Supreme Court held that "work of a similar character" refers to projects as a whole and not to individual labor. Thompkins v. Fuller, 205 M 168, 667 P2d 944, 40 St. Rep. 1192 (1983).

Lease Between City and Finance Company — Public Works Contract: Pollard Finance, Inc., arranged to have a building built on land owned by the city of Bozeman and leased the building to the city. In an action by the Commissioner of Labor for unpaid wages mandated by 18-2-401, et seq., the court held that the lease agreement constituted a public works contract subject to those provisions. There was substantial credible evidence to support the finding by the trial court that the lease was in fact a sale of the building to the city and that this was in effect a public works project. Hunter v. Bozeman, 216 M 251, 700 P2d 184, 42 St. Rep. 784 (1985).

Case Notes

Public Works Project — No Prevailing Wage Provision — Penalties Upheld: The trial court, having found a new building lease to be a sales contract, and thus a public works contract, properly imposed penalties for the city's failure to include a prevailing wage rate provision in the public works contract. Section 39-3-206 provides that if an employer on a public works project is delinquent, his obligation to pay prevailing wages includes a civil penalty. Section 18-2-403 provides that if a provision for the payment of the prevailing wage rate is not included by the public contracting body in the contract with the contractor, then the obligation to pay the prevailing wage is on the public contracting agency. While this section is silent as to shifting penalties, the Supreme Court found that an interpretation of the statute allowing civil penalties against the contracting agency accords with the underlying purpose of the statute to serve as a deterrent. Hunter v. Bozeman, 216 M 251, 700 P2d 184, 42 St. Rep. 784 (1985).

Prevailing Wage Requirements Applicable to Offsite Construction Work — Project Location Indicative of Appropriate Rate: The 1997 amendments to the prevailing wage requirements in this section extend to any public works contract, without a work situs limitation. A contractor's offsite fabrication of items for onsite installation constitutes construction within the scope of the term "construction services". Therefore, the prevailing wage requirements in subsection (2)(b) of this section apply to fabrication of materials performed offsite by a contractor for installation or use at the site of construction under a public works contract. With respect to offsite services, the prevailing wage district is the district where the onsite construction occurs. 47 A.G. Op. 12 (1998).

Application of Wage Rate to Service Contracts: The provisions of the prevailing wage rate law apply to service contracts entered into by the state, counties, municipalities, or school districts. The term "public works contracts" in subsection (2) of this section includes all contracts subject to the requirements of 18-2-403(1). 42 A.G. Op. 60 (1988).

1997 Amendment: Chapter 522 near beginning of second sentence, after "case of", substituted "public works contracts" for "projects"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

1997 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 522, L. 1997, provided: "A statement of intent is desired for this bill because it authorizes the commissioner of labor to adopt rules specifying the method or methods of determining the standard prevailing rate of wages in the absence of sufficient data in a district. It is the intent of the legislature that the commissioner of labor adopt rules establishing a process for determining when there is insufficient data generated by a survey of employers in the district. It is the intent of the legislature that the rules identify an amount of data that constitutes insufficient data under the amendments to 18-2-401. It is the further intent of the legislature that methods for identifying the prevailing wage in the absence of sufficient data in the district provide for review and incorporation of data from work of a similar character that is conducted as near as possible to the district."

Transition for Necessary Prevailing Wage Rates: Section 8, Ch. 522, L. 1997, provided: "(1) The commissioner of labor and industry may adopt temporary standard prevailing wage rates for an occupation or trade for which a standard prevailing wage rate has never been established but that is necessary to implement the provisions of [this act].

(2) The commissioner may temporarily incorporate the federal Davis-Bacon Act wage rates established for Montana as the state heavy and highway construction wage rates to provide uniformity between federal and state standard prevailing wage rates for heavy and highway construction."

Attorney General's Opinions

Prevailing Wage Requirements Applicable to Offsite Construction Work — Project Location Indicative of Appropriate Rate: The 1997 amendments to the prevailing wage requirements in 18-2-403 extend to any public works contract, without a work situs limitation. A contractor's offsite fabrication of items for onsite installation constitutes construction within the scope of the term "construction services". Therefore, the prevailing wage requirements in 18-2-403(2)(b) apply to fabrication of materials performed offsite by a contractor for installation or use at the site of construction under a public works contract. With respect to offsite services, the prevailing wage district is the district where the onsite construction occurs. 47 A.G. Op. 12 (1998).

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 234, L. 1985, provided: "This bill requires a statement of intent because it expressly delegates rulemaking authority to the commissioner of labor and industry.

Title 18, chapter 2, part 4, MCA, the "Little Davis-Bacon Act", requires that a standard prevailing wage be paid for labor on all public works contracts and that Montana labor receive a preference for employment on all public contracts. The commissioner is given the duty to determine the prevailing wage by locality and to otherwise administer part 4. In early 1983 Judge Bennett found in Townsend Electric, Inc. v. Hunter, et al., first judicial district of Montana (no. 47160), that the commissioner's determinations as to prevailing wage did not have the force of law because the legislature had never granted the commissioner express rulemaking authority to implement part 4. This bill is introduced to clarify that the legislature intends, and has so intended since the adoption of the Little Davis-Bacon Act in 1931, that the commissioner of labor and industry set and enforce prevailing wage rates under that act.

The rulemaking authority expressly delegated to the department of labor and industry by this bill authorizes the department to promulgate the prevailing wage rates as "rules" under the Montana Administrative Procedure Act.

The department is authorized to adopt rules each year establishing the various prevailing wage rates and to adopt rules spelling out the procedures and methods used to arrive at those rates. It is the intent of the legislature that in adopting the rules, the commissioner shall consider the following:

(1) collective bargaining agreements;
(2) federal Davis-Bacon Act rates;
(3) federal Service Contract Act rates;
(4) wage information compiled by the department of labor and industry;
(5) wage surveys, as appropriate and as resources permit; and
(6) other pertinent information."

Part 1
General Provisions

Part Case Notes

Right of Plaintiff to Sue for Damages for Negligent or Bad Faith Application of Procurement Act: The District Court dismissed ISC's suit against the Department of Administration for negligent or bad faith application of the Montana Procurement Act on the basis that 18-4-242 was the exclusive remedy for ISC and that the statute did not allow such an action. The Supreme Court held that the general remedies provided a plaintiff suing the state under 18-4-131 (now repealed) were not displaced by 18-4-242 and that therefore ISC was entitled to seek damages for negligent or bad faith application of the Act by the Department. ISC Distrib., Inc. v. Trevor, 273 M 185, 903 P2d 170, 52 St. Rep. 894 (1995).

Limitations on State Contracts Inapplicable to Leases: Where the state executed a 6-year lease of certain communications equipment in 1973 and unilaterally terminated the lease in 1977, the trial court did not err in holding that the lease was not subject to the provisions of section 82-1918, R.C.M. 1947 (18-4-102, MCA, now repealed), limiting the terms of certain contracts to 3 years. In determining the intent of the Legislature, the court may look to the context and plain meaning of the statute, the title of certain codified provisions, and the legislative history of the law. These indicia of legislative intent show that the Legislature did not intend section 82-1918, R.C.M. 1947, to apply to the Attorney General's leasing power under 44-2-302. Leaseamerica Corp. of Wis. v. St., 191 M 462, 625 P2d 68, 38 St. Rep. 398 (1981).

Property Included in Purchasing Power: There are variations in the statutes in the descriptions of the articles to be purchased by the state. The court found that it was the intent of the Legislature, in providing for a State Purchasing Agent (now Department of Administration) and defining his duties, to include in those duties the purchase of supplies, materials, services, equipment, tools, and all physical property of every kind required by all offices, departments, boards, commissions, and institutions of the State of Montana. The State Aeronautics Commission (now Department of Transportation) was therefore not authorized to make purchases through its power to contract. Holtz v. Babcock, 143 M 341, 390 P2d 801 (1963).

WHEREAS, a judgment for damages in a state contract suit brought pursuant to the Montana Procurement Act makes Montana taxpayers pay twice for the same product; and

WHEREAS, in enacting the Montana Procurement Act, the Legislature did not intend to allow disappointed bidders on state contracts to be awarded damages under the Montana Procurement Act, but rather intended that the exclusive remedies of a disappointed bidder be the remedies provided in section 18-4-242, MCA, which do not include the award of money damages to an unsuccessful bidder; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Supreme Court held in Meech v. Hillhaven West, Inc., 238 M 21, 776 P2d 488 (1989), that no fundamental right to a particular cause of action or remedy exists under Montana law and that Article II, section 16, of the Montana Constitution requires only that some remedy be provided for every wrong, and the Supreme Court held in Continental Oil Co. v. Montana Concrete Co., 63 M 223, 207 P 116 (1922), and General Agriculture Corp. v. Moore, 166 M 510, 534 P2d 859 (1975), that the Legislature may repeal a statutory cause of action or remedy during the pendency of a civil action invoking the remedy; and

WHEREAS, according to section 1-2-110, MCA, a statute may be repealed at any time by the Legislature, and persons acting under any statute are considered to be acting in contemplation of the Legislature's power to repeal the statute; and

WHEREAS, it is the intent of the Legislature by enacting [sections 2, 10, and 23] [18-4-122, 18-4-242, and retroactive applicability section] and repealing section 18-4-131, MCA, to reverse the holding of the Supreme Court in the ISC case as to the availability of the remedy of money damages; and

WHEREAS, it is the intent of the Legislature by enacting [section 23] [retroactive applicability section] to make the reversal of the ISC case apply retroactively, unless a complaint was filed in district court prior to January 1, 1992, as provided in [section 23]."

the case of an unlawful solicitation for bid or unlawful award of a contract, to a claim, to a cause of action, or to a request for relief other than those authorized by [section 10] [18-4-242], unless a complaint was filed in district court prior to January 1, 1992."

Case Notes

Bid Proposal Evaluation Including Negotiation of Unresolved Issues — Bid Properly Considered Nonresponsive: Reier Broadcasting Co. (RBC) sought to enter a broadcasting contract with Montana State University-Bozeman (MSU) and asserted that MSU violated administrative rules by finding that RBC's proposal was nonresponsive after the evaluation process was completed. The Supreme Court disagreed. The evaluation process concludes when the parties arrive at a contract, not before, so in this case, the evaluation process and the accompanying rules of engagement included negotiations of unresolved issues as well as discussion pursuant to the administrative rules. A state entity must retain the power to find a proposal nonresponsive when a party refuses to conform to a request for proposals (RFP) or substantially alters its proposal. In order to maximize the state's purchasing power, the Montana Procurement Act allows a state agency to ensure full compliance with an RFP up to the point of entering a contract. RBC's interpretation would defeat the intent of the Act and tie the hands of a state entity in a manner not contemplated by the Act. Here, MSU reviewed RBC's proposal based on evaluation criteria and did not restrict responsibility for determining nonresponsiveness or nonresponsibility of a proposal to the evaluation committee, so MSU's determination that RBC's proposal was nonresponsive was affirmed. In re Contested Hearing of Protest by Reier Broadcasting Co., 2005 MT 347, 330 M 152, 127 P3d 389 (2005).

Award of Contract Under Montana Procurement Act — No Preemption of Other Statutory Requirements: The plaintiff was awarded a state contract to haul goods for the school lunch program. The contract was contingent upon the plaintiff's obtaining a Class C certificate from the Public Service Commission by August 1, 1989. The Commission informed the plaintiff that a public hearing had to be held on issuing the certificate and that the earliest the hearing could be held was August 23, 1989. The plaintiff argued that the policy of the Montana Procurement Act to promote competition preempted 69-12-324, which operates to protect the existing carrier. The Supreme Court ruled that more specific statutes regulating carriers govern over the procurement statutes with respect to carriers. State ex rel. Roberts v. Pub. Ser. Comm'n, 242 M 242, 790 P2d 489, 47 St. Rep. 774 (1990).

Attorney General's Opinions

Procurement Act Inapplicable to Board of Crime Control Grants to Nongovernmental Agencies: Federal law allows states to subgrant certain federal funds to local governments and, in some cases, to nongovernmental agencies within the state. Certain grants made by the Board of Crime Control involve the passthrough of federal funding to local nongovernmental agencies that in turn provide crime control services within their communities to persons or entities that are not agencies of the state. The statutory grant of supervision over procurement contracts does not authorize the Department of Administration to supervise federally funded grants awarded by the Board of Crime Control to nongovernmental agencies. Therefore, the Montana Procurement Act, Title 18, ch. 4, does not apply to grants awarded by the Board of Crime Control to nongovernmental agencies to fund community projects. 52 A.G. Op. 5 (2008).

Case Notes

Purchase Without Bidding: A lease agreement for an airplane with an option to purchase, entered into by the State Aeronautics Commission (now Department of Transportation), constituted a "purchase" within the statute requiring bids. Purchase of the airplane without bidding could have been authorized on the basis of public exigency, where the Governor had just lost his life in a plane crash and the purchase was made to safeguard the life of the new Governor. Holtz v. Babcock, 143 M 341, 390 P2d 801 (1963).

Attorney General's Opinions

Public Exigency — Limitations: A "public exigency" is a situation in which an unforeseen happening or event necessitates immediate action to protect the public interest. In time of a public exigency, the state may obtain articles and services without competitive bidding in the same manner as between individuals bargaining in a free, open market for similar articles and services. The public exigency exemption does not abrogate the prohibitions against personal interests in contracts contained in 2-2-201. 34 A.G. Op. 46 (1972).

Severability: Section 22, Ch. 443, L. 1997, was a severability clause. Effective April 30, 1997.

1983 Amendment: In (1), inserted ", assigned, or subcontracted" after "transferred" at the beginning of the first sentence, inserted "without the express written approval of the state" after "given to any other party", substituted "unapproved transfer, assignment, or subcontract" for "such transfer" at the end of first sentence, and inserted last sentence referring to nonrelease of original obligor and his sureties.

Attorney General's Opinions

State Not Prohibited From Expressly Releasing Party or Surety After Transfer, Assignment, or Subcontract: This section prohibits the approval of a transfer or assignment of a contract or the granting of subcontract from acting as an implied release of a party or surety from the party's or surety's obligations. This section does not prohibit the state from expressly releasing a party or surety from the party's or surety's obligations. 45 A.G. Op. 11 (1993).

Trevor, 273 M 185, 903 P2d 170 (1995), that an unsuccessful bidder on a state contract may sue the state for money damages under Title 18, chapter 4, MCA, commonly known as the Montana Procurement Act; and

WHEREAS, a judgment for damages in a state contract suit brought pursuant to the Montana Procurement Act makes Montana taxpayers pay twice for the same product; and

WHEREAS, in enacting the Montana Procurement Act, the Legislature did not intend to allow disappointed bidders on state contracts to be awarded damages under the Montana Procurement Act, but rather intended that the exclusive remedies of a disappointed bidder be the remedies provided in section 18-4-242, MCA, which do not include the award of money damages to an unsuccessful bidder; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Supreme Court held in Meech v. Hillhaven West, Inc., 238 M 21, 776 P2d 488 (1989), that no fundamental right to a particular cause of action or remedy exists under Montana law and that Article II, section 16, of the Montana Constitution requires only that some remedy be provided for every wrong, and the Supreme Court held in Continental Oil Co. v. Montana Concrete Co., 63 M 223, 207 P 116 (1922), and General Agriculture Corp. v. Moore, 166 M 510, 534 P2d 859 (1975), that the Legislature may repeal a statutory cause of action or remedy during the pendency of a civil action invoking the remedy; and

WHEREAS, according to section 1-2-110, MCA, a statute may be repealed at any time by the Legislature, and persons acting under any statute are considered to be acting in contemplation of the Legislature's power to repeal the statute; and

WHEREAS, it is the intent of the Legislature by enacting [sections 2, 10, and 23] [18-4-122, 18-4-242, and retroactive applicability section] and repealing section 18-4-131, MCA, to reverse the holding of the Supreme Court in the ISC case as to the availability of the remedy of money damages; and

WHEREAS, it is the intent of the Legislature by enacting [section 23] [retroactive applicability section] to make the reversal of the ISC case apply retroactively, unless a complaint was filed in district court prior to January 1, 1992, as provided in [section 23]."

Severability: Section 22, Ch. 443, L. 1997, was a severability clause. Effective April 30, 1997.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 23, Ch. 443, L. 1997, provided: "[Sections 2 and 10] [18-4-122 and 18-4-242] and the repeal of 18-4-131 apply retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, in the case of an unlawful solicitation for bid or unlawful award of a contract, to a claim, to a cause of action, or to a request for relief other than those authorized by [section 10] [18-4-242], unless a complaint was filed in district court prior to January 1, 1992."

Case Notes

No Abuse of Discretion in Disallowing Futile Amendment to Pleadings: Reier Broadcasting Co. (Reier) filed a three-count complaint in July 2002, alleging that defendant university had wrongfully failed to award Reier's radio station a contract to broadcast the university's athletic events. The next month, Reier filed an amended complaint as a matter of right, deleting one of the original claims and adding a new claim. The next month, Reier moved to amend the amended complaint to add a new tort claim. Defendant opposed the motion and sought dismissal of the amended complaint for lack of subject matter jurisdiction and failure to state a claim for which relief could be granted. Five months later, Reier filed a second motion to amend the amended complaint, requesting leave to seek a declaratory judgment that this section was unconstitutional and seeking damages. The District Court dismissed the amended complaint and the first motion to amend because the tort claims had not been properly presented as required by the state tort claims act (Title 2, ch. 9, part 3). The court also dismissed the second motion to amend, and Reier appealed on grounds that it was error not to allow the amendment to address the constitutionality of this section. The Supreme Court noted that generally it is an abuse of discretion to refuse amendments to pleadings that are offered at a reasonable time and that would further justice, but also noted that futile amendments need not be permitted. Reier's proposed amendments to add a constitutional challenge were futile because Reier failed to take the steps necessary under 2-9-301 to preserve the tort claims, so dismissal of the second motion to amend was not an abuse of discretion. Reier Broadcasting Co., Inc. v. Mont. St. Univ.-Bozeman, 2005 MT 240, 328 M 471, 121 P3d 549 (2005), distinguishing Debcon, Inc. v. Glasgow, 2001 MT 124, 305 M 391, 28 P3d 478 (2001), and Hickey v. Baker School District No. 12, 2002 MT 322, 313 M 162, 60 P3d 966 (2002).

Right of Plaintiff to Sue for Damages for Negligent or Bad Faith Application of Procurement Act: The District Court dismissed ISC's suit against the Department of Administration for negligent or bad faith application of the Montana Procurement Act on the basis that this section was the exclusive remedy for ISC and that the statute did not allow such an action. The Supreme Court held that the general remedies provided a plaintiff suing the state under 18-4-131 (now repealed) were not displaced by this section and that therefore ISC was entitled to seek damages for negligent or bad faith application of the Act by the Department. (See 1997 amendment.) ISC Distrib., Inc. v. Trevor, 273 M 185, 903 P2d 170, 52 St. Rep. 894 (1995).

Procurement Procedure

Part Case Notes

Misapplication of State Law Not Basis for Claim of Denial of Equal Protection: ISC argued that its allegations that the Department of Administration had applied the Montana Procurement Act in a discriminatory fashion in not awarding ISC a contract supported its claim that it had been denied equal protection. The Supreme Court held that ISC's claim failed because at most, it amounted to an allegation that state law was misapplied in an individual case and did not constitute invidious discrimination in violation of the equal protection clause. ISC Distrib., Inc. v. Trevor, 273 M 185, 903 P2d 170, 52 St. Rep. 894 (1995).

No Property Right Created When Government's Award of Contract Is Discretionary: ISC argued that the Department of Administration had violated its right to due process when the Department did not award ISC a contract that had been put out for bid. The Supreme Court held that a property right that would support a due process claim is not created when a state agency is not required to award a contract on a sufficiently objective basis. ISC Distrib., Inc. v. Trevor, 273 M 185, 903 P2d 170, 52 St. Rep. 894 (1995).

Case Notes

Lateness of Bid — Irregularity Not Requiring Waiver by State: Petri attempted to submit a hand-carried, written bid to state officials for a painting contract at Montana State University (now Montana State University-Bozeman). Petri arrived at the site of the bid opening several minutes after the announced closing of the time for submitting bids. At trial in the District Court, Petri submitted evidence showing that the clock in the room where bids were being accepted was several minutes fast according to a confidential U.S. West telephone number for obtaining the correct time. The Supreme Court held that there was no evidence that late bids were an irregularity requiring waiver by state officials. There was evidence that rejection of late bids is the industry-wide practice. The U.S. West time source was not established as more accurate than the clocks in the bid opening room, nor can MSU be held responsible for coordinating its clocks with a source not available to it. Under these circumstances, the District Court did not err in treating the lateness of the bid as a material irregularity. Petri v. Mont. St. Univ., 260 M 392, 860 P2d 154, 50 St. Rep. 1133 (1993).

Immaterial Irregularities in Bid May Be Waived: The defendant accepted the low bid for an airport construction contract. In its bid, the successful bidder listed the same subcontractor as fulfilling the requirement for a minority-owned business and a woman-owned business.

Subsequently, it was learned that federal regulations would not allow one subcontractor to meet the requirements for both categories. The defendant allowed the contractor to amend its bid and list a second minority-owned subcontractor. The plaintiff was the second lowest bidder and argued that the low bid should have been rejected for not conforming to the bid requirements. The Supreme Court held that there had been no attempt by the defendant or successful bidder to circumvent minority hiring rules and that the state had the authority to waive immaterial irregularities in any bid offered. Sebena Paving, Inc. v. Gallatin Airport Authority, 245 M 389, 801 P2d 614, 47 St. Rep. 2194 (1990).

Case Notes

Bid Proposal Evaluation Including Negotiation of Unresolved Issues — Bid Properly Considered Nonresponsive: Reier Broadcasting Co. (RBC) sought to enter a broadcasting contract with Montana State University-Bozeman (MSU) and asserted that MSU violated administrative rules by finding that RBC's proposal was nonresponsive after the evaluation process was completed. The Supreme Court disagreed. The evaluation process concludes when the parties arrive at a contract, not before, so in this case, the evaluation process and the accompanying rules of engagement included negotiations of unresolved issues as well as discussion pursuant to the administrative rules. A state entity must retain the power to find a proposal nonresponsive when a party refuses to conform to a request for proposals (RFP) or substantially alters its proposal. In order to maximize the state's purchasing power, the Montana Procurement Act allows a state agency to ensure full compliance with an RFP up to the point of entering a contract. RBC's interpretation would defeat the intent of the Act and tie the hands of a state entity in a manner not contemplated by the Act. Here, MSU reviewed RBC's proposal based on evaluation criteria and did not restrict responsibility for determining nonresponsiveness or nonresponsibility of a proposal to the evaluation committee, so MSU's determination that RBC's proposal was nonresponsive was affirmed. In re Contested Hearing of Protest by Reier Broadcasting Co., 2005 MT 347, 330 M 152, 127 P3d 389 (2005).

Economic Advantage Inadequate Reason for Denial of Public Right to Observe Government Deliberations in Corrections Vendor Process: A newspaper company sought to restrain the Department of Corrections from excluding the public from meetings of the committee that reviewed proposals for operating private prison facilities. The District Court held that the public had no right to observe the negotiation phase of the committee's work, but that once negotiations were completed, the process by which the conclusions were arrived at must be open to public observation. Both parties appealed. The Supreme Court noted that as part of an Executive Branch agency, the Department and the committee were considered governmental bodies pursuant to 2-15-104 for purposes of procurement and that under the constitutional right to know, proposals submitted by private vendors were considered documents of a public body or agency that, under 2-6-102 (now repealed, but see 2-6-1003), the public has a right to inspect. Under the two-part test in Missoulian v. Bd. of Regents, 207 M 513, 675 P2d 962 (1984), the only exception to the constitutional provision arises when the demand of individual privacy clearly exceeds the merits of public disclosure. The state contended that the meetings at issue were closed for economic advantage, but economic advantage is neither a privacy interest nor a sufficient reason for denying the public the opportunity to observe deliberations of public bodies or to examine public documents, including proposals submitted to the public body by a vendor, unless the proposal concerns a privacy interest involving legitimate trade secrets or individual safety. A public agency's desire for privacy does not provide an exception to the public's constitutional right to observe its government at work. To the extent that provisions in ARM 2.5.602 or this section require exclusion of the public from the competitive bid process, those provisions are unconstitutional and unenforceable.
